SUMMARY.

The "Vossische Zeitung" says: "It is expected Roumania will shortly decide to intervene, favouring the Entente."

German correspondents admit that Roumania is now closer than ever with the Entente.

A press writer says Russia has signed an agreement allowing the passage of war materials to Roumania.

The German losses at Douaumont pale into insignificance compared with those of last week.

Active artillery fighting occurred at Bois des Buttes. There was intense bombardment in the region of Vaux Fort.

A French officer says it is impossible not to admire the German bravery in the attacks on Fort Vaux.

There has been a heavy bombardment by both sides about Ypres.

Germany's declaration against Portugal has excited public opinion in Brazil.

The "Epoca" says that the great majority of the Brazilians will help Portugal and the Allies all they can.

The majority of the newspapers in Lisbon enthusiastically agree with the war attitude of Portugal.

The Italians heavily bombarded the whole of the Isonzo front, and wrecked the enemy's defensive works.

The Italian activity is interpreted as being intended to prevent the Austrians reinforcing the Germans at Verdun.

The Russians have occupied the town of Kivind, 130 miles east-north-east of Baghdad.

Advices from Switzerland state that the Russians have again bombarded Varna, the Bulgarian port in the Black Sea.

The Russians attacked at the village of Le Tatche (on the Dneister), and, despite the enemy's violent fire, invaded their trenches.

It is authoritatively stated that Russia intends to liberate Armenia from Turkish misrule.

The Bulgar-German relations are not improving. The Bulgarians regard their own part in the war as wholly victorious.

The "Daily Chronicle" correspondent at Salonica states that the allied positions continue to be extended and strengthened.

It is reported that the German fleet is preparing to move.

The auxiliary cruiser Fauvette has been mined and sunk on the East Coast. Fourteen lives were lost.

Colonel Repington, in a review of the war, says the Germans have bluffed us well.

The South Africans had their first fight in Egypt on February 26, at Agagia.

They valiantly advanced with short rushes, and drove out the enemy precipitately.

The "Daily Chronicle" correspondent at Salonica says that an invasion of Egypt is no longer regarded as possible.

It is admitted that the Russian advance has changed the whole face of the military problem in the Near East.

A German seaplane was sighted off the coast of Kent on Sunday. British aeroplanes drove off the intruder.

The "Morning Post" says Mr. Hughes has dared to say what no British statesman has said since the war.

"If Mr. Hughes," it continues, "goes on boldly he may be instrumental in saving England and the Empire."

An appeal has been issued to neutral Governments to call a conference with a view to hastening a just peace.

A national union of Jews has been formed to secure equal rights in all countries after the war.

The campaign of the new Progressive party was opened at Young last night by Mr. G. S. Beeby.

Mr. Beeby said, by arrangement with the Liberals, the new party would contest nearly 30 country seats.

The methods of the Labour party, he declared, had gone a long way towards killing the principle of legitimate State enterprise.

The Minister for Agriculture at to-day's sitting of the Assembly will bring down an amending irrigation bill.

The object of the bill, says Mr. Grahame, is to place irrigation under the control of a board of three.

An expenditure of over £100,000 will shortly have to be incurred in connection with the State fish scheme.

The Chief Secretary says the scheme is paying its way, and he intends developing it gradually.

Mr. Ashford says if Cathedral-street is closed all of the space comprised will be thrown into the public parks.

The Lands Department, he explains, cannot lease portions of a public park without passing a special Act of Parliament.

It is proposed that permissive occupancy be granted the cathedral authorities of the top portion of Cathedral-street.

The Chief Judge in Equity has declared gas to be a necessary commodity within the Necessary Commodities Control Act of 1914.

The Fair Rents Court was officially opened yesterday by the Attorney-General. There was a large attendance of the public.

Mr. Hall said it embodied a new judicial institution, which was unique in the experience of the Australian people.

He found that a bridge to carry electric railway cars could be built for £43,000.

A meeting of flour millers yesterday considered the proposals of the Acting Prime Minister regarding breadstuffs.

It was patent to all present that, unless prices fixed afforded reasonable profit, millowners would be compelled to reduce outputs.

A prisoner escaped from the Central Police Station on Sunday afternoon. He is still at large.

A displaced bar in the overhead caging, and a length of rope over the gaol wall, indicated how the prisoner made his escape.

WUNDERLICH CEILINGS. Manufactured in Australia from British Materials. Established in 1887. Every year adds to the proficiency of our production.

The Wunderlich Art Metal Ceiling and Walling are the most artistic and effective lining for the home; moreover, the steel is fire-resisting, it is unaffected by flames; no fuel for a fire. It withstands the fire, and will confine flames in the locality of the outbreak of the fire. The fire cannot penetrate to the floor above, or from the roof downwards, unless the structural portion of the building is consumed. A building lined with WUNDERLICH STEEL is a fire barrier in every sense of the word, making the interior as well as the exterior proof against sparks and the devouring element of bush fires.

Write for our Booklet, showing steel-lined cottage, and "Ceilings for the Home."

The "SYDNEY MORNING HERALD" says:—
"Sydney is indeed fortunate in the timely arrival of Mr. Gullett from the central seat of war. He proved thrillingly 'in the movement' at the Town Hall on Saturday night. . . . . An absorbing evening of mingled entertainment and instruction. . ."
The "DAILY TELEGRAPH" says:—
"The story told by Mr. Gullett on Saturday night gave the audience a vivid impression of the grim realities of trench warfare on the Western Front. It was told in simple yet effective language, and with an earnestness that was unmistakable. One felt that the knowledge was first-hand, that the pigments employed by him in the pictures he painted were his own."
"THE SUN" says:—
"No previous lecturer has brought the audience so intimately in touch with the soldier in the trench and his job as Mr. Gullett did in his opening lecture."
"THE SUNDAY TIMES" says:—
"Fine subject, finely handled. . . Photographs obviously taken on the field were intensely interesting. . . A burst of passionately admiring applause punctuated the silence of the great auditorium. . . The pride of race rings through his remarks like a call to arms. . . ."

6-Act Drama, produced by Thomas H. Ince,
"CROOKED TO THE END,"
2-Act Comedy, by Mack Sennett.

"S.M. Herald":—
"The Coward" is a fine tribute to the capabilities of the producer in staging a bewilderingly wonderful battle scene, with an immense panorama, and an army of actors individually lost in the roar and confusion of battle.

"Daily Telegraph":—
One can only marvel at the magnitude of the staff and arrangements which must be necessary, and the huge expenditure of money involved in the making of "The Coward." The comedy, "Crooked to the End," had the audience convulsed during the whole time it was on the screen.

THE RED KITE.

BY WILLIAM A. HENRY.

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

The watcher had crawled forward a few feet to take advantage of a specially favourable patch of gorse, when the sound of a tremendous explosion shook the air. Chetwood's heart leaped within him as he realised that the sound came from the direction of Beechlands. Before the reverberations had finally died away another thunderous roar broke out. Chetwood, torn by bitter uncertainty, remained motionless in hesitation.

Just then, as though encouraged by the sound, two sailors sprang up from behind some broom, and rushed forward. Chetwood fired. The first dropped. The second was in the act of halting, when there sounded a quick rustling through the gorse at his side. Three men sprang into view at the same time within a couple of yards of him. Then Chetwood was conscious of a dull shock, of brilliant stars, and knew no more.

* * * * *

Two violent circles were before Chetwood's eyes. At first they were vague and dim, but every second they grew fuller in hue and more luminous. Little by little the violet circles took definite form. They were eyes, set in the face of a young woman. How lovely this face was, he thought dreamily; but how anguished those eyes. For a few seconds he lay still and content, fearful of losing this exquisite dream thing which was within a foot of his face.

"You might be Constance," he whispered. "Yes, it's wonderful—you might be Constance."

The lips just above him curved in a tremulous smile. The sight of this swept nearly all the cobwebs of confusion from his brain.

"But you are Constance!" he exclaimed weakly.

He felt an arm that was beneath his neck as it tightened slightly. The lips moved again, more boldly and definitely this time.

"Yes, Stanley, it's Constance," they said. "And now, keep perfectly still and don't worry."

He obeyed, nothing loth, watching the lights and shades in the girl's eyes. Presently remembrance came to him, and he made an attempt to rise. Instantly her unoccupied arm was pressed across his breast to keep him motionless.

"You must lie still, Stanley!" urged the girl. "You've had a bad blow at the back of the head."

He put his hand to the spot, felt a damp bandage, and when he withdrew it he saw that it was red. Then he looked upwards again into Constance's face, which, pale before, had grown whiter still. He smiled rather faintly.

"Yes, I remember now," he said. "And I'll keep quiet. That's not difficult, dear!"

His heart leaped as he saw a flood of colour stain her cheeks for an instant. His hand closed upon hers where it lay upon his breast.

"How did you get here, Constance?" he asked.

She hesitated before replying.

"I never really went away—quite—Stanley," she said. "The Lamb has gone racing ahead, and I hid in the coombe near the top of the cliff. I saw everything—the sailors scrambling up—the man you shot—that frightful shell—and then the men crawling up again, quite near you. It was all too dreadful. I was racing down to warn you—but it was too late—I saw the man strike the blow——"

She paused. Chetwood could feel the tremor that thrilled the arms that were about him.

"You were coming to warn me!" he exclaimed. "To warn me—in the face of all that!"

His fingers closed more tightly upon her hand.

"I was too late, Stanley," she said. "When—when you had fallen the men went scrambling straight on up the coombe in a terrible hurry. I hid until they had passed, then ran down to you, and here I am."

A sudden thought caused him to stir in her arms.

"And those sailors," he cried. "Are those sailors still up there?"

Her face grew troubled again. She nodded. "I suppose so. At all events, they haven't come back. But please be obedient, Stanley, and don't worry about that for the present. If you don't ——"

Her words were interrupted by the whirring of an aeroplane's screw. One of the German aeroplanes passed overhead, flying at top speed out to sea. It was followed a few seconds later by its companion.

"There goes their infernal planes," muttered Chetwood. "I wonder what they have been up to."

The girl stared after their rapidly diminishing forms.

"At all events, they haven't stayed long," she said. Then she broke off suddenly. "Oh," she exclaimed, and repeated in an awestruck voice, "Oh! Oh!"

"What is it now?" demanded Chetwood.

"It was—oh, I don't know what it was!" cried the girl. "It was a thing that looked like a very stout, short aeroplane. But it couldn't have been that! It went by without a sound—just like a shadow—and the pace! Stanley, I never could have dreamed that anything could have moved through the air like that!"

Chetwood raised himself on his elbow.

"It was the 'Red Kite,' Constance. Thank God! It was the 'Red Kite.' She's safe. Hurrah! She's safe! Those two German aeroplanes are as good as in Davy Jones's locker already!"

He sank back; his head had begun to swim again. A look of interrogation which had come into the girl's eyes was replaced by one of sudden fear.

"The sailors," she exclaimed. "They're coming back. Lie perfectly still, Stanley, and don't speak. Don't breathe."

The noises of crashing plunges through the thicket increased rapidly. All at once Constance crouched down low by the side of Chetwood, and, grasping a spreading branch of the grose bush, drew it down over their bodies. Chetwood could feel the quick breathing of the girl. As the footsteps drew quite near, and the sounds of panted guttural words became audible, he gave an encouraging squeeze to the hand he held.

For an instant he thought that all was over. The heavy boots of a man crunched down within three yards of the spot where they lay. Then the sound began to die away. When they had become quite faint Constance released the gorse bush, and raised herself cautiously. Chetwood, too, now found that he could draw himself to his knees without the acute giddiness which he had experienced before.

The German sailors were running in single file along the last open stretch of the coombe which led to the sea wall. Chetwood began to count them.

"Eight, nine, ten," he muttered. "Eleven. Now, how can that be? Twelve landed, and I shot two. That is, unless I dreamed it."

The girl pointed a hand downwards that trembled faintly.

"Do you see that man in the peaked cap?" she asked. "There. He's kneeling down now to take off his boots. Well, he was the one who came rushing by so near us. I saw him distinctly through a tiny opening in the gorse. He was fully dressed, and dry. He could not have come ashore with the rest. Look, he's partially stripping himself now."

Chetwood nodded.

"Yes, you're obviously right. This adds to the mystery." Then he caught sight of her pointing hand. A few red drops were clustered about the palm and fingers. His voice took on a note of concern. "My dear girl, what have you done to your hand?"

She let it fall quickly.

"Nothing," she said. "These are merely a few gorse-pricks."

"Gorse-pricks!" In a moment he had seized the wounded hand, and had covered it with kisses. "You were holding those gorse-spikes all the time, and I never realised it! But I know what the pain is! What a wonderful girl you are, Constance—Constance, you sweet, brave thing!"

The girl's face was turned from him.

He could judge nothing from her expression, nor from the tones of her low voice.

"Don't, Stanley! Don't idealise me—it was nothing. Look down there! Do they really mean to swim out?"

The scene by the sea-wall was of a nature to cause the hardiest swimmer to pause. The flood tide was approaching, and the waves were beginning to roll inwards in their full might. As the breakers struck with a dull thud upon the masonry, great gleaming white curtains of spray shot up into the air, hung poised for a moment, then descended with a hiss and a crash.

The sailors stood upon the sea-wall, irresolute, casting back from time to time a rapid glance over their shoulders towards the summit of the cliff. A peremptory wave from a figure on the submarine's deck ended their hesitation. One by one and two by two they plunged over the edge of the stone pavement into the white and broken waters.

As the last man left the sea-wall Chetwood took a rapid survey of the sky. Neither the "Red Kite" nor any other aeroplane was visible. Perhaps at that very moment some drama was being worked out in the distant air. If so, it was not to be his luck to witness it. He turned his eyes again to the sea near by.

LAW REPORT.

BANCO COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring and a jury of 4.)

ACTION FOR A NUISANCE.

Howard v Bega Municipality.

Mr. Garland, K.C., and Mr. Flannery, instructed by Mr. J. J. Carroll, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Pickburn, instructed by Messrs. Bland and Cunningham, of Bega (by their agents, Messrs. Villeneuve-Smith and Dawes), for the defendants. This was an action brought by Henry Howard to obtain compensation from the Municipality of Bega for an alleged nuisance committed by defendants in connection with the working of a sanitary depot adjoining his property, and for negligence in carelessly and improperly constructing and maintaining such depot. Mr. Garland, in explaining the facts to the jury, said that plaintiff was the owner of a dairy farm about two miles from Bega, and he also carried on a brick works there. In 1910 his father, who at the time was over 70 years of age, gave a promise of a lease to the defendant municipality of about three acres of his land adjoining the dairy farm, for the purpose of a sanitary depot, but the old gentleman subsequently refused to sign the lease, on the ground that the council had allowed a nuisance to exist. He died in January, 1913, and plaintiff entered into possession of the property. In 1913 the period of the proposed lease expired, and plaintiff, owing to the manner in which the sanitary depot was carried out, refused to grant an extension. The defendants thereupon induced the Government to resume the three acres in October, 1913, so that the municipality was enabled to continue the depot. Plaintiff afterwards found that owing to the manner in which the depot was managed sewage soaked from the land into a natural water channel which ran through his farm, and in time of heavy rain was washed through his property, causing an offensive nuisance. The adjacent lagoon, where he watered his dairy and other stock, also became polluted, and in 1913 he had to shut up the brickworks owing to the nuisance. He wrote to the council about it, but, receiving no satisfaction, he issued the writ in the present action, claiming £1000 damages, and he also asked for a writ of injunction to restrain the defendants from a continuance of the injuries complained of.

Defendants pleaded not guilty by statute, and that plaintiff was not the owner of the land upon which the alleged nuisance occurred.

The case stands part heard.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury of 4.)

PORT KEMBLA HARBOUR WORKS.

CLAIM FOR RESUMPTION OF LAND.

Waldron v the Minister.

Mr. A. A. Lysaght, of Wollongong, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Pike and Mr. Bavin, instructed by Mr. J. V. Tillett (Crown Solicitor) for the defendant. This was an action brought by Alfred Adolphus Waldron against the Government to recover compensation for 110 acres of his land in the parish of Wollongong, resumed on December 17, 1913, for purposes incidental to the carrying out of public works at Port Kembla, namely, the construction of a deep-water harbour and the extension of the northern breakwater.

The defendant pleaded that the amount claimed by plaintiff exceeded the amount to which he was entitled.

The case stands part heard.

IN EQUITY.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

MOUNT OXIDE MINES, LTD., v GOULD. AND OTHERS.

CLAIM FOR £25,000.

The case of the Mount Oxide Mines and the directors of J. Earle Hermann was before the Court. The plaintiff company (Mount Oxide Mines, Limited), joined issues with the defendants, Sir Albert John Gould, Frederick William Bacon, Gerald Francis Allen, Thomas Brougham Birkbeck, and Joseph Earle Hermann, Limited, in liquidation. Mr. Adrian Knox, K.C., Mr. R. H. Long-Innes, and Mr. Harper, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared for the plaintiff company; Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Maughan, instructed by Messrs. Gould and Shaw, for the defendant, Albert John Gould; Mr. Leverrier, K.C., and Mr. R. K. Manning, instructed by Messrs. Pigott and Stinson, for the defendants, Francis William Bacon and Gerald Francis Allen; Mr. S. A. Thompson, instructed by Messrs. Asher, Old, and Jones, for the defendant, Thomas Brougham Birkbeck; and Mr. Bethune, instructed by Messrs. Richardson, Clarke, and Fitzgerald, for the defendant, Joseph Earle Hermann; and Mr. Wickham, instructed by Messrs. Vero Read and Bell, for the defendant, J. Earle Hermann, in liquidation.

The suit was brought by the Mount Oxide Mines, Ltd., against the defendants named above.

The amended statement of claim states:—(1) That the company was incorporated on June 22, 1912; (2) that on June 10 (1912) defendants, T. B. Birkbeck and J. Earle Hermann, Ltd., and Mount Oxide Options, Ltd., made an agreement in respect to the formation of a company, to be called the Mount Oxide Mines, Limited (meaning the plaintiff company). The capital the proposed company was to have been £200,000, divided into 200,000 shares of £1 each. It was proposed to issue for public subscription 120,000 of the said shares. An alternative was that in the event of one Ernest Henry accepting in debentures of the proposed company £20,000 in the sale by him of the Mount Oxide Mine, it was proposed to issue 90,000 of the said shares; for public subscription; it was agreed that the defendant, J. Earle Hermann, Ltd., should underwrite 120,000 shares, and for certain services should receive the sum of £20,000 payable in fully-paid up shares of the proposed company; (3) the defendants, Sir Albert G. Gould, G. F. Allen, T. B. Birkbeck, and F. W. Bacon were appointed directors of the plaintiff company. They remained directors until the confirmation of certain resolutions for the liquidation of the company; (4) defendant Hermann remained a director of the defendant company, J. Earle Hermann, until January, 1914. Birkbeck appointed Hermann his attorney to attend board meetings, and vote on his behalf. It was alleged that the word "two" in the power of attorney was altered to "twenty" without Birkbeck's consent or knowledge. In August, 1912, an account was opened at the Haymarket Branch of the Australian Bank of Commerce, and Hermann was authorised to sign cheques on behalf of the company. Certain cheques, amounting to about £4000 had been received from Hermann, or J. Earle Hermann, Ltd., in payment of application and allotment moneys due in respect of shares, and the secretary was directed to hold back cheques to the amount of £2000. Subsequently, further cheques for large sums were received from Hermann or J. Earle Hermann, Ltd., and certain of them were ordered to be held back, and not placed in the bank for collection purposes. It was alleged that the defendant Hermann or Hermann, Ltd., was permitted to sell certain ore belonging to the company without accounting for the proceeds. On December 31, 1912, there was due to the company in respect of shares, about £24,000. By an agreement of December 23, 1912, between the plaintiff company, J. Earle Hermann, Ltd., and the Properties Selection Trust, Ltd., of London, it was agreed that the lastnamed company should send an engineer to inspect the Mount Oxide Mine, and if the report were satisfactory, on the consent of the company, to advance J. Earle Hermann, Ltd., by way of a loan, £20,000, and that immediately on the Properties Selection Trust, Ltd., advancing the money, it should have the right to proceed on formation of a new company on a capital of £475,000, to take over and work the plaintiff company's property. In January, 1913, the £20,000 was paid to J. E. Hermann, Ltd., with the knowledge and consent of defendant directors. Subsequently application was made to Hermann and J. Earle Hermann, Ltd., for payment of the £20,000, but they denied liability.

Of the sum of £20,000 received by defendant, J. Earle Hermann, Ltd., £10,000 was applied by him in payment of a sum of £10,000 due by Joseph Earle Hermann or J. Earle Hermann, Ltd., upon the said 10,000 shares in the plaintiff company previously referred to. Notwithstanding certain complaints regarding the management, the defendants Gould, Bacon, Allen, and Birkbeck took no steps to terminate the management, control, and direction of the business of the plaintiff company by the defendants J. E. Hermann and J. E. Hermann, Ltd.

By reason of the failure to collect moneys, etc., of the defendants Gould, Bacon, Allen, and Birkbeck, it was alleged that the plaintiff company was unable to pay its debts, and was wound up. It was alleged that the accounts of the plaintiff company were not from time to time, or at all, examined, or the correctness of the balance-sheet ascertained by one or more auditors. The plaintiff company charged that the said defendants, Gould, Bacon, Allen, and Birkbeck were guilty of breaches of duty as directors of the plaintiff company, and negligent in certain matters, that were cited at great length.

The plaintiff company therefore prayed: (1) That the defendants Gould, Bacon, Allen, and Birkbeck may be ordered to pay to the plaintiff company the sum of £25,000, or the amount of the loss sustained by the said company by reason of the negligence or misconduct of the said defendants as directors of the plaintiff company; (2) that an inquiry may be had as to the loss and damage sustained by the plaintiff company.

The defence was a general denial by each of the defendants of the allegations of the plaintiff company.

Mr. Shand raised a demurrer that in selling to a new company the plaintiff company had no right of action in respect of the subject matter of the suit.

An application asking the Oxide Company provide security for costs was dismissed.

The case stands part heard.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice, Sir William Cullen, and jury.)

Mr. Herbert Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

SHOOTING CASE.

Carl James Sharpe, 33, was charged with having, at Glebe, on December 6, wounded George Harkness, with intent to murder him, and also with having maliciously wounded Harkness with intent to do grievous bodily harm. Mr. Watt, instructed by Messrs. Weaver and Allworth, appeared for Sharpe, who pleaded not guilty.

In opening the case to the jury Mr. Harris said that Harkness, a member of the Expeditionary Forces, who had since died, but not as the result of the wounding, and accused had a dispute about a summons which had been served on a woman by Sharpe. Later on Harkness called at accused's residence in Ross-street, with the idea of getting him to withdraw the summons, but Sharpe ordered him out of the house, at the same time pointing a revolver at him. Harkness was backing out, followed by Sharpe, when he picked up a small garden rake and tried to knock the weapon out of Sharpe's hand. Sharpe, however, fired the revolver at Harkness, the bullet striking him in the neck. He afterwards became paralysed in the lower part of the body.

Dr. Sheldon said that on December 18 he made a post-mortem examination of the body of Harkness at the Sydney Morgue. He found a small punctured wound on the left side of the neck. The bullet severed the spinal cord. In his opinion, the immediate cause of death was peritonitis, brought about by appendicitis, which was not noticed, owing to Harkness's paralysed condition, when he was first examined.

Sharpe stated that on the day of the shooting he locked his front gate so as to keep out Harkness, with whom he had had a dispute, but the front door was left open. He was just going to dine when he saw Harkness standing in the middle of the hall. Harkness said he had come round to ask witness to withdraw a summons. Witness said he would not do so, but Harkness replied that he would make him. Witness ordered Harkness to leave the house, but the latter assumed a fighting attitude. With the view of frightening him, witness drew a revolver and covered Harkness, and told him that if he did not leave he would shoot him. Harkness advanced towards witness, who backed out side the house. Harkness followed him, and when near the verandah he (Harkness) took a child's rake and made as if to strike him. When in the garden Harkness rushed at him and endeavoured to strike him with the rake, and with the intention of frightening Harkness he fired his revolver, as he thought, in the air. He did not take aim. He was in fear, and fired the weapon with the intention of attracting attention.

The jury retired at 5.15, and returned to court at 7.5 with a verdict of guilty of the alternative offence of maliciously wounding, which was open to them to find if they were not satisfied that the wounding was with intent to murder, or with intent to inflict grievous bodily harm. The jury added a strong recommendation to mercy on account of the provocation received. Sharpe was remanded for sentence.

COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEAL.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Pring, and Mr. Justice Sly.)

APPEAL FROM CONVICTION.

Rex v S. C. Gosney.

Mr. Bignold, instructed by Mr. Ernest W. Warren, appeared for the prisoner in support of the appeal; and Mr. C. A. White for the Crown, in support of the conviction. The prisoner, Sydney Cecil Gosney, was convicted at the Quarter Sessions, Darlinghurst, before Judge Docker and a jury of 12 of embezzling £21, etc., from the Benevolent Society of New South Wales, of which he had been a collector at Forbes, and on the 4th instant he was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment. He appealed, on the grounds, among others, that the finding of the jury was against evidence and the weight of evidence; that the Crown case was not proved beyond reasonable doubt; and that on the evidence the jury should not have convicted him; that the jury in bringing in its verdict added a recommendation to mercy on the ground of his good character, and also said, "We had very great difficulty in coming to a conclusion. We ask your Honor if you can see your way to do so to extend the provisions of the First Offenders Act to the accused." Other grounds had been filed since counsel received the record and depositions, several taking exception to various matters in connection with Judge Docker's summing up, and also to the alleged statement made by the Crown Prosecutor to the jury in support of his contention that the good character of an accused man was of no weight on the question of guilt or innocence. Another ground submitted was one for reduction of the sentence. Argument on the grounds of appeal were argued on February 25.

The Chief Justice, in delivering the reserved judgment of the Court, recited the evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution, and said that on this evidence the Crown Prosecutor asked the jury to come to the conclusion that the story of the accused, that he posted the notes and cheques could not possibly be true, because, even on his own showing, the letter would have been something over half an ounce in weight; but it was by no means clear that they might not have been misled respecting the quantity of the excess by the way in which the case was presented to them. Now, in criminal cases, depending on circumstantial evidence, it was necessary to bear in mind the principle so frequently laid down in the authorities that before a jury could find a prisoner guilty on circumstantial evidence, they must be satisfied, not only that the circumstances were consistent with the accused having committed the act, but also that the facts were such as to be inconsistent with any other rational conclusion than that the prisoner was the guilty person. But, before arriving at that position, another principle operated, viz., that the facts sworn to must be satisfactorily proved. The Court found it impossible to say that the facts from which the incriminating inference was sought to be were satisfactorily proved. And resting, as this part of the case did, upon circumstantial evidence, the Court held that the conviction must be set aside, and a new trial granted. Under the circumstances, it was unnecessary to advert to the other points taken on the appeal. Accused's previous bail would be renewed.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Backhouse.)

GOODS SUPPLIED.

Malcolm, Preston, and Co. v Knox.

James Malcolm and John Charles Preston, trading as Malcolm, Preston, and Co., of 232 Clarence-street, Sydney, lighting engineers, sued Alexander Knox, of Sydney, merchant, for £99 14s 4d, balance of account for goods supplied. The defendant pleaded not indebted, and claimed a set-off for work done by him for plaintiffs. His Honor found for the plaintiffs for the amount claimed, and also for the plaintiffs on defendant's set off. Mr. Edwards, instructed by Mr. R. G. C. Roberts, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Collins, instructed by Messrs. Abbott, Tout, and Salcombe, for the defendant.

TENANT AND LANDLORD.

Nicholls v O'Connor.

Leslie Sidney Gordon Nicholls, of Surry Hills, labourer, claimed £100 damages from James O'Connor, of Surry Hills, for alleged breach of a tenancy agreement. The plaintiff's case was that defendant, his landlord, had locked the door of his house during the plaintiff's absence. The defence was a denial of the allegation. His Honor found a verdict for the plaintiff for £5. Mr. James Baker appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. E. Milner Stephen, instructed by Messrs. M'Elhone and Barnes, for the defendant.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Murray and juries.)

Mr. A. F. Dawson, Crown Prosecutor.

NOT GUILTY.

John Norris, 40, was acquitted on a charge of stealing six soldering irons, the property of the Reliable Steel Tool Company, Ltd., at Alexandria, on December 16. Mr. W. D. M'Mahon appeared for Norris.

ASSAULT AND ROBBERY.

Ernest Ingram, 39, pleaded not guilty to assaulting Robert Fox, at Sydney, on January 15, and robbing him of £2. The accused was undefended.

According to the evidence for the Crown, accused and Fox were in a hotel in Bourke-street, Surry Hills, when Ingram struck Fox, knocking him down. He then put his hand in Fox's hip pocket and took four half-sovereigns. A barman saw accused strike Fox.

Accused's defence was a denial of the charge. He admitted being in the middle of the road near the hotel.

The jury convicted Ingram, and he was sentenced to 2½ years' imprisonment with hard labour in Parramatta gaol. A long list of previous convictions was read out against Ingram.

APPEALS.

(Before Judge Docker.)

Thomas James Garland and Hilda Taylor appealed against their conviction on January 25 by Mr. A. W. Barnett, on a charge of having been found in a house frequented by vagrants. Garland had been sentenced to two months' imprisonment, and Taylor to 14 days.

Mr. McIntosh appeared for Taylor; and Mr. White for the Crown.

The appeals were dismissed, and the convictions confirmed.

Mary Stanton appealed against her conviction on November 26 by Mr. Macfarlane, and the imposition of a fine of £50, or six months' imprisonment, on a charge of selling liquor without a license.

Mr. White appeared for the Crown, and Mr. Hodgson (instructed by Mr. W. D. M'Mahon) for the appellant.

The appeal was dismissed, and the conviction confirmed, six months' time being given in which to pay the fine.

"BIFF" GLADDENS SORE, TIRED FEET

Tender Feet, Sore Feet, Swollen Feet Relieved without Delay. New Foot Medicine Quickly Banishes all FOOT AILMENTS.

My Feet Just Ache for "BIFF."

To those who are troubled with sore, tender, aching, swollen, perspiring, unpleasant smelling feet, bunions, corns or hard skin, "Biff" will bring quick relief and gladness to the feet. Use "Biff" to-day and banish all pain and discomfit. By using "Biff" once a week you will insure your feet against all foot troubles. "Biff" is a scientific compound which draws out all poisonous matter from the feet, which clog and choke pores of the skin. One application of this unique compound will render the feet sweet and antiseptic. Its delightful results must be experienced to be believed.

READ THESE LETTERS OF PRAISE:

Tyabb, Victoria, December 13, 1915
I have now used one box of "BIFF" and from the first application I derived considerable relief. Please send me a large box per return so that my husband can try this wonderful remedy.—(Signed) Mrs. Pike.

Haberfield, November 11th, 1915
Before using "BIFF" I could scarcely walk, and have suffered from bad feet for years, but am pleased to state that I can now walk with ease, whereas before it was absolute misery to go for even the shortest walk.—(Signed) P. Anderson.

Marshall Cres., North Fitzroy, Victoria, November 14, 1915
Please send a box of "BIFF" per return of post. I have derived great comfort to my feet by using one box. I shall always keep some in the house, and recommend it to others as I have already done.—(Signed) E. Brennan.

High St., East Maitland, November 31, 1915
I am writing to tell you about your wonderful preparation. My daily work requires me to stand many hours a day, and in consequence I suffer terribly with my feet. I have tried all sorts of remedies but got no good out of them. I saw "BIFF" advertised and decided to try it, and I may tell you it is the most wonderful stuff I have ever used, it takes all the ache, tired feeling from the feet and leaves them sweet and fresh. I would not be without it.—(Signed) R. F. Foster.

Drummoyne, December 13, 1915
For many years I was a martyr to tired, aching feet, and despaired of ever meeting with a cure. I saw your advertisement and procured a packet of "BIFF," and since then I can truthfully say that I have never experienced the least trouble with my feet.—(Signed) J. Bennett.

INSTANT RELIEF FOR TIRED FEET!

How "BIFF" Does Help Sore Feet.

There is no preparation in the World that gives such quick relief to sore, tender, swollen, perspiring, unpleasant smelling feet as "Biff," the first application gives immediate relief. For bunions, corns and hard skin quick relief can be obtained. The delicious freshness imparted to the feet after using "Biff" must be experienced to be believed. Use "Biff" to-day and banish all pain and discomfit. To those people who have suffered untold agony from foot troubles, "Biff" will bring gladness.

Newtown, October 1, 1915
Gents,—You will remember sending me a box of "Biff" some time ago. Well, I must tell you that I had little faith that they could give any relief to my poor feet, but since using all the tablets my feet feel that young again that walking is a real pleasure, and my feet never give me any pain. I enclose postal note for another big box. I will always keep it handy. PAT SHERIDAN.

CURES PERSPIRING FEET. Newcastle, Sept. 3, 1915
Dear Sirs,—Replying to your letter, I would say that "Biff" has been quite successful in my case. I suffered with bad perspiring feet for years, but since I have bathed my feet with "Biff" every trace of perspiration has gone. You have no idea how thankful I feel. Please send another box at once for which I enclose stamps. Our local chemist does not keep it in stock.
(Mrs. ALICE CLEMESHA.

CRIPPLED BY TENDER FEET. Bondi.
Mrs. Gardner would be glad if the proprietors of "Biff" would send immediately six boxes of "Biff" for tired feet. Mrs. Gardner has much pleasure in recording a wonderful cure in the case of her father, who was practically crippled by tender feet, but after using "Biff" for three weeks he can walk about as well as any of us.

FOR SWOLLEN FEET. Victoria St., Darlinghurst
I have been troubled with swollen feet for many years, but thanks to "Biff" my feet are quite their normal size. It has given complete satisfaction where foot powders and liniments had failed.—(Mrs.) A. E. KIRKLAND.

PRICE OF GAS.

APPLICATION IN THE EQUITY COURT.

GAS DECLARED A NECESSARY COMMODITY.

Mr. Justice Simpson, Chief Judge in Equity, yesterday delivered his reserved judgment in the application by the Australian Gaslight Company for an injunction to restrain the Necessary Commodities Control Commission from proceeding with its inquiry into the price of gas.

Last week, when the Necessary Commodities Control Commission began an inquiry into the selling price of gas, counsel for the Australian Gaslight Company questioned the jurisdiction of the commission to deal with a question already settled by the Gas Act of 1912. An adjournment was granted, as counsel for the company stated that the company was applying to the Equity Court for an injunction to restrain the commission from inquiring into the price of gas. The motion for the injunction came before the Equity Court last Friday, when Richard John Lukey, secretary of the Australian Gaslight Company, was plaintiff; and Walter Edmunds (president of the Necessary Commodities Control Commission), M. J. Connington, and William White (Commissioners), and the Attorney-General, were the defendants.

Mr. Adrian Knox, K.C., Mr. Blacket, K.C., and Mr. Maughan (instructed by Messrs. Allen, Allen, and Hemsley), appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Leverrier, K.C., and Mr. G. S. Beeby (instructed by Mr. J. V. Tillett, Crown Solicitor), demurred on behalf of the defendants.

Yesterday his Honor delivered judgment.

His Honor said that this was a stated case filed by, or on behalf of, the Australian Gaslight Company against the Necessary Commodities Control Commission. After reviewing the powers conferred by the Gas Act of 1912, and the Necessary Commodities Control Act of 1914, his Honor said that the standard rate did not fix the price, but fixed the relation between the selling price and the dividends. The Gas Act of 1912 was passed at a time of peace, when no war was expected; the Necessary Commodities Control Commission was a war measure, in force only during the war.

The question his Honor had to deal with was, he said, whether the Gas Company was within the Necessary Commodities Control Act. "Is the Necessary Commodities Control Act inconsistent with the Gas Act of 1912," asked his Honor. "To some extent it certainly is, for the first Act indirectly fixes the price of gas, whereas the commission may fix it without any restriction. If the commission should fix the price at 3s 4d or 3s 8d a thousand feet, whether this would affect the provisions of the Gas Act as regards dividends is not necessary for the Court to determine." His Honor thought that these provisions would still remain in force.

His Honor therefore refused to make the declaration asked for in paragraph 1, restraining the commission from proceeding with its inquiry. He further found that gas is a necessary commodity within the Necessary Commodities Control Act of 1914; that it can be made a necessary commodity by a resolution under 2 c. of the Act of 1914. His Honor, therefore, refused the injunction, and allowed the demurrer, with costs.

COURT-MARTIAL.

SERGEANT-MAJOR CHARGED.

EVIDENCE CONCLUDED.

At the Darlinghurst Court-house yesterday, before the General Court-Martial, the hearing was continued of the charge brought against Acting Sergeant-major Sydney Edward Tanner, who is alleged to have participated in the riots in the city on the 14th ult.

Mr. R. Windeyer appeared on behalf of Major Davey, the prosecuting officer; and Mr. J. W. Abigail for Tanner.

Leave was given Mr. Abigail to call two witnesses who offered to give evidence on accused's behalf.

Joseph Francis, a foreman telephone mechanician, residing at Oatley, said that at about 7 p.m. on February 14 he saw the accused standing on a windowsill of the "Evening News" office. He blew his whistle, and, after the crowd had quietened down somewhat, he told them to play the game. In witness's opinion he was trying to get the crowd to go away. Several stones were thrown at accused, but witness could not say if he was struck. A few minutes later witness boarded a railway bound tram, and as it was leaving he saw the accused get on it. Witness then had a conversation with accused.

Mr. Windeyer objected to the conversation being admitted.

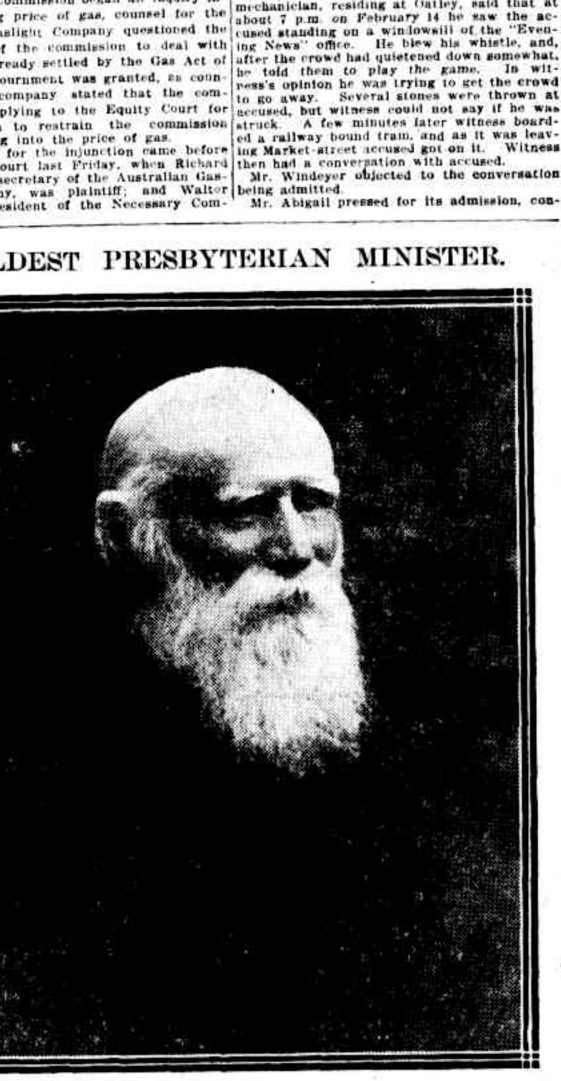
Mr. Abigail pressed for its admission, contending that the law of evidence permitted of such a procedure.

The Court upheld the objection.

Corroborative evidence was tendered by William James Crofts, who was with Francis at the time.

At the conclusion of the summing up by the Judge Advocate (Professor Peden), the president announced that the Court would adjourn to consider its finding. The Court will sit again to-day.

OLDEST PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER.



THE REV. ANDREW BARRON,

Whose death at the age of 91 years took place at Drummoyne on Friday.

LATE MR. G. S. TITHERADGE.

ESTATE VALUED AT £1623.

Probate has been granted of the will of the late Mr. George Sutton Titheradge, the well-known actor, who died recently at Vaucluse. Testator appointed Lachlan Beaton, of Macquarie-street, Sydney, and his wife, Alma Maria Johanna Titheradge, to be his executor and executrix respectively. He bequeathed his real and personal estate to his wife, and, after her decease, in equal shares to his children. The net value of the estate was sworn at £1623 7s 3d.

A large quantity of ladies' underwear, valued at £130, was stolen from the hold of the steamer Orsova, then at the Central wharf, between Thursday and Friday last. The stolen goods were the property of Grace Bros.

THE MENANGLE CAMP.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As it was rumoured at Menangle camp during the past week that it was published in some of the papers that everything was going smoothly at the new camp for the A.L.H. now being formed here, I would like to point out that this is not quite so, that, in fact, there is a great deal of discontent. The whole affair seems to have been, and is still, glaring mismanagement, for which I do not think the heads of the A.L.H. at the camp are quite to blame.

One of the most glaring mistakes is taking the Light Horse to an unprepared camp, and using them to grub and get ready generally what is presumably to be a permanent camp, thereby wasting their most valuable time, which could be utilised much better in training. To this nine-tenths of the men object strongly, as, during the past fortnight a lot of them have had very little training at all. This grubbing done in the manner it is may cost perhaps £200 per acre, when, had it been done by contract, about £10 per acre would have been the outside cost. This suits the lazy indolent (about one-tenth), as some of them say they don't care if it lasts six months, but the better class of the men who volunteered to fight for their country strongly object to the wasting of their valuable time.

In other matters there is great discontent showing itself mainly in the wasters, only representing about the one-tenth. In these matters, if it were not for the preponderance and influence of the more levelheaded, who object to the wasting of their time, there would soon be open rupture. The cooks in charge of the camp are to be commended and deserve greater consideration, as they are working under the most trying disadvantages. Should heavy rain come while things are as they are, it will simply be a question of go back to bread and bully beef, with not much chance of boiling a dixie for even tea or coffee, let alone anything else. Trusting this will hasten the responsible authorities to have things as they should be in a permanent camp, so that we may all get to active training, including the few wasters who don't want to.

I am, etc.,
AUSTRALIAN LIGHT HORSE.

The Belgian Government, says the "Petit Journal," is about to address a Note to the neutral States on the levy of £19,200,000 made by the Germans in Belgium. The Note declares that the contribution is contrary to the Hague Convention, and adds that, in any case, the requisitions made for provisioning the army of occupation can never have reached this enormous sum.

BUILDINGS AND WORKS.

PROGRESS OF THE TRADE.

Good progress is being made with the work at the new abattoirs, which are now practically ready for occupation. Supplementary works such as premises for canning, export work, and hide and skin stores will, of course, be going on for a considerable time yet, but this will not interfere with the use of the abattoirs for killing for local consumption.

At the Sydney University the School of Agriculture and the buildings for the organic chemistry department are almost completed. These works have been carried out by day labour, the cost being about £20,000.

The Fisher Library extension at the University is now well advanced. The walls of the cloister are finished, and the walls in the first floor story are well under way. This fine building is also being done by day labour.

Excavations are in progress behind the Treasury in Bridge-street with a view to extensive additions to the building. Plans for the alterations are not yet ready, and the extent of the proposal is not stated.

The work at the Zoological Gardens at Taronga Park will be sufficiently advanced by June to allow of the exhibits being transferred to their new home. This work is being done on the day labour system.

The works committee has recommended to the City Council that the requirements of the Improvement Act be relaxed to permit of additions to the infectious ward of the Children's Hospital at Camperdown being constructed in timber and iron.

RETURNED SOLDIERS MOVEMENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—While all must agree that it is well to take as speedily as possible some steps to at once supply a rallying centre for returned soldiers, I hope I am right in thinking that there are many who will agree with me that, ultimately, something much bigger might be done. May I definitely explain what I mean? Could not the movement be so organised that it should be the great national memorial of the war throughout the whole Commonwealth? Some such permanent memento of the part Australia has taken in the world-wide struggle will surely be suggested, and could it be associated with a worthier purpose than supplying for all time a rendezvous for Australians who have borne arms? Cannot we quicken our imaginations to conceive of a Commonwealth organisation to accomplish this purpose, having local committees in the several States, and also fine blocks of buildings to give visible expression to the main idea? Perhaps, too, under such a scheme some of the smaller proposals might be merged in the larger one. But why not have one great club in which quarters could be provided for both men and women, and provision made for their, at least occasionally, having joint gatherings for amusement or instruction by means of lectures, etc.? To such a movement the Federal and the State Governments could fairly be asked to give substantial financial assistance, and private munificence might also be confidently expected. And what better name for the whole association than the Anzac Club, in which returned soldiers, and their mothers and wives, would be given life honorary membership, and a large body of annual subscribing members would supply a considerable part of the needed management funds? The membership, too, could be made to cover the Commonwealth, so that a soldier, in whatever State he found himself, would be able to claim entrance and welcome to the Anzac Club. For such an institution it is not presumptuous to hint that the patronage of our King could be properly asked, and thereby a real fresh link be supplied to the Imperial bond which has now been cemented in Australian blood.

Next, it may be suggested that the scheme should be formally inaugurated by simultaneous public meetings in all our capital cities on April 25, the date of the historic landing at Gallipoli. That, in the Church's calendar is St. Mark's Day, and I earnestly trust that in the future St. Mark's Day will be to Australians what St. George's Day is to England and St. Patrick's to Ireland, and St. Andrew's to Scotland. Whatever were the consequences of the Gallipoli campaign it will have its imperishable place in the world's history as the occasion when Australia had her great baptism of loyal blood-shedding, and our men proved themselves possessors of the noblest attributes of manhood. Lastly, let it be noted that by some such national memorial the soldiers of Australia could be assured of having done something more, even, than gladly responding to the call of Empire, for it can be safely said that such a monument to their great achievements would prove a perennial inspiration to our nation. Our children's children would be impelled by it to develop national characteristics worthy of the forefathers who first secured a place in the sun for Australia.

SHI-NOLEUM LINOLEUM POLISH
Sole Proprietors THE PAGET MANUFACTURING CO. Australia

The easiest way to polish your floors is the best way, too

Until you try it, you will find it hard to realise that Shi-noleum is so good—especially if you have experimented with imitations of Shi-noleum or so-called "creams."

Shi-noleum is the original paste polish, and is faultless; it must be so, because once a housewife tests it she always uses it.

Shi-noleum is perfect for linoleums, wood floors, pianos, furniture, motor cars, tan boots, soldiers' leggings, etc., and leather goods of all kinds

No matter what you use it for—you will be delighted with it.

A little covers a large surface; it is extremely quick in action; it is easy to use, and different from "creams," cannot upset or waste.

Once you produce the brilliant Shi-noleum surface—which is non-slippery—a mere rub over with a soft cloth is sufficient to renew the shine for some time. Shi-noleum makes linoleum give double ordinary wear—and is most satisfactory at all times.

VALUE! FROM THE MILITARY STANDPOINT.

The essence of value from a Military standpoint is dependability, and this applies as much to an Officer's Uniform and Equipment, as to anything else with which he may have to deal, on either Home or Foreign Service.

And it is just this quality of "Austral" Military Outfitting, that recommends itself to Military Men. Judged from the Military standpoint, "Austral" Field Service Uniforms reach quite an exceptional standard of value. . . . . .

Not only have they the assurance of a high quality standard in every case, both of workmanship and material, but also the appreciable certainty of absolute correctness in every detail of strict Military requirement. . . . .

FRUIT DISEASES.

When visiting the irrigation area the Premier was requested by settlers at Mirrool to provide for the appointment of a fruit inspector independent of the Irrigation Trust. It was stated that the growers considered that the Government nursery required inspecting just as much as private orchards, hence the desire for an independent officer. The idea was that a fruit inspector attached to the Department of Agriculture should be appointed to watch the area. The idea has something to recommend it, although it should be immaterial to which department the inspector is attached, providing he does his work honestly. It is inconceivable that the administration would not support heartily any steps likely to keep the area clean of fruit diseases. The enormous advantage and gain that are secured by keeping a large fruitgrowing area free of disease are apparent. Should the irrigation area get into the same condition as, for instance, the County of Cumberland, the fruitgrower's revenue will be diminished probably 50 per cent., and his expenses increased to an even greater ratio. Rigid inspection and drastic regulations are necessary, and full provision should be made in this direction. As it is, needless risk appears to have been taken. It was stated at Mirrool that fruit diseased with scale was sold in the local shops. An orchardist at Yanco stated he obtained some citrus trees which were supposed to have been examined by two officers. They were passed as clean, but found after being planted to be affected with a scale. He was ordered to give the trees certain treatment, but no official ever visited the orchard to ascertain if the instructions had been carried out, or if the trees were clean. The new administration will require to see that matters are conducted in a vastly different manner to that if local and State interests are to be conserved.

THE CATTLE TICK.

It is very evident the authorities will be compelled to adopt more vigorous measures or allow the cattle tick to spread further and further south, with accompanying loss and inconvenience to stockowners. It is reported that recently there have been further discoveries of ticks in the Lismore district. Two farms near Dunoon have been quarantined. Some years ago ticks were found in the same locality. Ticks have also been discovered about five miles from Ballina, on the Lismore-Ballina road. These discoveries outside the quarantine area are disquieting, and prove it is time that the administration of the campaign against this formidable pest was made more effective. There are not enough dips in the area, and the staff is not large enough to be capable of doing the work necessary. Had Mr. Cowley's advice been followed some two years ago the position probably would have been better to-day. It is becoming more obvious that the State suffered a serious loss when that officer was compelled practically to resign because he could not secure equitable treatment. As it is the Minister for Agriculture is handicapped by lack of experienced practical advice, and it looks as if the stockowners risk losing heavily and continuously as a result.

CITRUS CANKER.

In view of the possibility of the introduction of citrus canker to this State in consignments of infected fruit, the Department of Agriculture recently suggested to the Director of Quarantine, Melbourne, that, as it seems to be impossible to adequately prevent the introduction of the disease by simply picking over shipments, the only satisfactory method would be to have a most careful inspection made of each shipment. Where signs of the disease are present, the whole consignment containing the infected fruit should be destroyed.

A reply has now been received intimating that instructions have been issued that any consignment showing evidence of the presence of canker is to be condemned. Inquiries have been made as to the extent of the spread of the disease, but there is no record at present available of the disease having been found in any country other than the United States and Japan. The department, therefore, issues a warning to wholesale firms against importing fruit from these countries.

CREAM GRADING SCHOOL.

In order to enable all cream graders and testers on the far South Coast to comply with the conditions of the Dairy Industry Act, a cream-grading school will be held at Bega Central Factory on Monday, March 20. The school will last for one week, and those desirous of attending should notify the Under-Secretary, Department of Agriculture, Sydney.

CITRUS CANKER.

Mr. John Hughes, St. Ives, writes:—The fruitgrowers of this district are very thankful to the "Herald" for the manner in which it made public the danger of citrus canker. Some little time ago it was stated by the authorities that citrus fruits, from all countries in which citrus canker was known to exist, would not be allowed to land in Australia. The only countries in which citrus canker is known to exist are Japan and America. Only the other week a large shipment of citrus fruit was landed in Sydney from America, and other shipments are to follow. Thousands of cases are landed, and in most cases every fruit is wrapped in paper. Are the inspectors going to unwrap each fruit, and inspect it singly, which is the only safe course; or are they going to do, as is usually done, open a case here and there, examine a few fruit out of the case, and pass the rest? That is only a pretence of protecting the growers. The fruitgrowers are indebted to America for some of the worst diseases ravaging their orchards. America won't receive our fruits, yet they are allowed to dump their fruit in the Australian markets. The citrus canker is said to be one of the worst of diseases. The time for planting citrus trees is now, and thousands more of citrus trees will be planted this season. Surely it is only fair to the grower that he should be protected from this threatened calamity. The only sure way is to absolutely prohibit the landing of citrus fruits from those countries in which citrus canker is known to be. We have been taking a big risk these last three months of having it brought to our shores. The citrus fruit growing is worth thousands of pounds to Australia, and surely the industry is worth protecting, and is of more consequence to the people of the country than a few shipments of fruit from America.

With regard to the above, we would point that by proclamation dated February 16 last the importation of citrus fruit from any country where citrus canker or Japanese canker exists is prohibited.

FRUIT DISEASES.

In regard to the statement made at the Wyong show by the president of the Erina Shire Council concerning imported fruit diseases, referred to in our columns on Friday last, the Director of Agriculture (Mr. G. Valder) states:—In reference to the remarks as to the flooding of our markets with American apples, these importations arrive at the time when local growers cannot supply the market, and that by the time Australian and Tasmanian consignments make their appearance Americans have ceased. Again, as to the alleged easy entrance of foreign importations, again there is no comparison whatever between the numerous and stringent conditions blocking foreign importations for the market and the little hindrance the local grower meets with. The departmental campaign so far applies only to district field operations, consequently the Government has hesitated to block growers from the market.

THE WHEAT POOL.

"Agricola" wants to know:—Is it not a fact that the date first fixed for the pooling of all wheat was December 1 last, as from that date millers were only allowed to purchase at the proclaimed export parity? If this was so, how is it that the date has since been conveniently changed to February 1, as announced in Parliament during the past week? In regard to the large quantity of wheat sent to Queensland during December and January, could Mr. Hall inform us whether this was purchased by the State or private individuals, or whether the wheat pool got the benefit of it? Is it not a fact that contracts entered into by farmers to deliver wheat in Queensland during December were stopped, as the pooling of wheat was then supposed to be in operation?

YASS AND DISTRICT.

YASS.—The soaking rains of the past week have done an immense amount of good to the pasturage. The fall was steady and penetrating, and the subsoil was reached thoroughly, and farmers have taken advantage of the fall to push forward with their ploughing. All along the Yass river frontage the paddocks for grazing are a picture to look at. Where, this time last year, there was not enough feed for a rabbit, and owners of stock were selling sheep at as low a price as 3s 6d, there is now a six-inch shoot of young grass, and, in places, it is higher, while the old feed has been freshened up. Both stockowners and cultivators of every degree are highly pleased with the prospects for the autumn and the winter. With the mild weather now prevailing, coincident with the penetrating fall, the feed will get such a strong hold, they argue, that the autumn growth will be sufficient to carry on the winter. At no time, for many years, have the chances ahead of the man on the land around here been so promising.

BATHURST FARM.

BATHURST.—In a statement relative to the operations at the Bathurst Experiment Farm, the manager, Mr. R. W. Peacock, mentions that the threshing of the main crops has almost been completed, a satisfactory return being recorded. The highest yields in the main wheat crop are being given by the Federation variety, which has reached 30 bushels per acre, while Cleveland is giving a return of 26 bushels to the acre. The yield in some of the experimental plots went as high as 35 bushels of grain and over three tons of hay. Algerian oats gave as high as 58 bushels to the acre, while barley also went satisfactorily high. The system adopted at the farm in regard to the manuring of wheat has been to apply 30lb to 50lb of superphosphate to the acre. The rainfall at the farm during the past year was well below the average, being under 19 inches. The good results indicated are, therefore, traceable to the fallow system, of which Mr. Peacock is an ardent advocate. The practice is to grow fodder crops one season and plough in October, leaving the land fallowed throughout the five summer months. The main cereal crops are sown about April. Mr. Peacock points out that the advantages of fallow are decidedly marked this season, in view of the dry November and the hot, scorching winds. Only those areas which had conserved moisture through fallowing were able to withstand the test. At the present time the areas at the farm are being sown for green winter fodder. Algerian oats are favoured, and this month is accepted as the most opportune stage for such growing.

DUBBO DISTRICT.

DUBBO.—The inspector to the Dubbo Pastures Protection Board, who has just returned from a trip through a large number of holdings in the west, states that there are a good many stock ailments. He found pleuro-pneumonia amongst 500 bullocks at a station on Spicer's Creek, and another outbreak not far from Dubbo. He also had to make a journey out west of Mungery, to investigate the cause of mortality amongst sheep there, and found the trouble to be caused by allowing the sheep to drink at a new flow of water too salt for watering purposes. Many parts of the district between Dubbo and Mudgee were very satisfactory as regards the rabbit pest, but there were some runs far from satisfactory, notably along the Talbragar and Spicer's creeks. Pastures were very dry, and going off, and water was scarce and failing on many runs where tanks and dams had to be relied on.

The inspector has also reported to the board that up to January 27 last the principal live stock depastured on lands within the board's control numbered 19,442 horses, 19,126 cattle, and 1,033,738 sheep. Up till the same period last year the numbers returned were 25,891 horses, 24,018 cattle, and 1,361,045 sheep. This year's figures showed a deficiency of 6449 horses, 4832 cattle, and 327,317 sheep. In view of the severe time the stockowners went through during the early months of 1915 he considered the present shortage of stock throughout the Commonwealth disclosed a position not so unsatisfactory as might have been expected, and he thought the figures he gave the board would compare favourably with those submitted by most of the districts in the State.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

BATHURST.—In his monthly report to the Bathurst Pastures Protection Board, Mr. C. R. Brett, the stock inspector for the district, stated that the pastoral conditions in this part of the State were fairly good, and that the recent rains should ensure grass and relieve any fears of a shortage of water for some time at least. Stock were in good condition, and commanded good prices. Following the issue of an official circular, reports were coming in of the general dipping of sheep. The rains had put the ground in good order, and ploughing operations were being carried on actively. Nearly 7000 sheep inspected for tick and sheep lice had been found to be free. The rabbit inspector (Mr. E. G. Lynch) mentioned that there was a decided spring in the grass in all places which he had visited during the month. All stock were in good condition, though grass had begun to get scarce just before the recent rains. The prospects for the winter months were now much brighter. Rabbits were again plentiful, and, having been unmolested during the past few months while congregated on the water frontages, had returned to the hills, ferns, and undergrowths. The board decided to take proceedings against seven landholders for failure to destroy rabbits.

BRANXTON.—Further rains have fallen, and the surrounding country and crops look beautiful.

CASINO.—There is just now a big demand for all classes of cattle, and many outside buyers are operating very freely, both at auction sales and privately. At Mr. J. B. M'Dougall's sale 1400 head of mixed cattle were sold, the proceeds running into between £5000 and £6000. The competition for milking cows and young steers and heifers was very keen. At Mr. Humphrey's sale over £1000 worth of cattle were sold. Milkers sold to £15, bulls to £42, two-year-old heifers to £7 10s, 12 to 18 months' old heifers £5 10s, poddies on the bucket to £2 1s, and poddies just weaned to £3 10s.

COOMA.—The lucerne crops in the Cooma district have been exceptionally good this year owing to the recent rains. This will provide plenty of winter fodder.

COONAMBLE.—The Agricultural Society has decided to postpone for a month the question of holding the annual show. It is desired to see whether rain falls in the interval.

YOUNG SHOW.

YOUNG.—The annual fruit show of the Young Fruitgrowers' Union was held on Thursday and Friday. There was a magnificent display of apples; also very choice grapes, pears, oranges, and other seasonable fruits, pronounced by experts to be equal to anything possible in the best fruitgrowing districts of the Commonwealth. Prizewinners were:—

E. Davidson six firsts and one second for apples, one second for pears, one first for quinces, and first for a collection of apples; T. Teacle, two firsts and two seconds for apples, first for almonds, first for dried quinces, and second for pears; Young and Ralli, two firsts and two seconds for apples, two firsts for pears; George Formby, one first and five seconds for apples, first for collection of fruit, first for collection of pears, first for peaches, two firsts and one second for plums, first for figs, first for sultanas; F. In jams and preserves, Mrs. F. R. Finn took twelve firsts and one second; Mrs. T. Teacle, five firsts and three second prizes; Mrs. Debnam and Miss Graham, one first and one second each; Mrs. Kinch and Mrs. Gratton, one first each.

There were 25 entries for Jonathan apples, E. Davidson being awarded first, second, and third prizes.

PICTURES AND OBJETS D'ART.

There is now on view at Mr. W. A. Little's central Pitt-street rooms, for auction sale at 11 a.m. to-day, an especially interesting collection of oil and water-colour paintings, bronzes, statuary, antique silver, and furniture. The art section is largely from the estates of two connoisseurs, the late Josiah Mullens and the late William Heyde. Many of the works exhibited were originally shown during various periods at the Royal Academy, London, as in the case of Lexden Pocock's beautiful water-colour drawing, "The Microscope," which was reproduced at the time in the Academy Notes, and W. H. Muller's large oil painting, "The Flower Seller," which dates back three-quarters of a century. Land and sea scapes which amply repay inspection are by William Cook, sen., Peace Sykes, C. Clust, Ruisdael, S. G. W. Roscoe, Walter Stacey, James Cafe, F. J. Aldridge, Neville Cayley, Conrad Martens (a large water colour of Norton's Basin, Cox's River, near Penrith), Julian Ashton, Nicholas Chevalier, Constable, R. A. G. Lambert, and various foreign masters. A quantity of antique silver from 1733 to the early Victorian period, beautiful tea and coffee and dessert services in sterling silver, hand-painted china, a violin by Alfred Heaps, at one time the property of Rivers Allpress, Chippendale furniture, and examples of Sheraton's skill, are all included in the collection.

My system of painless dentistry is painless from start to finish.

There is no pain when I extract, no pain when I drill, no pain when I fill. Only nervous patients can fully realise just what this humane treatment means. And, even THEY sometimes fear to put "painless" claims to a personal test.

This is a natural hesitancy—a feeling which I can thoroughly understand. But it is really groundless, insofar as my system is concerned. For years I have offered to present £5 to any patient who suffered the slightest twinge. The fact that it has never been claimed speaks for itself.

LANGER OWEN.

MUNITIONS WORK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I notice that there is still trouble and dispute over shell-making. It appears to be a great misfortune that everyone who can make a shell should not be allowed to do so. If one goes and offers his services unconditionally he is informed that he cannot be allowed to touch the work unless he has been five years at a lathe. It is only boys' work, and in England girls went into the shops, and in a few months were turning out better munitions than the men. Are these men not enemies to the nation?

I am, etc., ANTI-GERMAN.

THE PRIME MINISTER'S WELSH ORATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The Hon. George Black's reference in to-day's "Herald" to the Prime Minister's Welsh oration, is not quite correct. At an Eisteddfod, which was held in the Town Hall, Sydney, some 26 years ago, Mr. W. M. Hughes won the prize of £1 1s for an impromptu speech which was given in English. The subject was "Myself." This event, no doubt, constituted the Prime Minister's first public appearance in the Sydney Town Hall.

March 13. I am., etc., J. S. ROBYNS.

Trooper T. Donelly, 6th Light Horse, Machine Gun section, writes from Manly:—"Clements Tonic braced up my nerves, and I am on the way to a perfect recovery. I used it years ago, and am well aware of its merits."—Advt.

The King is drinking Lipton's Tea. Are you drinking with the King?—Advt.

TUESDAY, MARCH 14, 1916.

RUSSIA AND THE NEAR EAST.

There could not be better evidence of the spirit which the New Year has brought into the councils of the Allies than the two decisions of the Russian Government reported in our cables this morning. A few months ago there were dissensions among the Russian people, which were expressed among the Democrats by a certain amount of despondency and discontent, and among the extreme Conservatives by suggestions that Russia and Germany had many common interests, in their opposition to Western democracy. Both parties, in these circumstances, were accessible to German propaganda, which insinuated that too much of the burden of the war had fallen on Russian shoulders, and too little on those of their old rivals, the English. The first effective step to counteract these impressions was the retention in office of the Foreign Minister, M. Sazanof, whose resignation had been reported after the declaration of war by Bulgaria; the second was the decision of the allied troops to remain in Salonica after their original mission had been proved to be hopeless. At the time it was made that decision probably ensured the offensive movements of the Russians on their Balkan front and the continued preparations of Roumania. It has been the necessary prelude to the news of to-day, from which we gather that Roumania has either declared war herself or has committed an act of war by allowing Russian troops to pass through her territory. The second effective step of the Russian Government was the offensive movement in the Caucasus, under the Grand Duke Nicholas, which culminated in the fall of Erzerum. We read a few weeks ago of the manner in which that great victory was received at the meeting of the Duma. There was no sign of either external or internal dissension in the greetings addressed to the Czar, and afterwards to M. Sazanof. The members clearly noted the contrast between the circumstances in which they were dispersed at the end of their last session and those of their reassemblage. Then they were depressed by defeat and by the refusal of a Conservative Prime Minister to listen to the idea of the citizens taking any large part in the government of the country. Now the Czar had come to them just as he had come to his armies, to prove the unanimity of the nation. Then there was no news but of defeat, and no thought but of discontent with the effort of the Western Allies. Now the Foreign Minister spoke in praise of the English, and the news of the fall of the greatest stronghold of their ancient and inveterate enemy. To-day we hear of two decisions of the Government, both of which go to the absorption of the whole nation in the war and to strengthen its hopes of attaining by the treaty of peace a reward for many sacrifices.

The report of the concession of a part of Bessarabia, though not on the best authority, fits in so well with established facts as to be perfectly credible. In the bargaining to which Roumania, like Italy, submitted herself, Bessarabia, together with part of the Austrian province of Bukovina, was the price offered by the Central Powers as against Bukovina and the Hungarian province of Transylvania offered by the Allies. If the report is true, Russia has now added enough of her own territory to make an adequate price, provided the Allies can convince the Roumanian Government that they are going to win, and will therefore be able to make this offer good. Whether they will convince it depends, no doubt, like so much else, on the fate of Verdun, or on some early German offensive elsewhere. But the immediate object of M. Bratiano will be to see that there is sufficient help forthcoming to protect his country from the fate of Belgium or Servia. His past caution may assure us that he will not go to war without being so satisfied. He may find his protection in the troops already in Bessarabia, or in those who for months past have been fighting in Bukovina, or in the allied troops who would be ready to advance simultaneously with Russians and Roumanians. His recent conduct may be taken as a proof that he is prepared for an attack. His sale of grain to England, which was plainly a colourable transaction, and his cancelling of part of the sale to Germany, which was a very practical snub, are both acts of a man who was prepared to be attacked, and who would look forward to the recent fighting on the Danube as the necessary excuse for war.

The pledge given by Russia to the Armenians is the natural result of the triumphant progress of her troops. It is at the same time a symptom of the growth of liberal ideas in Russia and the most definite indication to Germany that her hopes of an Empire in Asia Minor are every day becoming more remote. Armenians have not always desired union with Russia or autonomy under Russian protection. Until a few years back the Armenians in Russia had grievances almost as serious as Turkish subjects. But since 1912, at least, when there was a Liberal Viceroy in the Caucasus and the Armenian bishops were received by the Czar at Petrograd, the Armenians have definitely looked to Russia as their hope of permanent safety, and their friend so long as they were kept under Turkish rule. It was knowledge of this feeling that caused Talaat Bey to begin the massacres last year, and to tell the American Ambassador that he was taking the necessary steps to make it impossible for any Armenian to utter the word autonomy for the next 50 years. The massacres were carried out with the tacit approval of the German Government, and the express approval of many representative men. It has been part of the German courtship of Turkey to approve of this system of extermination, under all circumstances. But in this case the practical type of diplomacy has proved the least effective. In all probability the alliance with Turkey cost Germany any hopes she may have had of an alliance with Russia. The Armenian massacres have now cost her her hopes of an Eastern Empire, and have immeasurably strengthened the Russian Liberal or anti-German party. The Russian scheme as now announced is to obtain control of the tableland which, backed up by the mountains of Zeitoun and the crests of Amarus and Taurus, commands the difficult passes by which both merchants and soldiers are obliged to pass in order to descend from the Anatolian plains towards Syria and the Valley of the Tigris and Euphrates. This new decree contemplates a division of Asia Minor, in which Great Britain shall retain the Persian Gulf and the lower sections of the rivers. Its accomplishment depends on the result of the war, but the fact that it has been made shows how much nearer the Allies are to that union which is essential to success.

OUR NEW POLITICS.

At Young last night Mr. Beeby opened the campaign for the Progressive Party, which has recently come to an amicable agreement with the Liberals under Mr. Wade. The speech so given must be read in conjunction with Mr. Wade's deliverances last week; and, while it may be possible for Labour critics to find irreconcilable differences between the two platforms, there is undoubtedly a disposition apparent in the framers to work to a common centre. Mr. Beeby has made a great deal of the welfare of the whole community, and he interprets this in terms of extended powers for the Federal Government, while insisting that the States shall be represented in the Senate on a population basis. Mr. Wade will not be found wanting when this question has to be faced, and neither leader will lack a hearing when it is claimed after the war that some adjustment is necessary. Under the present State Government we have to confess that New South Wales has given her enemies fresh reason for the contention that the Commonwealth must wax and the States must wane, simply because the burden of taxation threatens to become intolerable. Sooner or later we must study economy from a new standpoint. Every unnecessary expense will have to be cut down; and the war has shown clearly, if it has done nothing else, that two taxing powers covering largely the same ground must in time become impossible. It was always recognised that the Commonwealth would grow strong at the expense of the States, but this was to be a matter for some distant future. The war is steadily bringing us to realise that the welfare of the whole community will force all reasonable men and women to work together to secure efficiency in administration, and economy in expenditure, over the widest possible area. Mr. Wade and Mr. Beeby stand upon sound ground in thus being willing to think of common rather than of sectional interests; and in time of war no better basis of appeal could possibly be found for a general election. But Mr. Beeby is now speaking to a large body of primary producers, since he has become the ally of the Farmers and Settlers' Association. The man on the land is, therefore, through his own organisation, linked in with the supporters of a radical policy on the one hand and the more conservative Liberals on the other. It is a fine combination if true coherence can be reached, and of that there seems little doubt now that the way is being opened by a careful selection of seats to prevent overlapping. The successful avoidance of friction in this respect is one of the happiest signs of the new advance.

But in a country centre Mr. Beeby was bound to give the man on the land full assurance of his sympathy and understanding. He supports a vigorous policy of development, as does Mr. Wade, but still conditioned by the genuine wants of settlers, who must find a profitable market if they are to prosper. Everybody seems to be agreed in this connection that the duplication of our railways must proceed apace. The whole landed interest is concerned to have all obstacles to speedy and economical handling of its various products removed, and this can only be secured as our trunk lines are given the fullest chance of justifying their existence. Mr. Holman will ask whether his Government has not been doing this. But at the present moment the duplication of railways is not a first consideration. It does not command enough votes, as compared with running branch lines in various directions where constituencies lie to be captured or placated, or the progress already made would have been greater. Mr. Beeby, like Mr. Wade, believes in linking up trunk lines as well as in duplicating them, and one of the ironies of our present position is that prevalent drought throughout vast spaces of the west finds our woolgrowers still dependent upon the old system instead of having shorter cuts to relief country. Where land for settlement is concerned, Mr. Beeby's foot is on well-considered ground. As an erstwhile Minister for Lands he has studied the position thoroughly; and, while we have criticised him in the past, we are quite willing to admit that his knowledge and sincerity qualify him to advocate the planks of the Progressive Party platform, as adopted by the Farmers and Settlers' Association at its conference last year. Land settlement in the future must be our mainstay in the confusions and anxieties which are bound to follow the close of the war; and, unless the Liberals, the Progressives, and the members of the Farmers and Settlers Association are heartily united, the Labour Party will have a fine chance of continuing the present policy of indecision and half-heartedness. We only need to look at Yanco to understand the Government's position. It has already shown there that it cannot face large country issues in the right spirit, because political plasters are being laid upon a confessed open sore. The Murrumbidgee irrigation problem is a real touchstone of Government honesty and ability in the present crisis, and up to date the settlers do not feel that Mr. Holman and his colleagues are prepared to act promptly and strongly in rectifying the blunders for which they are undoubtedly responsible. The coming together of parties opposed to Labour will give another chance for dealing comprehensively with the land question in its various phases, and Mr. Wade and Mr. Beeby between them should be able to show the right way to a remedy for many existing ills.

FAIR RENTS COURT.

A strong protest is due against the extraordinary procedure yesterday in connection with the opening of the Fair Rents Court. There is no need here to indicate our loyalty to the law in making this comment, since a Court established by Act of Parliament is as much entitled to respect as a Royal Commission or any other instrument or entity which represents the will of the people. But it is quite another matter when the Attorney-General appears before the presiding magistrate, first, to congratulate him upon his appointment, and then to tell him, in effect, what Land Courts in Ireland offer by way of precedent to guide him. It is true that Mr. Hall deprecated any suggestion of what was to be expected from his Worship. But he had just delivered as truly a political speech as though it had been given for the hustings or from his seat in the Legislative Assembly. It was a plea in justification, no doubt; but it certainly reads like a call to the public to understand that the Government had erected a Court which was to do certain things in a certain way. Mr. Griffith, who followed his colleague, said that "if, after experiment, the Act under which the Fair Rents Court was constituted were found to require amendment the Legislature would not hesitate to introduce modifications or additions to make it of practical utility to the people as a whole." We cannot forget that the Fair Rents Court has caused a great deal of comment and attracted much lightning in the way of criticism. It is the outcome of an alleged demand that landlords have shown themselves rapacious, and that the poor and helpless among tenants have not been able to get fair play. This has been met by evidence, on the other side, of the difficulties and hardships inseparable from the ownership of houses, and, like the proposals for cheap bread, it has been alleged that the Government has only determined to secure cheap rents at the expense of its political opponents. We do not endorse either side in this comment, but just present the give and take of a purely party battle. Having obtained Parliamentary acceptance of its platform in this respect, the least the Labour party could do in the circumstances was to allow the Court to open without any appearance of prejudice one way or the other. But a general election is looming. Government stock has been steadily going down, and the Parramatta election seems to have made Ministers desperate. Two of them, at any rate, decided to make the precincts of the Fair Rents Court a political arena, and thence talk to the public in terms never aforetime used before either Judge or magistrate. This party appeal is the more unbecoming because the presiding magistrate could not very well protest. He is a Civil servant, whose future is in the hands of the Government; and, while Ministers would not dare to treat him with open violence, such as would appear in moving him summarily to some faraway town, there are ways in which Government displeasure may be shown against State employees who thwart Ministerial wishes or throw contempt upon such tactics as yesterday's speech-making. The public will take its own notes in this case. The Court is entitled to the fullest respect, and the presiding magistrate to every possible aid in carrying out the duties of a most difficult position; but for the Government to interfere in this fashion is to poison justice at its fount.

PERSONAL.

Mr. D. R. Hall, Attorney-General, left for Melbourne last evening on public business. He expects to return to Sydney on Wednesday.

Mr. John Harper, the Chief Commissioner for Railways, has recovered from his recent illness, and yesterday paid a visit to the head office of the department.

Captain W. W. Wilson, who has been a resident of Fiji for 40 years, and was for many years harbour master at Levuka, is at present in Sydney, en route to England.

Mr. W. E. V. Shaw, a son of Mr. W. E. Shaw, of Sydney, has been appointed officer commanding 52nd Battery Field Artillery of Canadian Expeditionary Forces with the rank of captain.

Mr. L. Gordon Cranne, general secretary of the Bombay Y.M.C.A., is at present in Sydney on furlough. Mr. Cranne was for some years assistant secretary of the Sydney Y.M.C.A., and under his leadership the Bombay association has made great advances, having at present four buildings in the city of Bombay.

Dr. Elizabeth Hamilton Browne, daughter of Major H. H. Browne, of Sydney, has cabled her father to the effect that she has been appointed to a military hospital for the British, with the rank of lieutenant. Dr. Hamilton Browne was well-known in Sydney, having prior to leaving for England held the position of superintendent of the Royal Hospital for Women, Glenmore-road, Paddington, and pathologist at Sydney Hospital.

Mr. H. S. Gullett, the Australian war correspondent on the western front, was welcomed back to Sydney yesterday afternoon by the president and members of the Australian Journalists' Association. A number of lady members of the association attended to meet Mrs. Gullett. The health of Mr. and Mrs. Gullett was proposed by Mr. T. Power, and drunk with musical honours. Mr. Gullett, in responding, gave a very interesting account of what he had seen of the military operations on the western front, speaking with quiet conviction of the general feeling—which he shares—amongst officers and men of the army, as well as of military experts, that the deciding ground of the war will be somewhere on that front. He was enthusiastic in his commendation of the French army, and from the fulness of his knowledge was able to introduce many touches of which people in Australia had not previously heard. At the conclusion of the formal proceedings an informal reception was held.

OUR WOUNDED.

KANOWNA DUE THURSDAY.

The hospital ship Kanowna, with sick and wounded soldiers for New South Wales and Queensland, will arrive at Sydney on Thursday morning, and will berth at No. 1 wharf, Woolloomooloo Bay. The number of men arriving is exceptionally large, and motor-car owners who will be required to lend their cars will be notified in to-morrow's issue. The officials of the Red Cross Society point out that on the last two or three occasions a number of motor car owners, who had agreed to provide cars, neglected to do so, thereby imperilling the smoothness of the transport arrangements. It is earnestly hoped by the society that all cars notified will attend on this occasion, as the number of sick and wounded to be conveyed to the hospital is the largest on record.

CATHEDRAL-STREET.

REFERENCE TO BOARD.

METHOD OF PROCEDURE.

The Minister for Lands states that he recognises that the question of representation before a local land board engaged inquiring into the closing of a road, such as Cathedral-street, is rather complicated.

The Minister's view is that such an inquiry should be as open as Parliament itself. But the Minister, in referring the matter to the Metropolitan Land Board to make a recommendation, is acting under the departmental practice as laid down by the Public Roads Act. The two sections of the Act under which Mr. Ashford intends having the question elucidated, whether Cathedral-street should or should not be closed, do not apparently, contemplate that the public, or the travelling portion of it, using any particular road, should have the right to be heard before the board on the question whether it should be closed.

Section 19 of the Public Roads Act reads as follows:—"If the Minister is of opinion that it is expedient to close any road or part thereof notice to that effect shall be published in the Government "Gazette" and in some local newspaper, and notice to the like effect shall be posted by registered letter to the owners or occupiers of all lands having frontage to such roads or part thereof (as the case may be) if their names and addresses are known. Such notice shall call upon all persons interested to set forth in writing addressed to the Minister within one month from the date of the publication thereof, any objections which may appear to them to exist to the closing of the said road, or part thereof."

Section 20 sets forth:—"After due consideration of all objections (if any), the Governor may, after the expiration of one month by notification in the "Gazette," close the aforesaid road."

The Minister says that if Cathedral-street is closed all of the space comprised within its bounds will be thrown into the public parks, with the exception of the top end of it, across which, it is contemplated, steps will be built leading into St. Mary's Cathedral. The Lands Department, he explains, cannot lease portion of a public park to anybody without passing a special Act of Parliament, but what is proposed in the present case is that a permissive occupancy shall be granted the Cathedral authorities of the top portion of Cathedral-street where it meets College-street and Boomerang-street. Under the Land Law, Mr. Ashford points out, such an occupancy can be terminated at any time.

THE "SYDNEY MAIL."

In this week's "Mail" is published the opening chapter of the "Story of the Red Cross in New South Wales." It is a story of wonderful organisation and marvellous achievement in the interests of the sick and wounded soldiers. Starting at the beginning of the war with a mere handful of workers, and without a penny of funds, the active membership of the society has grown to over 20,000, and it has been entrusted by the public with the disbursement of over £890,000. The article is accompanied by portraits of the president (Lady Edeline Strickland) and the past and present chairmen of the executive, Mr. Hanbury Davies, and Mr. J. O. Fairfax respectively. Another feature of the popular weekly is a large budget of excellent photographs of French troops at the Western front—pictures which are of special interest in view of the great struggle now in progress in the Verdun region. Among these is a portrait of General Petain. There are also illustrations in connection with the campaigns in the Carpathians, the Balkans, and Mesopotamia. The celebration by the Anzacs in London of Australia Day is the subject of some capital snapshots; and we are showing several Gallipoli heroes who were personally decorated by the King at Buckingham Palace. A striking photograph of Gloucester Hill, Gallipoli, taken on December 13, and showing the country all covered with snow, is eloquent evidence of the severity of the weather conditions prevailing immediately prior to the evacuation. The recent parade of reinforcements in Sydney Domain is the subject of some impressive pictures; and among numerous other interesting illustrations mention may be made of a night photograph taken during a recent Zeppelin raid on England, when one of the unwelcome visitors was soaring above Hendon.

DESTINY OF FIJI.

WANTS TO BE LEFT ALONE.

FEAR OF FEDERAL CONTROL.

"It would be no good for Australia and no good for Fiji if it ever came to pass," was the opening comment made by Mr. J. M. Hedstrom, M.L.C., of Suva, who is on a visit to Sydney, when invited yesterday to express an opinion on the revival of the proposal to annex Fiji to Australia.

"I notice," Mr. Hedstrom said, "that, according to a cable message, the Prime Minister of the Commonwealth (Mr. W. M. Hughes) stated in an interview in London that while passing through Suva he was made aware of the desire of a number of Australian residents that the colony should be merged in the Commonwealth. That may be so, as far as some young Australians in Suva are concerned. There was no kind of movement, or, if there is, it is a very small one. In making the suggestion they are prompted purely by sentiment, but can advance no solid argument in favour of it. If a referendum were to be taken on the subject in Fiji you would find that all the people with any real stake in the country were strongly averse to coming under Australian control. What we know of Australian administration does not encourage a desire to be governed by you. We do not say the system in Fiji is ideal—not by any means—but we would rather go on as we are than have Australia take us over.

"What can you offer us that is going to be any good to us? If you would give us free entry of our produce that would be a very fine thing, but you have your people in Queensland, the Northern Territory, and Papua to consider, and you are not likely to grant us such a concession. As long as our supply of labour continued we could kill Queensland and the Territory on all tropical products. But it is certain you would not let us do so. If it is to be our fate to be annexed by either Australia or New Zealand we would rather come under the wing of New Zealand, because she has no tropical possessions of her own to consider, other than the Cook Islands and Niue, which are very small. However, a disadvantage is that New Zealand's consumption is very limited. On the whole we would rather be left alone. We are happily free from quite a lot of the troubles which afflict you here."

Mr. Hedstrom went on to say that he felt sure if ever Fiji came under Australian control the flow of Indian indentured labour would cease. That would be a positive calamity. If the supply of imported labour was stopped they could not maintain the sugar industry as it was now. The biggest block to the advancement of the colony was the land policy. The British Government considered that the natives were the owners of the whole of the land, and the natives were very unwilling to throw it open for settlement. The total area of land in Fiji was 4,758,400 acres, and, according to Government estimates, only 135,055 acres were under cultivation. The Europeans considered that the Government, as trustees for the natives, should take over the administration of the unused and unoccupied lands, and make them available for cultivation. If Fiji was to continue to prosper there must be no interference with the labour supply.

"We have a lot of little problems which we can best solve ourselves, without the aid of Australian politicians," Mr. Hedstrom concluded, adding, "You have enough problems to be solved in your own tropics, without wanting the Pandora's box of them that Fiji in your hands would prove."

SPIT BRIDGE.

ESTIMATED COST, £43,000.

MR. CANN'S VIEWS.

The Minister for Works made a statement yesterday regarding the objections raised by aldermen at Manly against the Government proposal that property at the seaside resort should contribute towards portion of the cost of the North Shore Bridge.

Mr. Cann said that the tax would not amount to much, being three-eighths of a penny on the unimproved value of land. It was proposed that, if the five-elevenths of the cost, which was what would be borne by the landowners, were liquidated before 30 years, the tax would cease. Experience showed that public works greatly benefited property in their vicinity, and this experience would probably be repeated in the case of the North Shore Bridge.

However, Mr. Cann added, he was considering a proposal to build a bridge across the Spit, so as to link up Manly with the North Shore railway system that would converge at the North Shore Bridge. He found that a bridge at the Spit, to carry electric railway cars, could be built for £43,000, the interest on which would be less than the yearly upkeep of the two steam punts plying across Middle Harbour to-day. The traffic on those was very congested at the week-ends, and, under the circumstances, he was considering whether it would not be better to build a bridge. A bridge would enable the growing traffic on this main road to Manly to be more satisfactorily catered for than was the case under the present punt arrangements.

IMMIGRATION.

LONDON OFFICE CLOSED.

The Premier announced yesterday that the activities of the joint immigration office in London having practically ceased, it would be closed during the currency of the war.

The position was, said Mr. Holman, that Victoria was withdrawing from the joint control arrangement, and Mr. Percy Hunter, the superintendent of immigration for both States, was now returning to Australia after having wound up the operations of the office for the time being, and put things in train for eventualities when the war ceased.

PRISONER ESCAPES.

BAR CUT AT CENTRAL POLICE STATION.

Donald Fraser M'Pherson, also known under several aliases, escaped from the Central Police Station on Sunday afternoon. He is still at large.

Committed for trial on two charges of burglary in Randwick, a charge of breaking and entering at Vaucluse, two charges of breaking and entering jewellers' shops in the city, and on a further charge of shooting with intent to murder, and having a previous bad record, M'Pherson had been detained at the Central Police Station for the past three weeks, pending further charges being laid against him.

On Sunday afternoon he was the sole occupant of what was known as the "rising" yard, a small enclosed court usually used for exercise. At a quarter-past 4 o'clock he was seen by the officer on duty, but half-an-hour later there was no trace of him.

A displaced bar in the overhead caging and a length of rope over the gaol wall indicated how the prisoner made his escape.

By what means the bar had been displaced is not yet known, but it would be quite possible for M'Pherson to have reached it from the inside, and then to have cut through the bar, for it was only of gas piping. Once through the "caging" he evidently made his way to the wall fronting a side lane. The rope down which he clambered was left behind.

The police describe the prison-breaker as a thin to medium built man, 35 years of age, 5ft 7½in in height, with brown hair turning grey, and grey eyes. His face is scarred as the result of scalds, and is covered with pock marks.

Several escapes have occurred at the Central Police Station, which, by reason of its old-fashioned construction and position, is not really suitable for the detention of criminals.

STEAMER DESTROYED BY FIRE.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

The Newcastle Ferry Company's steamer Bluebell was destroyed by fire at 4.30 o'clock this morning while she was berthed alongside the Moore-street wharf at North Stockton. The fire had secured such a grip on the Bluebell that practically nothing could be done for her. She was eventually beached, and it was found that almost the whole of the vessel had been destroyed. The boilers are the only part that is likely to be saved. The cause of the fire is unknown.

POST BELLUM TRADE.

FRENCH ENDEAVOURS.

WHAT OUR ALLY IS THINKING.

III.

Perhaps more thought is being given to post-bellum problems in France than in any of the Allied lands. In that country there is a bitter determination to crush German trade after the war, or, if that is not possible, at least to see that Germany no longer benefits from commercial intercourse with her present foes. Right throughout France these problems are being discussed with patriotic fervour. Presidents of various Chambers of Commerce, bankers, leaders of industrial enterprises, and officials have all lent their aid, and excellent preliminary work has already been accomplished.

One of the most closely-reasoned and practical summaries of the position is that given by M. Joseph Geoffroy, President of the Avignon Chamber of Commerce. He points out that no policy of the Allies can be successful unless they are in a position to dictate terms to the Central Empires. As it is the conviction of the Allies that they will be in this position, it is desirable for the situation to be closely studied now. Apart from such political methods as the disarmament of Germany and the destruction of her political hegemony, every possible step must be taken to weaken the industrial and commercial position of the Central Empires. M. Geoffroy regards the dissolution of the German Federation as axiomatic, and proposes that each of the various States should be given a constitution based on universal suffrage. In the other enemy countries, also, he advocates the establishment of a similar Constitution, which would make it impossible for the power of declaring war to rest on the will of a single individual. As to the economic situation, he insists that after the war, until we are industrially organised, we shall be forced to make use of German manufactures, and to ignore this would be a profound error. He continues that his view is that a Customs organisation should be established on the following basis:—

(1) Treaties between the Allies, facilitating trade exchange on mutually favourable terms, almost free trade, if not absolute free trade.

(2) Treaties imposed on the Austro-German group, imposing heavy Customs dues on manufactured goods entering the Allied countries, and favouring the entry of our products into the nations of that group.

(3) The Austro-German group to be forbidden to favour the export of its manufactures by export bounties. The insertion in the treaties of a clause allowing the Allies in cases where such bounties were given to counterbalance them by a fresh corresponding duty.

(4) Reciprocity to be refused by the Allies. That is to say, they should have the opportunity of establishing export bounties into the countries of the Austro-German group without that group having the right to compensate them by equivalent Customs dues.

(5) Russia has hitherto been a wonderful market for Germany. She should remove in favour of the Allies the difficulties she opposes to merchants or manufacturers who wish to trade with her.

Whatever the conditions imposed their value will only be assured if the political situation of the Austro-German group is radically modified. We must not lose sight of the considerable differences that exist between the organisation and tendencies of France and England on the one side, and those of Germany and Austria-Hungary on the other. While our democratic methods of Government, which are constantly being improved, tend to dissipate authority and make the establishment of stable economic institutions difficult, our enemies are living almost under absolutism. In their country an ambitious and greedy plutocracy surrounds the Emperor, and only dreams of conquest and domination so as to satisfy its lust for luxury and enjoyment. The people is kept one one side. Its advice is either not listened to or is despised. Alone the Emperor and his entourage govern and act. It is easy to realise how pan-Germanism has been born, and to understand the danger it is to liberal nations. This is the state of things we must destroy. The people must recognise its duties, but also its rights. Any economic organisation based on treaties that is not preceded by the radical transformation of sovereignty in the Austro-German nations would be doomed to failure. Princes and their entourages will violate their pledged word and their bond, but the peoples will respect them.

All this is very excellent as far as it goes, but it must not be forgotten that Germany cannot be overcome by these means alone. In neutral markets she will be able freely to compete, and it is there that the clash will be felt in its severest form. How can the Allies best counter German methods in these free markets? That aspect of the case has not been overlooked in France. M. Conteur, president of the Mans Chamber of Commerce, supplies a useful corrective to the outpourings of his more optimistic countrymen. He says:—

"If all these measures were mercilessly applied with all the deliberate coolness of our hatred they might, perhaps, protect us and prevent the Germans from penetrating among the Allies united in an economic alliance. They will, however, have no effect on neutrals and on nations that are indifferent to the struggle. It is not possible to exterminate Germany, and once and for all to kill her trade and industry. She must live to suffer and to make expiation. Further, with what resources will she be able to pay the formidable damages that we shall exact? Our object is to dominate her, and to prevent her regaining the supremacy she previously enjoyed here as among other countries. It will be a hard task to do this. Our merchants and manufacturers must realise that they will only succeed by an intensive development of their means of production and activity, that the time of routine methods has gone by, that modern machinery is indispensable. We want not speeches, but energetic action. Let us not expect everything from the State, but let us help ourselves. Let us copy Germany in so far as she is superior in the methods that have made her strong, in her long patience, her hard work, her division of labour, her methodical organisation, her well-thought-out preparations. Let us travel. Let us present our products ourselves in the language of the country, and not through some intermediary. Let us study the ground, and not be afraid of sowing in order to reap. Let us improve our transports, establish new routes by land and sea. Let us create institutions that will live long credit. The programme is a vast one. We must face it frankly, and once our plan is adopted we must carry it out unflinchingly and methodically. Let us act at once, and let us act not like the Germans, but better than they can. We must organise ourselves."

Napoleon used to say, says M. Roulleaux Dugage, the Deputy (member of Parliament) for the Orne:—"That in order to fertilise Egypt not a drop of Nile water should reach the sea. To adapt that famous expression to our present point of view, one may say that not a centime of our national fortunes should ever again go to be engulfed in German coffers. When the profits they have gained from us come to light it is in the form of shells and terrible engines of destruction, by help of which pan-Germanic madness wishes to enslave the world. It is our lack of foresight that has made the wealth of Germany, and we are paying the price twice over. Let us at least know how to profit from the terrible lesson of the war, and once we have tamed the monster let us not forget to load it with chains."

A number of other suggestions have been made by Frenchmen in business. For the sake of brevity we have summarised some of the most important, as follow:—

(1) The imposition of heavy entry dues upon German shipping.

(2) Prevention or the limitation of the export of raw materials to Germany.

(3) Encouragement of publicity societies against Austro-German merchandise.

(4) German subjects should be debarred from ownership of Allied soil.

(5) Naturalisation laws should be amended as to make it almost impossible for an enemy subject to change his nationality without conscientiously changing his allegiance as well.

(6) Labour legislation should be better adapted to the needs of trade and industry.

(7) Buy nothing from them, sell nothing to them, never employ a German.

(8) Never allow the public mind to forget how this race of rogues have repaid our hospitality.

WOMEN IN BAKERIES.

AUCKLAND, Monday.

Master bakers have applied to the Arbitration Court for permission to employ women and girls in any capacity. The bakers agree to pay them men's wages when they can do the work of men.

FORT VAUX.

GERMAN ATTACKS.

GREAT LOSSES.

ROUMANIA.

IMPORTANT AGREEMENT.

The German losses at Douaumont, in the Verdun region, are said to pale into insignificance compared with those sustained last week.

Though greatly outnumbered, and choked by smoke, gas, and dust, the French held every position of value.

A Rotterdam message states that the German fleet is preparing to move, the naval staff believing they can deal Britain a severe, if not a deadly, blow.

Roumanian troops have come into conflict with Bulgarians and Austrians near Rustchuk, the casualties on both sides being numerous.

A Bucharest message states that an important agreement has been reached between Russia and Roumania. The former has agreed to give Roumania part of Bessarabia.

There is dismay in Bulgaria as regards the future. Bulgar-German relations are strained.

Lively operations are reported from the Italian front. The object, it is considered, is to prevent Austrian troops reinforcing the Germans at Verdun.

The Republicans and Socialists in Portugal are uniting to defend the Allies' cause.

Brazil is excited over Germany's declaration of war against Portugal. There have been demonstrations in favour of the Allies.

MR. HUGHES.

BOLD STATESMANSHIP.

LONDON, March 13.

The "Morning Post," referring to Mr. Hughes, Prime Minister of Australia, states that he has dared to say what no British statesman has said since the war. If Mr. Hughes goes boldly along the road on which he has started, he may be instrumental, under Providence, in saving England and the Empire.

But the paper warns him against the allurements of freetrade and pro-German syrens. It advises him to get into touch with the manufacturers. They are fighting the same battle, and might form a useful alliance.

THE DAY'S PROGRAMME.

Mr. Hughes's principal appointments to-day are with Mr. Lewis Harcourt (First Commissioner of Works) and Mr. Walter Runciman (President of the Board of Trade). He is also to confer with sugar and freight agents. He will visit his old school, and will probably spend the evening at Lambeth Palace as the guest of the Archbishop of Canterbury, presenting letters from the Archbishop of Sydney.

Mr. Hughes has not had an opportunity to confer with the Agents-General, but will shortly be considering the arrangements for the new High Commissioner's Office. It is still hoped that the States will realise the advantage of being under the one roof in such a prominent and magnificent building.

APPEAL TO NEUTRALS

PEACE CONFERENCE DESIRED.

STOCKHOLM, March 12.

A conference of representatives of the United States, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Switzerland has issued an appeal to neutral governments to call an official conference, with a view to hastening a just and permanent peace.

The manifesto says:—It is now nearly two years since the most dreadful catastrophe which has ever happened the human race fell upon Europe. The opposing Powers are of about equal strength, and both groups claim to have inexhaustible reserves of men and wealth. Therefore, no human foresight can tell when hostilities will end. Some people believe that Europe is plunging into an abyss. If it be possible, by making an effort, to shorten the war by a single day, and so save millions of lives, would not the effort be worth trying? History will severely judge the neutral nations if they remain mere spectators of this gigantic and heroic struggle. They ought to respond to the behest of the belligerents and pass judgment. The belligerents are concerned about the opinion of the neutral nations.

VERDUN.

FIGHT FOR VAUX.

TREMENDOUS LOSSES.

PARIS, March 13.

The German losses at Douaumont pale into insignificance compared with those of last week.

German artillery for nine hours searched Vaux Plateau with a deluge of steel, and trench mortars dropped huge land torpedoes amid the houses of the village; but the French, deafened by the uproar, and choked by smoke, gas, and dust, held every position of value.

Though the enemy outnumbered them by six to one, it took four distinct assaults before the first German column won shelter for a small group in ruined houses.

Five times the enemy endeavoured to leave the shelter afforded by the ruins of a church.

Each time the machine guns cut through them like a scythe, men falling in swathes. The fight died down from sheer inanition.

Desperate as the fight for the village was, it was deadlier round the fort, owing to the precipitous slope. The Bavarians climbed on one another's shoulders and hung on angles of rock. Repeatedly the human pyramids they formed collapsed into a shapeless mass under the French fire, and ditches ran red.

Finally the German generals stopped the butchery.

WHY THE FRENCH RETIRE.

Military experts emphasise that General Petain is not prepared to sacrifice thousands of men uselessly, as the Germans are doing. No French retirement since the outset has been due to inability to hold the position, but because it was not worth holding at such a cost. Further retreats are foreshadowed, if considered necessary, for the same reason, inasmuch as General Joffre knows how men count and will increasingly count in the final phase of the war.

FRENCH AIRMEN ACTIVE.

PARIS, March 12.

A communique states: We carried out a destructive fire on the enemy's works at Mauricourt (southward of the Somme) and in the Nouvron region.

There have been no infantry actions northwards of Verdun, but the bombardment is rather violent on the two banks of the Meuse. Our heavy artillery shelled the enemy assembling in a ravine north of Poivre Hill and German batteries west of Louvemont. We wrecked trenches in the Senones region, and brought down an aeroplane in flames in our lines, near Theiscourt, which is the eighth brought down by Lieut. Guynemer. Six of these fell in our lines, and two in the German lines.

We brought down an aeroplane in our lines at Dom Basle (in the Argonne). The occupants were killed. We have fought 18 aerial actions in the region of Etain, routing our adversaries.

LATEST OFFICIAL NEWS.

The latest French communique states:—"Active artillery fighting occurred at Bois des Buttes. There was intense bombardment at Bethincourt, also east of Douaumont Fort, in the region of Vaux Fort. The enemy has not attempted since Friday to reach Vaux Fort Plateau.

INITIAL PLOT UPSET.

It is reported from Paris that a German artillery officer, who was made a prisoner, states that the Germans brought into battle hundreds of heavy guns. They advanced in a solid block, intending to blast their way through the French lines. They had mountains of shells in order to fire unceasingly until the gunners were exhausted. But the French artillery rained shells on the German batteries and forced them to disperse. The German supplies became disorganised. The infantry met with resistance, the desperateness of which astonished the German commanders. Thus the whole of the initial plan was upset and the Germans were forced to resort to isolated attacks.

DESPERATE COURAGE.

A French officer says it is impossible not to admire the German bravery in the attacks on Fort Vaux, which they tried to capture, regardless of the fusillade. With desperate courage they helped one another up steep slopes until they fell.

NEW STAGE FOR ALLIES.

It is reported from Paris that a review of the 21 days' fighting at Verdun says: The hopelessness of German victory means that a new stage in the war is opening for the Allies, who will take over the offensive when they reach the top of their strength.

BRITISH FRONT.

LONDON, March 12.

General Sir Douglas Haig reports:—

We exploded three mines eastward of Vermelles with satisfactory results. The artillery on both sides is active about Albert, Hulluch, and Ypres.

The enemy sprang four mines near Hohenzollern Redoubt, but little damage was done to our trenches. Grenade fighting ensued, the casualties being small. The enemy shelled our trenches at Loos and Bois-Grenier. There has been a heavy bombardment by both sides about Ypres.

Some British soldiers who were loading a munition train near Rouen dropped a case which exploded and caused a fire. Those handling the case were killed, and the fire spread to two waggons.

GERMAN CLAIMS.

LONDON, March 12.

German official messages state:—

We exploded mines and occupied the craters north-eastwards of Neuville, in the Artois region.

The enemy unsuccessfully attacked the sector westward of the Meuse, but did not reach our new positions on heights eastward of the river.

There are only violent artillery actions in the Woevre. Our prisoners have reached 26,700; we have also captured 189 guns and 232 machine guns. The French repeatedly attacked at Obersept, but did not gain their former positions. They were repulsed with bloodshed.

COLONEL REPINGTON'S VIEWS.

LONDON, March 13.

Colonel Repington, the military correspondent of the "Times," in reviewing the whole situation, remarks that the Germans have bluffed us well.

The Egyptian campaign has fizzled out, he says, and there are only three or four weak German divisions south of the Danube, while there are not fifty divisions fronting the Russians. All the rest, with the available guns, have flowed back to France.

The Germans have also had their illusions spoilt by the relatively easy Russian successes. They thought the Meuse was a Dunajec and Verdun a Kovno. The rush tactics of Generals von Mackensen and von Beseler have broken down before Verdun.

General von Falkenhayn, believing that the Allies would simultaneously attack in the spring or summer, forestalled us, and 118 German divisions confront us. General von Falkenhayn can use 25 divisions at Verdun, and as it would be contrary to the German theories to leave the remainder idle, a second attack may open elsewhere.

THE RUSSIANS.

GERMAN TRENCHES TAKEN.

PETROGRAD, March 13.

A communique states: The enemy on our western front near Boersmunde threw large-calibre mines on our trenches. We attacked at the village of Le Tatche (on the Dneister). Despite the enemy's violent fire we invaded their trenches.

VARNA AGAIN BOMBARDED.

PARIS, March 12.

Advices from Switzerland state that the Russians have again bombarded Varna (the Bulgarian port in the Black Sea).

A Russian communique says: Enemy submarines attacked two of our torpedo destroyers while reconnoitring near Varna and blew them up. Lieut. Pustchin and portion of the crew were saved.

LIBERATORS OF ARMENIA.

PETROGRAD, March 13.

It is authoritatively stated that Russia intends to liberate Armenia from Turkish misrule.

The troops will strike the Baghdad railway route at Ras-el-Ain, and cut off Baghdad from the rest of the Empire.

A Russian communique says: We occupied the town of Kirind (130 miles east-north-east of Baghdad).

ROUMANIA.

SHORTLY INTERVENING.

GERMAN OPINIONS.

AMSTERDAM, March 12.

The Berlin newspaper "Vossische Zeitung" says:—"It is expected that Roumania will shortly decide to intervene, favouring the Entente. The Roumanian Minister will shortly return to Sofia with instructions which will decide the future relations of Bulgaria and Roumania."

German correspondents admit that Roumania is now closer than ever with the Entente.

BORDER INCIDENT.

LONDON, March 13.

The "Daily Mail's" Odessa correspondent states that Bulgarians attacked a Roumanian vessel on the Danube north-eastward of Rustchuk, and an Austrian gunboat fired machine guns. Roumanian troops replied.

There were numerous casualties on both sides.

AGREEMENT WITH RUSSIA.

The Bucharest correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Agency says that Russia has signed an agreement, allowing the passage of war material to Roumania, eventually supplying her with these, and has also agreed to give Roumania part of Bessarabia.

ITALY'S CAMPAIGN.

VIGOROUS BOMBARDMENT.

AMSTERDAM, March 12.

An Austrian communique states:—The Italians all day and night are vigorously bombarding our positions on the Doberdo Plateau, the bridgehead at Gorizia, and the southern portion of the town.

An Italian communique states: We heavily bombarded the whole of the Isonzo front, wrecked the enemy's defensive works, and dispersed reinforcements.

ROME, March 13.

Operations have been impeded owing to persistent bad weather, with heavy snow.

After a bombardment at the Isonzo, Italian infantry ploughed through deep snowdrifts and attacked the enemy positions with grenades. An enemy detachment in support was caught by well-adjusted artillery and machine gun fire.

The Italian activity is interpreted as being intended to prevent Austrians reinforcing the Germans at Verdun.

SALONICA.

THE ALLIED POSITIONS.

FURTHER STRENGTHENED.

LONDON, March 12.

The "Daily Chronicle" correspondent at Salonica states that the Allied positions continue to be extended and strengthened. Zeppelins do not venture near, but are sometimes seen at a distance. Aeroplanes also are afraid, as the French recently brought down two enemy machines. Everybody is convinced that the enemy will not attack Salonica.

News from Bulgaria indicates dismay as regards the future, and that Bulgaria is becoming directly opposed to the war.

The Bulgar-German relations are not improving. The Bulgarians regard their own part in the war as wholly victorious. They are tired of waiting for a German victory so as to enable them to regard their victory as final. Disputes among the staffs have resulted in all the Bulgarians being withdrawn from the front line.

BRITISH HEROES.

INSTANCES OF GALLANTRY.

LONDON, March 12.

The publication of long lists of winners of Distinguished Conduct Medals is eloquent proof of the splendid spirit of the ranks. Many instances of self-sacrifice and coolness in the most acute danger have been made known.

One of the most notable deeds was that of Lance-corporal Bates, of the Berkshires, who showed conspicuous gallantry. Going out to the front line, he brought in an officer who was wounded in the throat. Bates observed that the officer was dying of suffocation. He found a straw and forced it down his throat, thus enabling the officer to breathe and suck water from a bottle. He survived.

GERMAN FLEET.

PREPARING TO MOVE

A ROTTERDAM STATEMENT.

LONDON, March 13.

The "Daily Mail's" Rotterdam correspondent states that the German fleet is preparing to move, acting on the theory that, if Germany is to lose the war, she will lose her fleet, and therefore its destruction must first cost the enemy an enormous sacrifice.

The naval staff believe that they can deal Britain a severe, if not a deadly, blow. They hope, with the aid of their super-submarines, to strike effectively.

The Germans' loss of submarines during the last few months, it is added, has been greater than they care to confess. The main difficulty is the lack of efficient crews.

PORTUGAL.

PARTIES UNITE.

TO DEFEND ALLIES' CAUSE.

LISBON, March 12.

The majority of the newspapers enthusiastically agree with the war attitude of Portugal. The Republicans and Socialists are uniting to defend the Allies' cause.

FEELING IN BRAZIL.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 13.

Germany's declaration against Portugal has excited public opinion. Enthusiastic street demonstrations have been made in favour of the Entente.

The "Epoca" says that the great majority of the Brazilians will help Portugal and the Allies all they can.

AUXILIARY CRUISER

MINED AND SUNK.

LONDON, March 12.

The Admiralty announces that the auxiliary cruiser Fauvette (2644 tons) has been mined and sunk on the East Coast. Fourteen lives were lost.

The Fauvette was a steamer of 2644 tons, owned by the General Steam Navigation Company, Ltd. She was built at Middlesborough in 1912 by Sir Raylton Dixon and Co., Ltd.

INVASION OF EGYPT.

"NO LONGER POSSIBLE."

LONDON, March 12.

The "Daily Chronicle" correspondent at Salonica says that an invasion of Egypt is no longer regarded as possible.

It is admitted that the Russian advance has changed the whole face of the military problem in the Near East.

THEIR FIRST FIGHT

SOUTH AFRICANS IN EGYPT.

ALEXANDRIA, March 12.

The South Africans had their first fight in Egypt on February 26, at Agagia. After four days' march westward of Mersamatru aircraft reported sighting a considerable number of the enemy with Turco-German officers. The South Africans in the face of fierce shelling led the way over undulating ridges with little cover. Men were dropping right and left, yet none wavered. They valiantly advanced with short rushes, and drove out the enemy precipitately.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LONDON, March 13.

A German seaplane was sighted off North Foreland (on the coast of Kent), at midday. British aeroplanes from Dover drove off the intruder.

The "Daily Express" says that surprise is felt at the resignation of Major-General S. S. Long, Director of Supplies and Transport, whose work has been one of the master successes of the war.

ROTTERDAM, March 12.

The police have seized 10,000 kilos of cocoa at Maas station. This cocoa was originally purchased at 21d, and was then augmented by one-fourth of cocoa skins and finally sold to a German at 52d a kilogramme.

WAR NOTES.

ROUMANIA AND THE ENTENTE.

Once more Roumania has advanced to the very forefront in the war situation. The responsible statesmen of that Balkan kingdom have all along allowed it to be understood that Roumania would enter the war when a point in the struggle was reached whereat her intervention could achieve the maximum effect. And in all their public utterances they clearly implied that the intervention would be on the side of the Entente. But all along they have been emphatic in declaring that they and they alone must be arbiters as to when the moment for action had arrived. On several occasions some of our readers have been misled by too-enthusiastic foreign correspondents into believing that that moment was dawning, and at last it came to be accepted that Roumanian intervention would certainly not take place until the Allies were at the top of their strength, and Russia particularly was in a position to undertake a big sustained offensive. The Allies must now be very rapidly approaching their maximum strength, and Russia should shortly be able to enter upon the desired offensive; and on top of this now comes a series of news items, all of which embody evidence tending to show that Roumania is about to enter the struggle.

STRAWS IN THE WIND.

In the first place, we were told yesterday that Roumania, "with a view to supplying the needs of her own army," had seized one-half of the 100,000 waggon loads of cereals recently sold to Germany. The Central Powers have made desperate efforts to secure all the grain that that State could possibly export, and, with a lively knowledge of this fact, Britain stepped in a little while ago and "bought" a very large proportion of the harvest, the delivery of the grain to be made after the war. This move provoked extremely vigorous protests from Germany, and Roumania smoothed matters over by selling Germany herself 100,000 waggon-loads of grain. The fact that half of this consignment has now been seized before it could be delivered must inevitably be read as a very definite straw in the wind. Then we have the statement of the "Vossische Zeitung," which says it is expected that Roumania will shortly intervene on the side of the Entente, while German press correspondents in Roumania all admit that the Balkan State is now "closer than ever to the Allies." Then, again, we get the news through the Bucharest correspondent of a reputable British newsagency that Russia has signed an agreement allowing the passage of war materials to Roumania, and undertaking eventually to supply her with these, and that she has also agreed to give Roumania part of Bessarabia. If there was the slightest doubt about the Roumanian attitude nothing like even the first part of that agreement could be conceivable, and as to the second part, Russia, who has hitherto firmly resisted Roumania's requests for a portion of Bessarabia, would not be likely now to give up the territory without some very important quid pro quo. There is just the remotest possibility that such an agreement might be arrived at in consideration of Roumania allowing a free passage for Russian troops through her territory to Bulgaria; but as the Central Powers would certainly look upon such a pact as an act of war on the part of Roumania the possibility is indeed so remote as to be hardly worth consideration. Finally, we have the report of the Bulgarians attacking a Roumanian vessel on the Danube, an attack in which an Austrian gunboat joined, and which was resisted by Roumanian troops, to the end that there were numerous casualties on both sides. Such an incident does not necessarily mean that war is inevitable; but it is a pretty clear indication of the pass to which things have come. Reviewing the whole quartette of items, we are forced to the conclusion that the situation, as it is represented to us, is far more indicative of a prompt Roumanian intervention than has ever before been the case.

EFFECT OF INTERVENTION.

As to the effect the entry of Roumania into the war would have, this aspect of the matter has so frequently been discussed that a detailed restatement is not now called for. It is sufficient to point out that it would at once increase the Austro-German front by over 400 miles—as represented by that portion of the Roumanian frontier which marches with the Austrian border; that it would at one point afford an excellent starting ground for a move against the flank of the Austro-German armies in Bukovina and Galicia; that there would at once be launched a formidable blow against Bulgaria by Russian and Roumanian troops from the north, and that this would be the signal for a forward move on the part of the Allied army now cooling its heels at Salonica. With Roumanian intervention and a free passage southward for Russian troops the Balkan situation would soon undergo a dramatic change in the Allies' favour; and the great artery connecting the Central Powers with Turkey should before long be severed—a consummation that would have the most far-reaching effect upon all the Ottoman campaigns.

NOT ANOTHER SERVIA.

There is one aspect of Roumanian intervention which, if that desirable event becomes a fact, it is sincerely to be hoped the Allies will examine with the greatest care. The entry of the Balkan State is certain to provoke the extreme anger of the Central Powers, and it is by no means unlikely that they will seek to punish her in characteristic fashion. Verdun has shown the Germans that the possibility of breaking through the western line is at least very much open to doubt; although they continue to batter away there they must by now be entertaining very definite fears as to their success. If the whole thing comes to nought, it will be more than ever desirable that some big German victory should be achieved by hook or by crook. And in the circumstances, it is quite probable that they will get together one more of their great battering-ram concentrations and launch it against the little new belligerent of the Balkans. To march against Roumania and crush her as Servia and Montenegro were crushed, would go far towards salving, in a political sense, the grievous wounds of the past month. From both military and political motives it would be well worth while standing purely on the defensive against Russia and France in order to strike an overwhelming blow to this end. And although Roumania will represent a far tougher proposition than Servia or Montenegro, and it is just possible that the Roumanians on their tremendously strong western frontier could, with some help from the Russians, hold up a big Austro-German attack, still the whole position demands that not the smallest chance should be taken in this matter. The Allies must be prepared to act promptly if there is the merest sign of a formidable thrust against Roumania, and particularly is it encumbent upon the Russians to see that the most generous assistance is immediately available, even if it is given at the expense of plans elsewhere on the front for the time being at least. But it is so obvious that a serious invasion of Roumania by the Austro-Germans would be in the highest degree detrimental to the allied cause, that it is hardly conceivable that in the light of past mistakes every phase of this matter has really not been carefully thought out and planned for.

THE WESTERN FIGHTING.

Judging by the only official report to hand there has been something of a lull in the infantry fighting in the period covered by this morning's news from Verdun. Intense artillery fire is being directed against the French positions on both sides of the Meuse, but, after the tremendous infantry attacks of the past few days it looks as though the condition of the unfortunate attacking troops demanded some slight breathing space. We cannot, however, accept the lull as an indication that the battle is waning. It will probably be followed by a more ferocious outburst than ever. If the French can continue to hold their ground in their present remarkable fashion, then there must come a time when such a lull will represent the definite slackening-off of the German attack; for this sort of fighting cannot go on for ever. But the Germans have now so deeply committed themselves to Verdun that for the present at any rate, a further effort to achieve success seems inevitable. And we have no reason to believe, on the facts as they stand, that the French are going to give any appreciable amount of ground in the main sector of the fighting. One cable this morning says that some military experts in Paris foreshadow further retreats on the part of the French in pursuance of General Petain's policy of conserving his numbers; but we are inclined to take this as referring to the west of the Meuse, where all along we have spoken of French retreats as to be expected after the maximum losses have been inflicted upon the Germans. On the east of the river, in the neighbourhood of Douaumont and Vaux, the French are now defending a very powerful line, and one which, if the Germans occupied it, would place our Allies at a great disadvantage in holding up a further advance upon Verdun. Unless the long-sustained tornado of high-explosive shell from the German heavy artillery eventually renders the French positions absolutely untenable, we expect to hear of General Petain endeavouring to hold this particular part of the front till the very last.

THE CONTINENTAL RUBBER COMPANY.

INTERESTING APPLICATION.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

An application was made to Mr. Justice Isaacs at a special sitting of the High Court to vary the remuneration of the controller of the Continental C. and G. Rubber Company Proprietary, Ltd., under the provisions of the Trading with the Enemy Act.

The Court in November last made an order appointing as controller of the business of the firm Frederick George Wilson, who has associated with him four deputy controllers in various capitals where the company has branches.

Mr. Starke appeared to support the application, and Mr. J. R. Macfarlan for the controller to oppose.

Mr. Starke said that from the commencement of the controllership Mr. Wilson was personally to receive £3 3s a day on six days weekly, the deputies in Sydney, Brisbane, Adelaide, and Perth £150 per annum, the chief clerk in Melbourne £260 per annum, and the caretaker in Melbourne £50.

An affidavit by the secretary of the company stated that the only business now conducted by the company was the collecting of outstanding accounts. There was considerable money in the bank, £110,000 being on fixed deposit. Unsold stock remaining in Australia amounted to £80,000.

It was contended that the remuneration was excessive for the work done, and Mr. Starke said he proposed to ask that the officers in the other States be dispensed with.

His Honor stated that he would like to have the view of the Crown on the matter. Did the Crown for public safety think that if the remuneration was reduced they would not get as good service?

Mr. Macfarlan said he would approach the Crown Law Department on the subject.

The case was adjourned until Tuesday.

RECRUITING.

EX-SERVICE MEN AGAIN.

A BUSY DAY.

At Victoria Barracks yesterday 182 men volunteered, of whom 133 were accepted.

Over 100 recruits had faced the enrolling officer at the new recruiting quarters in the Australian Army Service Corps shed, Victoria Barracks, by midday yesterday, and they presented an extraordinary variety of professions and trades, not to mention one or two men who had been in the navy and army in previous years.

Among the civilian occupations represented were those of cream carter, two farmers, one publisher from a city newspaper, a plumber's assistant, a saddler and harness maker, a couple of hairdressers, a scrub-cutter (said to have come from French's Forest), a storekeeper's clerk, a storeman, an architect's assistant, and two horse drivers off a city firm's vans. There were also carpenters, a case maker, brickmaker, and a man who had seen active service with the Devons, representatives of whose territorial battalions have recently been seen in Sydney. The Devonshire Regiment itself—the 11th foot—is generally known as the "Bloody Eleventh." This nickname was bestowed on it from the fact that in 1690 the regiment was serving in Dublin, and, owing to very bad meat being supplied to the regiment by the contractor the men swore that if it still continued bad they would hang the butcher; the meat did not improve, and the men did hang the butcher to one of the hooks in his own shop.

Other civilians who came forward included a straw hat blocker, a station overseer, a jockey and gasfitter, a boilermaker and clerk from the Board of Works; a bank clerk, a farrier, and a news vendor. Another hairdresser was among the applicants, together with a bricklayer, a farm hand, a fitter and burner, two photographers, an accountant, a men's outfitter, a shipping clerk, an engineer draughtsman, and a cabinetmaker. There were also several labourers, a civil engineer, an electrician, an electrical engineer, and an undergraduate of the Faculty of Law from Sydney University, a machinist, an indent merchant, two postal assistants, and a shopman. A well set up ex-member of the Royal Engineers also wished to get back to the army again. This regiment is commonly referred to as "The Mudlarks," and never has the nickname been more applicable than in the present trench warfare. The ex-soldier was followed by a station jackeroo from Rockhampton way, a letter carrier, and a professional boxer. These in turn made way for a grazier, a general dealer, a clerk from the Water and Sewerage Board, a railway employee, a coppersmith, a teamster from the black soil plains, a dental student, and a man from the Royal Navy, who had served on several ships now "somewhere in the North Sea." After the handyman came a packer, a foreman timber inspector, a hatter and mercer, a poultry farmer, a telephone switchboard attendant, a boat builder (useful for the State Aviation School), a steward off a South Coast and Illawarra boat, and a rope worker.

WHERE TO INQUIRE.

Persons making inquiries with regard to men who have enlisted, and who may be in one of the camps in this State, should make their inquiries at the old recruiting office on the western side of the barrack square at Victoria Barracks, and not at the new recruiting office in the A.A.S.C. building.

THE SLINGSBY CASE.

APPEAL COURT'S DECISION.

LONDON, March 13.

The Appeal Court has decided that the Slingsby child is illegitimate.

[On February 3 of last year Mr. Justice Hargrave Deane delivered judgment in favour of the petitioner in the legitimacy suit brought in the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division, which raised the question of the right of succession to large estates in Yorkshire. It was alleged that the wife of the present holder of the estates had passed off as her own lawful child the son of another woman. The petition was made under the Legitimacy Declaration Act, 1858, by Charles Eugene Edward Slingsby, of Scriven Park, Knaresborough, Yorkshire, an infant, through his guardian, Charles Henry Reynard Slingsby. The petitioner prayed for a decree that he was the lawful child of Charles Henry Reynard Slingsby and Dorothy Morgan Slingsby, and that he was therefore tenant in tail male in remainder expectant on the death of his father of the Slingsby estates. The respondents and parties cited, uncles of the petitioner, alleged that the petitioner, "so far as regards Charles Henry Reynard Slingsby and his wife, was a wholly suppositious child," and had been falsely passed off since 1910 as the lawful child of Charles Henry Reynard Slingsby. The parties cited were Mr. T. W. Slingsby and Mr. A. P. Slingsby. His Lordship found in favour of the petitioner.]

BREAD AND FLOUR.

FIXING OF PRICES.

REPLY TO MR. HALL.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Replying to-day to the criticism by the Attorney-General of New South Wales (Mr. Hall) as to the prices of bread and flour fixed by the Federal Ministry, the Acting Prime Minister (Senator Pearce) said that it was not correct to say that the Federal proclamation proposed to reduce the price of wheat to the millers by 4½d per bushel.

"It will not be the proclamation that reduces the price to the millers, but the decision of the Wheat Board, on which the New South Wales Ministry is represented," remarked Senator Pearce. "As regards the price of flour, that has been fixed for the present by the Commonwealth Government (when its proclamation was issued) at £11 8s, after full investigation by the various agencies at the disposal of the Government, but the Government has advisedly made the further consideration of this price and the price of bread matters to be investigated by the Prices Adjustment Board that is to be appointed. I may inform Mr. Hall that it is not my intention to sit in my office in Melbourne and fix prices throughout Australia. One of the duties of the Prices Adjustment Board will be to make adjustments for the various districts, and in this regard we propose to approach the Governments of three of the States where boards are already in existence, with a view to getting their co-operation and assistance. New South Wales is one of those States.

"I have looked up the minutes of the proceedings of the conference of State Ministers of Agriculture and Commonwealth representatives, who met on February 22 and 23, in regard to Mr. Hall's observation that an agreement was made to the effect that the States should fix the price of bread, and I find that a resolution was agreed to that a flat rate of 4s 9d per bushel on trucks at the port be charged for wheat for internal consumption within the States comprising the wheat pool, and that in making the announcement of the reduction it was stated that the conference decided to reduce the price of wheat to 4s 9d, as from March 1, 1916, the idea being that bread should be sold at 7d, or less, the four-pound loaf. It will be seen from this that no mention is made of the State fixing the price of bread. In fact, it is absurd for Mr. Hall to say that any such agreement was come to, as Western Australia, for instance, has not the power to take action with regard to the fixing of prices, legislation on that matter having been rejected by the Upper House. The Commonwealth did not bind itself to take no action, nor did the States agree to take any action."

Asked when the Federal proclamation giving effect to the prices of bread and flour already determined upon would come into operation, Senator Pearce said that he was not yet in a position to say.

THE MASTER BAKERS.

AN INTERSTATE DEPUTATION.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

This afternoon representatives of the Federated Master Bakers' Association waited on Senator Russell, and protested against a standard rate of 6½d being determined for sales of bread over the counter.

The president of the association (Mr. Dyer) said the cheaper bread could be retailed the better it was for the bakers, but the cost of bread had to be based on the cost of production. If cheap bread was to be supplied it could only be done by reducing the cost of production. A reduction in the cost of production was not possible except by cutting down the expense of manufacture, and that would entail a loss of employment to the operatives. There should be an investigation into the costs of production before any selling price was fixed. When the master bakers were before the Necessary Commodities Commission some time ago it was shown that the manufacturing cost of bread was £9/16/3 a ton. The Attorney-General of New South Wales (Mr Hall) had come to the conclusion that a reasonable cost for everything outside of flour was £9/2/4 a ton. By adding on the price of flour it could be plainly seen that bread could not be sold profitably at 6½d. Then it had to be considered that the cost of production and delivery differed in the various States. If 6½d were the fixed price for bread sold over the counter, it would rapidly become the trade price for delivery from the carts. It was true that bread was selling at 3d in densely populated parts of New South Wales, but the flour had been purchased at £7/5/ a ton. The price was 4d in all the suburbs.

Senator Russell: This Government does not want cheap bread based on sweating.

Mr. Dyer: Besides the increases in wages, which had to be paid, the bakers had to meet with a reduced trade owing to day baking. The reduction in the consumption of bread due to day-baking was one loaf for each customer in a week.

Mr. F. Reid (N.S.W.) said that, with respect to the price of wheat, if the farmers got 5s 6d a bushel for export from this season's big harvest it would be a fair thing for them to take 3s 6d a bushel in New South Wales. The Federal Government should not intervene to raise the price artificially against Australians, who had a right to get it at 3d a 2lb loaf. With a price of 4s 9d fixed to them for wheat, the millers should produce flour at £11 a ton.

Mr. J. Thomas (Adelaide) said the bakers were mostly philanthropists. There was no trade with so high a proportion of bad debts. With flour at £11 8s a ton, and the manufacturing cost of bread at £9 2s 6d a ton, the product at 6½d would be £18 2s 10d, or a loss of £2 7s 8d a ton.

Mr. A. J. Kirton declared that the Government was robbing the people in the bakery trade. If the Government had not intervened the price of flour, wheat would to-day have been 2s 3d or 2s 6d a bushel, which would be is more than farmers expected to get for it, or £612,500 in the aggregate. Flour could be sold at £8 5s a ton, and bread at 6d a 4lb loaf. Our own people should be fed before outsiders. The farmers were bleeding the people.

Senator Russell, in reply, said that this year's was a most bountiful harvest, and it was natural that the people had been asking for some time why such extraordinarily high prices should rule for bread. The answer had been made that the Government had to co-operate in the transport of wheat, and that the London parity had to be realised for it. The London parity, however, was not determined by production but by the lack of shipping facilities throughout all parts of the world. Therefore, the parity in London was not a sound basis for the determination of the prices of goods in Australia. In fixing a price for wheat the Wheat Board considered that the farmers had a bad time last year.

A Voice: What about the bakers?

Senator Russell: There could be no doubt about it that bread was too dear.

Though there were strikes over the cost of living, though the master makers had admitted that the price of bread was too high, though the wharf-labourers refused to work, there was no answer to the demand for cheaper bread. The Federal Government thought that it was about time that justice was meted out to the people. A volume of material was available to the members of the Ministry before they took action, and they decided not to delay, but to fix a standard price for bread. He was aware there were immense difficulties in delivering bread in some districts. The Government wanted to fix a fair price for delivery over the counter. Immediately this price was proclaimed boards would be set to work to fix prices for delivery. He did not think that the shop price need necessarily be the delivery price.

Mr. T. Passfield: Will you defer fixing the shop price for bread until the delivery price has been fixed?

Senator Russell could not commit the Government, but the representations that had been made that day would be fairly brought before the Cabinet. He wanted prices fixed that would be fair to the consumer, and that would allow a reasonable profit without anyone in the industry being sweated.

HELP FOR FRANCE.

RED CROSS GOODS.

LADY GALWAY'S PROPOSAL.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

Lady Galway, as president of the South Australian division of the Red Cross Society, says that a keen desire has been expressed by many circles and individuals to help the French. Lady Galway said to-day:—"We have goods in hand in Egypt. We have suggested that Lady Helen Munro Ferguson should cable to Egypt to send the Australian Red Cross goods to France. The matter will be discussed at a meeting in Melbourne on Tuesday. The South Australian division wishes that 500 cases should be despatched as a gift from Egypt to France. The French were very short of goods before, and this tremendous battle of Verdun must have strained their depleted stores."

PROGRESSIVES.

NEW POLITICAL PARTY.

MR. BEEBY OPENS THE CAMPAIGN.

TRENCHANT CRITICISM.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

YOUNG, Monday.

The campaign of the new party in State politics, to be known as the Progressives, was opened here to-night by Mr. G. S. Beeby, ex-Minister for Lands in the Labour Ministry, before a large and enthusiastic audience in the town hall. The Mayor (Alderman Rabbett) presided.

Asked if there was any special significance in the choice of the Burrangong electorate for this occasion, Mr. Beeby replied that the farmers and settlers' organisation, which was the nucleus of the new party, was particularly strong here, and the choice was made as a compliment to that fact. At the last State general election the voting was very close. Mr. Burgess, the Labour party Whip, had a majority of only 42 votes. In the actual polling at the booths Mr. Trethowan, the farmers and settlers' candidate, led by seven votes, but Mr. Burgess pulled up and just won on the count of absent voters' ballot papers.

During the day about 50 delegates attended a meeting of the district council of the Farmers and Settlers' Association, which bodies throughout the State are constituted on almost exactly similar lines to the electorate councils of both Labour and Liberal parties. At this meeting Mr. Beeby was asked to stand as the progressive candidate for Burrangong, three other candidates who were nominated for selection, including Mr. Trethowan, offering to stand down. Mr. Beeby declined the offer. It was subsequently learned that he will probably contest one of the Riverina seats now held by Labour. To these council delegates Mr. Beeby stated that a definite arrangement had been come to between the Progressives and the Liberals for the former to contest nearly twenty country seats, with their own candidates, their own organisation, and on their own platform. It was hoped that the platforms of the Progressives Liberals would be brought into line on important points before the elections ca round. The Progressive party, however, w to maintain a distinct entity in politics, b where they were not running candidates the were under a definite obligation to support the Liberals. This obligation was likewise imposed on the Liberals. The selection of the Progressive candidate for Burrangong had been postponed till June 1 to allow time for the completion of negotiations with the Liberals.

GOVERNMENT'S FAILURES.

Mr. Beeby had a splendid reception. In addition to outlining the policy of the new party, he dealt trenchantly with the administration of his late colleagues in the Labour party. "The bungling methods," he declared, "have gone a long way toward killing the principle of legitimate State enterprise and State control of combines or monopolies." An even worse feature, he added, was that their irresponsible meddling in the matter of fixing prices was having the effect of killing private enterprise and destroying incentives to increase the productivity of the State, which was the only hope for the country if it was to be kept from a ruinous stagnation and disastrous depression as an aftermath of the terrible financial and human strain of the war. (Cheers.)

"Everyone admits," he went on, "that during the present period of grave national peril Governments carry exceptional responsibilities, and should not be subject to mere destructive criticism. It is to be expected that they will make mistakes, and will often have to carry blame which would not be placed on them during normal times. Australian Governments generally at the outset of the war were sincerely offered non-party co-operation until the crisis was over. Unfortunately, many of them did not respond to the offer, but have taken advantage of the war to push on with ill-considered experiments. As a general election is approaching we will directly be called upon to determine whether the policy and methods to which this country has been committed are to continue during the life of another Parliament. I have no hesitation in entering political warfare again on this issue, and in using my voice and influence to establish and maintain a co-operation of all sections of the people who are opposed to a Government which has from the outset so lamentably failed to realise the seriousness of the crisis and to estimate the tremendous difficulties which we must face after the war. The maxim adopted at the outset—business as usual, strike as usual, spend as usual—could only have emanated from men without any conception of State-craft or from men who were too tired or too lazy to think. To persist in that policy to-day is almost criminal. It is quite apparent that the perils of the Empire are greater to-day than they were two years ago, and that, as each month of strife and loss occurs, the dangers of the aftermath of the war increase. The Government's utter disregard of what we have to face in the future is a most serious matter.

THE FINANCIAL POSITION.

"In two years Europe has used up four thousand millions of liquid capital. If the war ended to-day it would require another thousand millions for repairing the visible damage. When the war is over the only country which will be in a position to lend money to the rest of the devastated provinces will be America, and American investors will be able to command a rate of interest for money which will make the continuation of our present borrowing boom impossible. The Australian War Loan will for a long time absorb all local surplus capital. Before many months Australia must become financially self-contained. We will be unable to look abroad for borrowed money, and unless some system of continuing development with local resources is devised we must face a long term of unexampled stagnation. With that must come a big reduction in the spending powers of the community, and a limitation of consumption. To just blunder on by borrowing odd millions at ever-increasing rates of interest until Great Britain says definitely, 'There is no more,' and at the same time by legislation and administration perpetually to discourage and check private enterprise, is national suicide." (Cheers.)

THE STIFLING OF PARLIAMENT.

It was astonishing, he said, to notice how the State had been committed to many new ventures without real discussion in Parliament. Notwithstanding the safeguards that were supposed to exist as to the expenditure of more than £20,000 on any project without the sanction of the House, by all sorts of ingenious devices matters had been smuggled through, and the House had been bound to agree on account of the actual expenditure of some of the money involved before discussion. In all directions the new theory seemed to be that the Government of the day was free from Parliamentary control, and that Parliament existed only to carry out its decrees.

"A few weeks before the country was committed to the Norton Griffiths scheme, for instance," he continued, "it was well known that a large number of the Government's own supporters were opposed to it, and that, if a vote of Parliament were taken, it would have been rejected by a substantial majority. To-day the scheme is in operation. Nobody seemed to know exactly how it was done. If the people themselves could have had a direct vote by referendum the proposal would have been contemptuously rejected by the State. But in spite of both people and Parliament, a project which, to quote the words of the 'Worker,' had not a redeeming circumstance, and considered from any angle and with the very best intentions was absolutely repulsive to any democratic principle, had been foisted on the country. The one advantage the State was supposed to reap from the scheme was that Norton Griffiths and Co. would find the necessary £10,000,000 of loan money for completing certain works, but when the agreement was published it was found that all they were obliged to do was to assist in the flotation of loans. They do not even agree absolutely to underwrite them. If the money market makes borrowing impossible in Great Britain, Norton Griffiths are not bound to find the balance of the £10,000,000. They draw a 5 per cent. commission on the money expended on public works controlled by them. The one return they give the State is the services of certain engineers, who could just as easily have been obtained by private bargaining, and Norton Griffiths collect their 5 per cent. on the salaries paid to these engineers. The administrative cost of public works has been largely increased. The work is being done no better and no more expeditiously, while the national credit has been besmirched in order that a nebulous syndicate, with a nominal subscribed capital of a few pounds, may draw a princely income from the State. (Cheers.)

LIQUOR AND GAMBLING.

"Parliament and the people had been fooled," he continued, on the liquor and gambling issues. The plain truth was that in Australia the people drank too much, and in wartime particularly, where every nerve should be strained to get increased efficiency and output, special regulation of the drink traffic was necessary. All other countries in the world took steps to regulate the traffic. The New South Wales Government ingeniously dodged public demand on the matter for 18 months. "They yield to pressure now, and offer to take a referendum—not from any sincere desire to deal with the question, but because, as they cynically admit, their attitude has lost them considerable political support."

Closely allied with the drink problem was the other patent fact that in Australia we gamble too much, and devote too much attention to sport and recreation. During war time some attempt to limit opportunities in this direction was necessary, if only to convince the people of the seriousness of the present position. The totalisator and a substantial tax on race meetings particularly would have checked gambling opportunities, and, at the same time, would have provided a substantial sum, which could have been earmarked for charitable purposes. Yet the Government tried to appease the public in this direction by compelling the bookmakers to put penny stamps on their betting tickets.

TIME FOR CONSIDERATION.

Concluding his speech, Mr. Beeby declared that the direction in which they were drifting would bring them ultimately to social chaos and financial ruin. It was necessary to turn their attention at once to some definite scheme for handling the crisis that must arise within a very short time. His only desire was to appeal to the country to settle down seriously to consider the position.

Mr. A. K. Trethowan, vice-president of the Farmers and Settlers' Association of New South Wales, also spoke.

ANTI-GERMAN CAMPAIGN.

A DEFENCE MINISTER'S ATTITUDE.

WELLINGTON, Monday.

Mr. Payne, the member for Grey Lynn, is circularising members of Parliament, urging the holding of an early meeting for the purpose of demanding that Mr. James Allen resign the Defence portfolio. Mr. Payne complains of the Minister's attitude towards the Women's Anti-German League, declaring that Mr. Allen is hostile to their suggestions for the suppression of German trade. Mr. Payne demands that a more tactful and reasonable member of the Reform party should be appointed to the Ministry for Defence, to secure a more strict inquiry into all matters pertaining to defence, especially the granting of commissions to men of alien birth or descent.

Peirce, who died in December last from wounds received in the trenches while fighting in Flanders, had distinguished himself in the field on December 19. Lieut.-Colonel Haselgrave writes: "Had he lived he would have received the Military Cross, and I much regret that his decoration cannot be given to you, owing to the fact that the V.C. is the only posthumous decoration awarded. We are very proud that he earned a Military Cross by his gallant conduct, and it will, I am sure, be some consolation to you to know that fact."

PRIMARY PRODUCERS' UNION.

LISMORE, Monday.

A decisive step towards the formation of a great union of those interested in the dairying industry was taken at Alstonville today, when a meeting of over 300 dairymen from all parts of the district resolved unanimously to form a union of primary producers, with a view to joining forces with similar organisations throughout the State.

REFRESHMENT SHOPS.

DEFENCE ASSOCIATION.

Mr. J. T. White presided yesterday at a meeting of proprietors of confectionery, fruit, and refreshment shops, held at the School of Arts, the object being to take steps to oppose the demands of the Shop Assistants' Union, to limit the working hours of assistants in confectionery and fruit shops, to 6.30 and 9 p.m. on alternative days.

Mr. Wegg Horne said that if the board granted the hours asked for shops which depended upon evening trade would be ruined. If the application were successful, proprietors would have to do all the serving themselves, unless prepared to pay overtime rates after 9 o'clock.

The chairman said that the time was opportune to establish an employers' defence association. About 300 employers were affected.

It was decided to form a Confectioners and Fruiterers' Masters and Retailers' Association. Mr. J. T. White was elected chairman, and Messrs. Charles Cowley, John Lee, W. H. Keene, George Prentice, Arthur Cowley, and Joseph Lopez were appointed as a committee.

INTERNED PRIESTS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Referring to-day to the complaints made in Sydney by Archbishop Kelly regarding the treatment of interned priests, the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) said that he was having a report prepared on the matter.

SALES OF WHEAT.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

According to an official statement issued by the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Hagelthorn), the sales effected under the wheat scheme represent a sum of £3,865,000, while £14,127,000 has been paid in respect of certificates for wheat delivered by farmers.

The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Hagelthorn) announced that the Australian Wheat Board had disposed of six sailing ship cargoes to-day. Five were for French ports, and the prices ranged from 66s to 67s per quarter, or about 5s 7d per bushel. The remaining cargo, for which 61s 6d per quarter had been obtained, would be despatched to South Africa.

FAIR RENTS.

A NEW COURT.

OPENED BY THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

The Fair Rents Court, set up by the State Government to deal with disputes between tenants and landlords in regard to house rents, was officially opened yesterday in the No. 2 Arbitration Court, Queen's-square. The bench was occupied by Mr. Jamieson, S.M. There was a large attendance of the public, and at the advocates' table the Attorney-General (Mr. Hall) and the Minister for Public Instruction (Mr. Griffith) were seated.

The Attorney-General, in opening the Court, said it embodied a new judicial institution, which was unique in the experience of the Australian people. He tendered his congratulations to Mr. Jamieson on his appointment to preside over the new court. Proceeding, he said, "The experiment which begins to-day will be watched with the keenest interest, not alone in this State, but throughout Australia, and, indeed, the older countries of the world. Students of social problems, not less than rack-rented tenants, will interest themselves in the history of this Court, and whether or not the development of our judicial systems is to extend to the trial of questions not hitherto brought before Judges and magistrates will, to some extent, be settled by what transpires in the Fair Rents Court. No doubt our judicial system, as it exists to-day, has caused from time to time considerable criticism in its development."

The Attorney-General gave a general resume of the establishment of Land Courts in Ireland in 1881, during the Gladstone Administration, and mentioned that since they were set up rents of 360,135 holdings, comprising nearly 11,000,000 acres, had been judicially fixed. These rents were fixed for the statutory term of 15 years, and resulted in a reduction in rent amounting to about 20 per cent. In Scotland also rents were controlled by a judicial body, in so far as it applied to crofters' districts (Crofters Holdings Act, 1886). Rents amounting to £82,790 had been reduced by £21,587 by the Commissioner set up by this enactment. It was further explained by the Attorney-General that the practice of fixing rents by means of a judicial authority was found to have been so satisfactory in the case of the crofters that Parliament decided in the year 1911 to extend the system to all the small farmers north of the Tweed. (Small Landholders (Scotland) Act, 1911.) It might be claimed that the Act had received the general approval of the landowners and their tenants, and had done a great deal to encourage the best use of land by small holders.

In conclusion, Mr. Hall said: "I am far from suggesting that these substantial reductions indicate what is expected of your Worship in this Court. With interest increasing, cost of labour and material high, probably a wholesale lowering of rents would very soon bring greater misfortunes to tenants than it would avoid, but it is hoped that as arbitration courts have made it impossible for the mean and grasping employer to overreach his competitor by securing cheaper labour, so the meaner and more grasping section of our landlords will be repressed and their powers to grind the last sixpence out of their unfortunate tenants taken away. If your Worship can prevent further increase of rents, and can make the standard which now exists between the more decent section of landlords and their tenants general, then this Court will have justified, and more than justified, the effort and agitation which has preceded its establishment.

Mr. Griffith said that if, after experiment, the Act under which the Fair Rents Court was constituted, were found to require amendment, the Legislature would not hesitate to introduce modifications or additions to make it of practical utility to the people as a whole.

In replying to the congratulations of the Ministers and solicitors, Mr. Jamieson said that his duty might be fraught with difficulties at the outset in setting up a code of procedure, but it was quite plain what principles the law were aiming at, and he hoped that the Court would justify its existence. Whether that would result in the anticipations of those responsible for the measure being realised remained to be seen. Parliament had done its best to steer a course that would be fair to all, and he would use his best endeavours to carry out the intentions of the Act.

FIRST CASE HEARD.

REDUCTION IN RENT MADE.

The first case called in this newly-constituted court was one in which the plaintiff, James Fingleton, M.L.A., applied for a reduction of the rent he paid (18/ per week) for a 5-roomed house in Ruthven-street, Waverley, to the owner, William Donald. The plaintiff conducted his own case, and the defendant was represented by Mr. E. R. Abigail.

William Donald said that he was the owner of the house occupied by the plaintiff. The present weekly rental was 18s a week. This had been increased during Mr. Fingleton's tenancy, but was a fair rent for the house. The plaintiff paid no rates or taxes. The house was in good repair, and it contained five rooms in addition to the kitchen. It was built on a road frontage of 15 feet. Witness had to pay out in respect of this property water and sewerage rates (£1 16s 3d), municipal tax (£1 6s 3d), and fire insurance (6s 6d). In addition, witness considered that the average cost for repairs over a period of five years would amount to £9 per annum. The plaintiff had been in occupation of the house about 10 years. Witness thought the property depreciated at the rate of 2½ per cent. per annum.

John Ernest Ducker, property agent, said he inspected the property of Mr. Donald, who owned a number of houses in Ruthven-street. The house in which the plaintiff resided was a first-class property in a good position. He considered £8 a foot would be a fair valuation of the land the house was built upon. The house would cost to build at the present time anything between £575 and £600.

Alfred Creed, tramway employee, deposed to having lived next door to the plaintiff for over 10 years. He had also been the tenant of the defendant during that period. Witness left No. 110 Ruthven-street last January. The two houses (Nos. 110 and 112) had only been painted once during the time he was in occupation. That was five or six years ago. The houses were not kept in good repair. The water came on the bed in the upstairs room when it rained. His piano and chairs had gone through the floor where the boards were rotten.

William Henry Foggitt, Government Architect, called by the Court, estimated the cost of erecting a house similar to that occupied by the plaintiff at £450. Witness was at present erecting better houses at Daceyville for £450 each. The ground frontage of the house occupied by the plaintiff was only 13ft. The downstairs front room was only 9ft 6in between the walls. The other rooms measured 12ft by 9ft 6in, 13ft by 9ft 6in, 11ft by 7ft 3in, and the washhouse 8ft x 9ft. Witness considered £145 would be a fair amount to set down against depreciation, and this being deducted from £450, his estimated value of the building as it stood would be £305. To this might be added the land value, which he put down at £6 per foot frontage.

The Magistrate: In this case I am satisfied the result of Mr. Foggitt's calculations are substantially correct, and on the evidence before the Court £6 10s per foot frontage would appear a reasonable price to place on the land. Thus, on this basis the cost of the house will be accepted at £450, with £145 allowance for depreciation, leaving £305. To this must be added the land value of £84 10s, on a £6 10s basis, making a total of £389 10s. There have been no special circumstances put forward to induce the Court to take any other rate of interest as a recompense to the landlord for his investment than 6 per cent., the Commonwealth Bank rate. This represents £23 7s 4d. In regard to repairs and maintenance the Court will allow £5 12s 6d, and £7 5s for depreciation in value. The landlord's outgoings will be accepted as rates £1 16s 3d, municipal tax £1 6s 3d, insurance 6s 6d, and 5 per cent. for incidentals (£1 18s 4d), making in all £41 12s 3d. On these figures the rent would be 16s per week, and this the Court will fix for a period of 12 months dating from February 21 last.

A CITY EXPERIMENT.

The Chief Secretary and Minister for Public Health, Mr. Black, stated yesterday that during his recent tour along the coast he was approached by people desirous of the Fair Rents Court Act being made to apply to country districts.

Mr. Black states that his reply to such requests was that the Government, before extending the operation of the new Act, intended waiting to see whether the Court proved a success in the metropolitan area.

The animals in the Zoological Gardens at Moore Park will not be removed until June, and although the new gardens are approaching completion practically no permanent exhibits will be placed there until they are finished some months hence.

BUSH TRAGEDY.

OLD MAN AND HIS TYPISTE.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

A message from Invercargill states that a fortnight ago Edward Henry Smith, a married man, 70 years of age, and his typiste, Myrtle Scott, aged 20 years, disappeared.

Two men, while rabbit-shooting in the bush on Sunday, saw a man in the scrub, and were leaving to inform the police when a bullet whizzed past them. On the arrival of the police, Miss Scott was found dead, shot through the head, while Smith was wounded in the head, and died later. The two had lived concealed in the bush, subsisting on turnips and potatoes.

THE HOTELS.

VIEWS OF A BISHOP.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Reference to the drink traffic and the proposal to curtail the hours of trading of hotels was made by the Bishop of Sandhurst (Dr. H. Reville) at the Communion breakfast of St. Kilian's branch of the H.A.C.B.S. at Bendigo yesterday. Bishop Reville said: "I approve of the regulations that have been made in regard to the curtailing of the hours of hotels, but I think they have gone far enough at the present time. I would not be in favour of any further curtailing of those hours, to do so would promote sly grog selling. It would transfer from the public house to the home this drink evil, and this would be a calamity. I think, therefore, the present legislation is reasonable, and it would be a mistake to reduce the hours any further."

WOMEN'S MOVEMENT.

Yesterday a conference of delegates from friendly societies, temperance societies, and women's societies met in Stanway House, at the invitation of the Women's National movement. A motion, that "the delegates be asked to report to their respective societies the proposal for co-operation in work for the 6 o'clock movement, and to report at an early date," was carried unanimously.

EAST-WEST RAILWAY DISPUTE.

LARGE UNIONS CONTINUE WORKING.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. O'Malley) to-day said:—"With regard to the present Kalgoorlie trouble. I understand that there has been no endorsement by the central authorities, and I have had no complaint from them. Confirming my view that such a strike must fail to receive the general endorsement of unionists, I have just received a telegram from Mr. Sedgley, now in charge at Kalgoorlie, in the following terms:—'Union meeting last night, railway employees, engine-drivers, and A.W.U., decided to keep on working. The action of the delegates at Friday's deputation is not endorsed by the union; therefore they will not confirm it. The action of the Clerks' Union in placing an embargo on the running of trains is not endorsed by the executive committee of the union.'"

DEATH OF TWO MEN.

INCIDENTS OF POLICE CELLS.

An unusual case of death was reported to the City Coroner yesterday. About 12.20 p.m. on Sunday Isaac Bain, 54 years of age, a confectioner, lately living at 48 Renny-street, Paddington, was arrested in Moore Park on a charge of aiding and abetting in the sale of liquor. On the way to No. 3 Police Station he was seen by the constable in whose charge he was, to put his hand in his inside pocket several times, after which he would put the finger in his mouth and suck it. The constable asked him what he was sucking, and deceased replied "lollies." When searched at the police station, a white, hard substance, about the size of a hen's egg, was found in an open tin in his inside coat pocket. He was asked what it was, and on replying that "it was a lollie—I use it after I smoke"—it was handed back to him.

After being placed in the cells, an hour later he was observed by another prisoner to break a small piece of the white substance off and place it in his mouth. A quarter of an hour afterwards he was unconscious, and he died a little later at Sydney Hospital.

A post-mortem examination revealed that deceased died from cyanide of potassium poisoning.

A newsvendor named W. Lewis, 52 years of age, single, died at Sydney Hospital on Sunday morning after being taken there from the Water Police Station. The police report sets out that at 7.30 p.m. on Saturday deceased was arrested in Elizabeth-street and taken to the Water Police Station, where he was charged with drunkenness. He refused to give his name and address, and after being searched was placed in the cells. At 4.30 a.m. next day he appeared to be unwell, and he was sent to the hospital about 9 o'clock the same morning.

The Government Medical Officer, Dr. A. A. Palmer, conducted a post-mortem examination on deceased yesterday, and attributed the cause of death to a fracture of the skull.

FAILED TO REPORT.

GERMANS SENTENCED.

Several Germans were proceeded against at the Paddington Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Smithers, S.M., for failing to comply with the Aliens' Restriction Order, 1915, in not reporting themselves at intervals of not less than seven days.

Kurt Bear, 24, a native of Ermlitz, Germany, who was unnaturalised, reported himself regularly until November 25, 1914, when he was given permission to go to Newcastle. He had not reported himself since. Bear pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

Adolf Theodore Wilhelm Keim, 59, was charged with failing to report since August 31, 1914. He was born at Essen, Germany, and had been a resident of Australia for 32 years. When the war broke out he reported himself regularly at the police station at Harwood Island, Clarence River, and after he came to Sydney he went to the Darlinghurst Police Station on one occasion to report himself, but had not done so since. Keim was sentenced to one month's imprisonment.

Ludwig Carl Keim, 58, was charged with not having reported himself since September 11, 1914, and on being convicted was also sentenced to one month in gaol.

Oscar Neumeister, at the Water Police Court, pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to report himself to the police at intervals of not less than seven days. The accused said that he had been employed at a steel works, and he had been ill. He was fined £50, in default six months' imprisonment.

METALS FOR JAPAN.

BROKEN HILL, Monday.

Messrs. G. Niwa, a mining engineer, N. Tokunagha, and Suzuki, of the Kuhara Mining and Smelting Company of Japan, who have been visiting Broken Hill, left to-night. Mr. Tokunagha said to-day: "Since the outbreak of the war we in Japan have had big orders from the Allies, particularly Russia, for munitions of war, and also for the metals with which they are made. We have supplied big quantities of copper, but the production of other metals in Japan has not been sufficient to enable us to meet all these orders, and we have been sent to Australia to see if it is at all possible for us to make some contracts. One of the reasons why contracts with Japan should be favoured is that there is less risk in sending the metal production to Japan than there is in sending it to England or America."

LETTERS TO TROOPS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

With the object of assisting those who desire to communicate with members of the expeditionary forces on active service, the Postal Department has prepared special envelopes and cards bearing printed headings for the address, the regimental number, rank, full name, and so on. The cards and envelopes will be available to the public at the post offices in Melbourne and Sydney, at the price of six for 6½d, including postage, and should there be a strong demand for them, they will be made available at other centres subsequently.

POLITICAL CAPITAL.

PREMIER'S CHARGE AGAINST MR. WADE.

The Premier has supplied the following statement:—

"Mr. Wade complains that, in my criticism of his Manly speech, I carefully refrained from dealing with matters of policy. On the contrary, I dealt fully with the only matter of policy Mr. Wade referred to at Manly, that is his entire abandonment of that favoured child of his own legislative vigour, the Liquor Act of 1906. Mr. Wade evidently is ashamed of deserting his offspring, for in his rejoinder he does not make one word of reference to my observations. Why?

"Mr. Wade returns to the German question. He did not criticise in the early days, he says, and claims he was right in so doing. But when he found that I 'had relaxed into inactivity,' he moved. But how did he find out that I had 'relaxed into inactivity?' The answer is simple. He found it out first when Mr. Haynes told him so. He found it out when the Anti-German League came upon the scene—when he found out that political capital could be made of it. In other words, as soon as Mr. Wade discovered that there was a healthy and spirited antagonistic cry against the Government being raised outside, he joined in the cry. While he thought there was no political capital in it, he did nothing. The moment he thought there was a little political capital in it, 'he moved.' Or was he shoved? But while Mr. Wade was thus waiting to be prodded into a sense of lost opportunities by his new associate, Mr. Haynes, the Government had already done all that was required, and a full account of the steps taken by the Government was given to the public press on November 9 last.

"Mr. Wade need not apologise for having done nothing for the first eight or ten months about the German public servants. Nobody else in any part of Australia did anything, nor has anybody else in any part of Australia done anything to this day, save and except always the New South Wales Government.

"On the question of expenses to members, Mr. Wade's recollection is a little hazy. In the committee he agreed to it, generally, thoroughly, without reservation or discrimination of any kind. Considerably later the payments were attacked in a section of the press. When it became apparent that this was another matter out of which political capital could be made, Mr. Wade took up the recruiting expenses cry also, not before.

"Mr. Wade has a trained legal mind, and no more believes than I do that a murder committed at 11 in the morning can be prevented by the arrival of the police at 6 the same afternoon, yet he now solemnly professes the adoption of the belief that military rioting by soldiers in a state of complete sobriety in the morning hours could have been checked by closing hotels 25 miles away eight hours later. But there is political capital, and so Mr. Wade again follows the drum.

"This is apparently the new role which Liberalism assigns to the leader of the Opposition. He is to seize with avidity upon each cry that is started outside, and which seems to be likely to gain some temporary hearing. Whatever the craze of the moment may be, whatever passing shriek has gained for its shriekers a certain prominence and a certain hearing, the leader of the Opposition is to ally himself with that shriek, and re-launch in Parliament whatever attack has been started elsewhere. The leader of the Opposition is to be a puppet set in motion by any external political force which is anti-government in its direction. Had there been no Anti-German League, had there been no Mr. Haynes, had there been no sensational evening journalism, had there been no Mr. Loxton and other temperance extremists, Mr. Wade would have taken up none of these cries. He would have confined himself solely to 'extravagance' and to 'industrial unrest'—the two pieces de resistance of Liberal politics. Perhaps, after all, there is something to be thankful for in the variegated attacks of outside critics. They save us from what would, I fear, otherwise be the unbearable monotony of official Liberal criticism."

STATE SECURITIES.

INCOME TAX QUESTION.

The Premier states that for some time past he has been in communication with the Federal Government with regard to the question of the exemption from Commonwealth income tax of interest derivable from State securities. Mr. Holman is now in receipt of a letter from the Acting Prime Minister, in which, inter alia, Senator Pearce says:—"In the opinion of this Government the taxation of State securities by the Commonwealth, or taxation of the Commonwealth by the State, is inconsistent with the Federal system of government," and he concludes by stating that: "This Government does not propose to exercise its rights, if any, to tax State securities."

EARNINGS OF MINERS.

HELENSBURGH, Monday.

Owing to various causes, recruiting being one, there is a shortage of miners here. Recently the fortnight's pay of one man was £16 11s. The previous fortnight one of the miners drew £16 14s.

NARROW ESCAPE.

MACLEAN, Monday.

Mr. Septimus Dowling, a solicitor, of Maclean, had a narrow escape from death by lightning on Friday night at Iluka, at his seaside cottage, during a violent storm. It appears that the house was struck and practically demolished. The occupant, who was asleep at the time, was rendered unconscious, and saved only by the bed not being in contact with the wall where the current struck. The lightning was the severest experienced in the locality for many years.

MAORIS AND THEIR LANDS.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

Speaking at the Soldiers' Club at Gisborne, Sir James Carroll claimed that Maori soldiers were entitled to the same consideration as Europeans in regard to placing men on the land. He questioned whether the Government should continue the vigorous policy of denuding the Maoris of their lands. He hoped they would not forget the probability of having to provide other land for the natives.

WESTERN COAL TRADE.

LITHGOW, Monday.

The past fortnight has been a busy one for all local and district collieries, and an average of ten and a quarter shifts per mine was worked throughout the district. Trucks were fairly plentiful, and only in two cases did a shortage of supply cause any loss of time. At the Invincible colliery, Cullen Bullen, 11 shifts were worked, and a similar number at the Main Range colliery.

DISLOYAL UTTERANCES.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

At the Magistrate's Court in Wellington a Norwegian named Andrew Theodore Anderson was convicted on a charge of making use of a disloyal utterance, namely, "There is only one nation that will win; that is Germany, and it won't be long."

Anderson was fined £25; in default, two months' hard labour.

CITY RAILWAY.

The City Council last night decided that control of portion of Wynyard Park should be temporarily handed over to the Government to facilitate the construction of the city railway. The Lord Mayor explained that York-street would be closed during the construction of the railway, and the roadway would be diverted along the north-western side of the park, but as soon as the underground work was completed the roadway in York-street would be restored, and the park placed in its original condition, save for a small portion required for the station entrance.

LICENSED VICTUALLERS.

At the annual meeting of the United Licensed Victuallers' Association of New South Wales, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—President, Mr. J. T. Donnison; vice-presidents, Messrs. P. G. Lynch, T. H. Maguire, J. W. Cockbaine, and A. W. Sharland; hon. treasurer, Mr. W. Northam; committee:—Messrs. G. A. Brown, H. Benham, C. F. Cullen, C. W. M. Chateau, J. H. Kelly, A. F. Nelson, H. M'Grade, M. A. Pryke, P. Quinn, J. T. Rainbow.

IRRIGATION BILL.

BOARD OF THREE.

DEBTS CONSOLIDATION.

The Minister for Agriculture and Irrigation, Mr. W. Grahame, stated yesterday that he will, at to-day's sitting of the Legislative Assembly, bring down an amending Irrigation Bill.

The object of the bill, Mr. Grahame says, is to place irrigation under the control of a board of three, and the Minister will be ex-officio the chairman. This will be purely an honorary position for the Minister.

It is generally understood that the Government propose to appoint Mr. Dare, the present Acting Commissioner for Irrigation, as the second commissioner. Should Parliament agree to the Ministerial proposal of a board of three, this, with the Minister in the chair, will leave one position to be filled. Mr. Grahame stated yesterday that whoever was appointed need not necessarily be an irrigation expert; what was wanted being a first-class man with good business ability.

The bill will also deal with the question of money owing by the lessees on the Murrumbidgee irrigation area, and proposes to consolidate and spread them over a longer period, in accordance with the promises made by the Premier during his recent visit to the settlement.

METHODIST CONFERENCE.

PASTORAL SESSION.

CANDIDATES FOR ORDINATION.

The Methodist Conference was continued yesterday.

The following probationers were received for ordination:—Messrs. W. E. C. Barker, J. Bowran, E. M. Boyer, C. L. Connor, G. F. Moore, Vivian W. Thompson, B.A., G. S. Udy, M. Walker, William Green. These, together with the Revs. A. W. Amos, J. W. Booth, Herbert Green, J. H. Margetts, Fred. J. Winn, Wesley Stocks, and Leslie M. Thompson, M.A., previously ordained, were received into full connexion.

Mr. W. Robson, M.L.C., moved to reopen the matter of making a circuit levy to provide funds for Leigh College. It was resolved to submit the proposal to the March quarterly meetings in each circuit, and in the event of the proposal being favoured by a majority of the circuit meetings a levy of one per cent. on the average income for three years as used in preparing the levy for the children's fund be made for this year.

The Rev. J. G. Morris, in the absence of the convener (Mr. W. Arnott), presented the report of the Evangelistic Committee. Special mention was made of the open-air mission in connection with the committee. A discussion took place over the proposition to set apart a probationer for the special supervision and organising of open-air work for the future. It was resolved to take this course. During the discussion it transpired that Mr. W. Arnott had promised £200 towards the support of the minister, should one be set apart. The balance-sheet of the committee showed income £590 and expenditure £579.

The Rev. W. G. Willard, property secretary, continued the business of his report. Permission was sought for the sale of the Lagoon-street Church and school-room and site at North Goulburn. This was granted, subject to a report by a special commission to be appointed for the purpose of investigating all matters relating to the proposed sale, the commission to send its report to the executive committee, whose decision should be final. Other sales and leases of minor importance were sanctioned.

The Rev. C. J. Prescott, headmaster of Newington College, read a report of the Newington College Council, which showed that the college had enjoyed a generally favourable year. The usual thanks and reappointments were made. This, together with several formal matters, brought the representative business to a close.

The ex-president moved, and Mr. Jacob Garrard seconded, a motion of thanks to the president for the way in which he had conducted the business. The motion was carried with acclamation.

COOK ELECTION.

MR. RICHARDS'S CANDIDATURE.

Alderman T. R. Barlow, in supporting Mr. R. W. Richards at his two meetings last night, declared that, during his 17 years' experience as an alderman of the City Council, he had known no man better qualified for the position than Mr. Richards when that gentleman was Lord Mayor. From his very training, he said, Mr. Richards was peculiarly fitted for civic office, and from an extremely long and intimate acquaintance, he (Alderman Barlow) could say that, personally, Mr. Richards was also as well qualified to represent the ratepayers as any representative he had known.

Alderman Barlow expressed surprise at certain charges which had been levelled against the candidate. Referring to the Lord Mayor's Patriotic Fund, he personally thought a mistake had been made in letting out sums of money to interest-paying concerns. But, in any case, Mr. Richards had had very little to do with the matter, beyond lending his name as Lord Mayor. And if a mistake had been made then more blame was attachable to the well-known financial authorities on the committee administering the fund than to anyone else.

Two meetings were held on behalf of Mr. Richards, Alderman Lindsay Thompson and others speaking.

THE LABOUR CANDIDATE.

Meetings were held in three different centres of the ward last night by Mr. Arthur Vernon, Labour candidate for Cook in the municipal election. The candidate was supported by Mr. H. C. Hoyle, Captain Toombs, and Mr. T. Keegan, M.L.A.

Mr. Hoyle vigorously condemned the municipal government of Sydney during what he described as 50 years of Liberal control. He particularly directed his remarks to the health and cleanliness of the city. It was a disgrace, he said, that slums should be found in such a city as Sydney. There were some portions of Belmore on which the sun never shone. The children had nowhere to play but in the filthy gutters of the narrow streets. The speaker referred to the division of control affecting matters of health and sanitation, and declared that the City Council should take over the powers of the Board of Health and the Water and Sewerage Board. The duties of these boards, he contended, were so vitally important, that they should remain in the hands of the direct representatives of the ratepayers. Mr. Hoyle said that, in matters of civic government, Sydney was far behind any other city of the Commonwealth. And it was with this knowledge, and with the desire and determination to remedy matters, that Labour candidates were offering themselves as aldermen.

POSTAGE STAMPS.

PAPER SHORTAGE EXPECTED.

The postal authorities state that, although there is at present no shortage of the paper used in printing the Commonwealth postage stamps, it is quite within the range of possibility that supplies may fail should the war continue much longer. With a view to economy it is therefore suggested that, in prepaying postage amounting to more than one penny on a single article, as much use as possible be made of postage stamps of the higher denomination, instead of utilising strips or blocks of two or more penny stamps for the purpose. Postage stamps above the value of one penny are issued at 2d, 2½d, 3d, 4d, 5d, 6d, 9d, 1s, 2s, 5s, 10s, 20s, and 40s. The department asks for the assistance of the public in the direction indicated, and it is pointed out that, in addition to economising the paper, strict compliance with the request would result in a saving of quite 50 per cent. in the present cost of the postage stamp paper used, or about £700 per annum.

CITY COUNCIL EMPLOYEES.

A debate occurred in the City Council last night on the question whether men who had been in the employ of the council for six months or more and whose services had been dispensed with because of lack of material should receive an allowance equal to one day's pay for every month of service. The matter came up on a recommendation from the finance committee that this should be done, and that the allowance be made in all departments of the council's services.

An amendment,—"That this concession shall only apply to those men who were put off prior to March 1, 1916," was agreed to by 11 votes to 10.

The recommendation as amended was then agreed to.

THE WOMEN PAINTERS.

The annual exhibition of the Society of Women Painters, which is to be opened at noon to-day by Lady Cullen, has the advantage this year of the noble galleries in the Education Department's new buildings. The collection will interest every lover of art almost as much for what it does not do as for what it does. Whilst there are many charmful works, which is a matter for congratulation, there is no evidence of the outstanding talent which arrests attention even when the manifestation of it is irregular. Landscapes and seascapes are too often tame, portraits, with two or three exceptions, are weak, and, as usually in all the Sydney shows by artists of the other sex, imaginative subjects are generally avoided. In spite of these obvious drawbacks, several of the exhibitors have made an advance during the year upon their previous efforts, and the economy of war has induced a modesty in the catalogued figures which marks a timely concession to depleted purses.

In the oil section Mabel Barling claims first attention by reason of a successful imaginative effort—the only one of importance in the gallery—entitled "The Terror of the Grass Eating Animals" (before Adam). Herein the painter has coped with the inherent difficulties of a moon-lit view. High on a shelving rock a lion crouches with grimly confident gaze towards the antelopes feeding on the pastures below, the grizzly grin of the lioness at his side reflecting her lord's anticipation of an evening meal. There is a fine suggestion of muscular power in the repose of these huge beasts, and the night effect in the pale colour of the hide is also effective. The principal portrait in the collection, Miss Ethel Stephens's three-quarter-length presentment of herself, palette and brush in hand, forms a faithful and unflattered likeness. There is a pleasant expression in the thoughtful brown eyes beneath the silvery tints of the hair, and except for the foreshortening of the arm from elbow to wrist, which is unconvincing, the technique is excellent. This artist contributes a number of landscape subjects that please, one of fine rose studies, and an effective painting of "Hydrangeas," in which the jars, and other still life accessories, are beautifully drawn and coloured. Miss Clarice Sandford's best effort is "Girl with Sunshade," in which the suggestion of intense light is clever; but the "Portrait of My Mother," though it has good points, is on the whole heavy in treatment. This fault is accentuated in the drapery of No. 145, and gives the effect of an oleograph to "A Sunny Afternoon" (No. 147). Amy Gill's "Portrait of my Husband" exhibits an uncertain technique, and more experience would have warned the painter to avoid perpetuating the momentary futility of a head leaning to one side. On the other hand, Laura Booth's portrait-subject wins the spectator by the confident contrast between the sanguineous flesh-tones and the light gleaming from the grey hair above.

Betty Solomons has come forward this year, for though her figure paintings "The Dancer" and "Resting" lack significance, her larger subject, "The Locket," is admirable. Here the intent expression of the girl with the coral necklace is vividly suggested, whilst the gorgeous colouring of the Oriental scarf pleases the eye, and her heads and nude studies in black and white are true to nature. Various contributions of up-and-down merit are made by Constance Tregear. Her most ambitious effort is "La Fille aux Cheveux de Lin," the hair of flax above the suitably flushed flesh-tones and blue eyes, which properly accompany it; but her success falls to a little nocturne, "The Carnival," in which the rosy light from Chinese lanterns makes visible the pierrots and pierrottes dancing beneath the trees. This is decidedly clever. It will be gathered that portraiture is not a strong point in this year's show.

The charm of the collection lies in innumerable landscape views, harbour glimpses, and street scenes. These are largely undistinguished, though work that possesses individuality is also shown. Isobel Jacobs's water-colours, characterised by a mannered style, possess this quality, notably "The Departing Sun Casts its Glow." The foreground almost suggests a decorative frieze in the fantastic shapes of gum-tree branches, the yellow light accentuating the lines of the limbs, and falling on the bunches of foliage, whilst beyond stretches the bare plain. Gladys Owen, who has liberally strengthened the society in the past, does so this year by only two contributions. The more striking shows the village of Berrima with touches of sunset-glow on heaped-up clouds, giving a sinister beauty to the scene. This probably arises only from the poetic imaginings of the painter—and would that there were more frequent departures of this kind from the beaten track of Sydney's accustomed! A. Hedley Parsons' sympathy with nature is revealed in various small water-colours, whilst she shows a decided advance in her oils, "Fog Lifting, Newcastle Harbour," with the tug cheerily rocking through the dancing waves in clear light towards a big ship just emerging from the haze, is admirable in its atmospheric contrast. Muriel Mason's "Azalea Walk," with the crimson blooms casting shadows on a path that ends amidst softly massed foliage, shows tenderness, and she is strong in her handling of "Wattle Blossom." Alice E. Norton's group of watercolours attracts, and the brilliant, semi-tropical suggestion of "A Quiet Path, Yallingup, W.A.," quite away from her usual subjects, exhibits unexpected strength and confidence in the treatment. A pathetic interest attaches to the work of the late Nellie Rodd, whose gifts for the suggestion of fairy grace and fantastic imagination are shown in various illustrative drawings for "Snowdrop," and "Hansel and Gretel." Visitors will observe with interest in the sculpture Miriam Phillips's nude figure "The Mystery," and Theo Cowan's bronze "Rupert Brooke."

INTERNED COMPANY MANAGER

PAYMENT OF £1200 A YEAR.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

When asked to-day if he would give any information regarding the payment to Edward Edwards, late manager of the Continental C. and G. Rubber Co. Propty., Ltd., who is interned, of £1200 a year, the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) said that any payment made in connection with the affairs of the proprietary had obviously nothing to do with the Defence Department. Their control was certainly exercised over Edwards as an interned person. A fixed sum which he believed was £1200 a year was paid into a bank to the credit of Edwards, and, like other interned persons, he was allowed to operate on his account under supervision of the defence authorities. For instance, he would make an application for so much for the support or education of his children, or for other purposes, and if the officials thought it was legitimate expenditure his application was approved. The reason in all cases had to be regarded as sufficient.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

AUCKLAND, Monday.

There have been seventeen more cases of infantile paralysis, bringing the total to 3[illegible]. Two more deaths have been reported.

SMALLPOX.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

The smallpox outbreak in the Newcastle district appears to have been overcome. The last two patients at the isolation hospital at North Stockton were discharged on Saturday.

EARLY CLOSING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—An incident in connection with the Liverpool riot which the public should know is that the first request to close the hotels came from the soldiers themselves. This information came to me in the course of a conversation a few days ago with one of the leading military authorities. He said that the men before leaving Casula camp on their march to Liverpool, realising the danger of riot if drink was mixed up in the affair, sent messages to the Liverpool hotels asking them to close their doors so as to minimise the danger of disorder. Following this request the hotels were closed, but the trouble was caused by their opening too soon. After the first demonstration most of the original Casula contingent returned to their camp, but some remained behind, and their numbers were increased by additions from Liverpool. Then the hotels opened, the men got liquor, and the riot which caused such regret amongst so many of the soldiers as well as civilians took place.

The authority I refer to was most emphatic regarding the drink and the soldiers. He said that if the soldiers were studied in this legislation the hotels should not be open before 10 in the morning, and they certainly should be closed before 8 o'clock at night. I understand that numbers of officers at Liverpool are strongly of the opinion that it is in the best interests of the soldiers that the hotels should close at 6 o'clock. I think the above information should be known to the public and to our legislators, as it has been stated that drink was not the cause of the riot at Liverpool. The point made by this high military authority is that the men's action was practically an orderly, although illegal, protest until the drink was mixed up with it.

I am, etc.,

EGG SUPPLIES.

THREATENED SHORTAGE.

Many of the leading Sussex-street egg operators are of the opinion that there will be a shortage of eggs during the coming winter, and that prices will advance to record high levels.

Already some houses are making inquiries abroad regarding the possibility of securing shipments, and it has been found that both Chinese and American exporting houses are open to do business at prices which may induce some of the more speculative of the Sussex-street houses to place orders.

Chinese eggs could have been bought in Sydney yesterday at /11½ a dozen c.i.f. On to that price would have to be added duty, cartage, wharfage, exchange, and any incidental expenses. About 14 or 15 years ago large quantities of eggs were imported into the Commonwealth from China, but when the duty of 6d a dozen was imposed the business ceased. In those days the eggs were small, and averaged 11 to the pound, but the poultry farmers of China are said to be now offering eggs which will weigh eight to the pound.

Quotations have also been secured from America. March-April shipments are offered at from 1/1½ to 1/2¾ c.i.f., Sydney, and May-June shipments at from 1/2¾ to 1/3¾, similar terms. The eggs would be packed in boxes each holding 30 dozen, and each egg marked with indelible ink "imported from America." On the end of each case would be a label showing the country of origin, and a certificate would be furnished by the Dairy Exchange in San Francisco, regarding the quality and grade of the eggs.

PRIVATE O'DONNELL.

CHANCE IN OFFICERS' SCHOOL.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The report was made available to-day by the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) of the board appointed to inquire into Private O'Donnell's case. The board found that the selection committee, of which Lieutenant-Colonel Battye was a member, appeared to exercise its functions in a haphazard manner, without, as far as the evidence showed, any reasonable facts before them on which to base their decisions. There was, however, no evidence to show that Lieutenant-Colonel Battye allowed his private feelings to sway his conduct. The board further found that there were no definite instructions or regulations governing the selection of officers in the A.I.F. Another finding was that in the case of Private O'Donnell the instructions of the military headquarters regarding competitive examinations of enlisted men for commissions were not carried out. The board came to the conclusion that O'Donnell's conduct in absenting himself from the Blackboy camp (Western Australia), and enlisting in another State, was mainly influenced by a feeling of unjust treatment. It held that the desire of O'Donnell for active service in the war should not be defeated by any proceedings or penalties taken against O'Donnell in consequence of those unwise acts.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) minuted the papers as follows:—"The recommendations of the Adjutant-General are approved, but O'Donnell is to be appointed company sergeant-major from March 1, and is to be directed to at once join the first officers' course at the Duntroon School of Instruction, and, if successful at the school, to be considered for appointment in the Australian Imperial Forces, 3rd Military District."

CITY ELECTRIC LIGHT.

It appeared from a debate in the City Council last niht that there is much waste of electric light in Sydney.

A committee report showed that the lights were switched on and off by clockwork, and as it was impracticable to adjust the hour at which the switches operate each day, the lights were switched on by the clocks rather earlier on bright evenings than was necessary, and switched off rather later on bright mornings than was needed, this being done to provide for dull mornings and evenings.

The Lord Mayor said he had received a complaint to the same effect from a highly reputable citizen. It stated that lights in Woolloomooloo had been left burning in the daytime. There were patrolmen, who had been equipped with motor bicycles to enable them to go round quickly, and inspect the lights, and he would call for a report as to whether these men were given too large zones to patrol, or whether they were guilty of carelessness.

ISLAND MURDER.

In last Wednesday's "Herald" our Suva correspondent reported the murder of Mr. Peter Kemp, which occurred on February 4 at Drumasi, Tavua. A correspondent states that the victim's correct name was Charles George Kemp, a son of Mr. W. E. Kemp, engineer, in the Public Works Department. Deceased was educated at the Sydney Grammar School and the Church of England Grammar School, North Sydney, and had been employed for about five years with the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, Fiji.

MOTOR CYCLIST FINED.

At the Parramatta Police Court on Monday, before Mr. M. H. Fitzhardinge, S.M., Gordon McLean Stewart was proceeded against by Malcolm James Groat on a charge of driving a motor cycle in a manner dangerous to the public. Defendant pleaded not guilty. Plaintiff said that on January 27 he was driving home along the Richmond-road when he came to a narrow bridge. Seeing defendant coming witness pulled on one side, but defendant rode along, and brushed past the horse's nose, causing the animal to jump over the approach. The vehicle capsized, and he, his wife, and daughter, were thrown out. The horse then bolted with the vehicle. His wife was injured, and the sulky and harness were damaged. Defendant's father paid for the repairs to the sulky. Defendant was travelling at about 30 miles an hour. Defendant was fined £9, together with costs, the whole amounting to £10 16s.

ROBBERIES.

Jewellery valued at £56 was stolen from 7 Canonbury Grove, Dulwich Hill, between 3 and 6 p.m. on Friday. The stolen articles were the property of Mrs. Matilda Cooper, Mrs. Ada Pike, Martha Clarke, and Dorothy Cooper. Entrance was gained by forcing the catch off a front window.

The residence of Mr. A. Bigger, at 7 Darley-street, Marrickville, was similarly broken into and entered between 2 p.m. and 10 p.m. on the same day, and jewellery valued at £10 was stolen.

MORE TRAWLERS.

£100,000 EXPENDITURE.

An expenditure of over £100,000 will shortly have to be incurred by the New South Wales Treasury in connection with the State fish scheme. According to figures presented to Parliament last week by the Chief Secretary, Mr. Black, the scheme is paying its way, and the Minister states that he intends developing it gradually.

Mr. Black now says that the sum immediately needed for the handling of netted fish is £13,730. This sum is required to cover the cost of depots at Newcastle, Port Stephens, the Clarence River, and George's Basin. The Chief Secretary adds:—"For the construction of four steel trawlers at Walsh Island, of steel trawlers at Mort's Dock and at Williamstown, and of a wooden fish carrier and a wooden trawler at Sydney, a further sum of £92,000 will be necessary.

"With properly-built refrigerating depots," he says, "smokehouse, and fish canning works, it is quite possible that, within five years from now, the whole population of New South Wales may secure a daily service of fish. Such a gigantic scheme, however, can only be gradually developed. The north and north-western lines, by reason of their geographical position, will be the most easily served. When the Federal railway service to Jervis Bay is completed, however, the southern lines can also be directly supplied. I may say also that I propose, wherever I have a fish depot, to have a retail establishment, if possible, in connection with it. In most of the fishing towns on the coast it is impossible to get fish, no matter how much one is prepared to pay for it. That deficiency, like all the others, can only be overcome by the Government taking in hand the purchase and the distribution of the net fishermen's hauls, and by a wide development of the trawler industry."

FUTURE OF JEWS.

LAND IN CANADA OR AUSTRALIA.

LONDON, March 12.

A National Union of Jews has been formed to secure equal rights in all countries after the war.

Mr. Israel Zangwill (president of the International Jewish Territorial Organisation) stated that the Jews hoped to get land either in Canada or Australia.

THE WEATHER.

Good rains were reported yesterday morning from the north-east quarter of New South Wales, a great area of agricultural country benefiting, and many substantial falls being included in the totals.

Port Macquarie received 181 points, Moree 140 points, Uralla 126 points, Boomi 116 points, Tamworth 91 points, Yetman 75 points, Warialda 75 points, and Bendemeer 73 points.

The rain extended southwards from Queensland, where light to heavy falls occurred in the southern border division, the central districts, extreme south-east, and also on the North Coast. Monsoonal rain-producing energy was responsible for the rain in both States, and is still active in the sub-tropical districts of New South Wales, and over southern Queensland, in which parts an extensive cloud area is being maintained, and further rain, associated with thunder, is likely.

Except in the north-east quarter of this State, and at scattered places in the coastal and highland districts, fine clear weather continues, and the persistence of cool southerly winds is responsible for the pleasantly mild temperatures being enjoyed almost generally throughout the State.

In Sydney, the early morning cloud cleared off as the day advanced, and ideal weather prevailed; the 1 p.m. temperature was [illegible] degrees, and the humidity only 47 per cent. At 9 p.m. the temperature was 67.5 degrees, and the humidity 74 per cent.

GLEN INNES.—Steady rain fell during Sunday night and Monday in the eastern part of the district. The fall was heavy, the Severn river being a banker for the first time for months. The rain was just what was required to ensure a good season.

TINGHA.—Steady rain commenced to fall last night, 43 points being registered to 9 a.m. Rain is still falling. This brings the total rainfall for the year up to 10½ inches, compared with three inches for the corresponding period last year.

FINANCIAL.

A CHEQUE PROBLEM.

"Company Secretary" writes:—

Sir,—In the belief that it secured the utmost protection possible, I have always made my company's cheques payable to payee, say, W. Jones, the words "bearer" being ruled out. The company's banker has hinted that such action puts his staff to considerable additional work, in which, possibly, I am not justified, if no further protection is secured my company. It occurred to me that by inserting the name of "payee" or bearer and crossing the cheque "payable a/c payee only," that the same purpose would be served; but I notice that the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (on which, I take it, our Act is framed, does not recognise the words "a/c payee" or the name of the "payee in full" written across the face of the cheque) as part of the crossing, and the banker would be justified in disregarding such additional words. It would appear that where a banker (in good faith, and without negligence), pays a crossed cheque according to the terms of the crossing he is protected to the extent that he is in the same position as if payment of the cheque had been made to the true owner thereof.

Will you kindly inform me (and many others, who may be similarly placed) if in making cheques payable to "payee" or order and marked "not negotiable" do the drawers' interests receive more protection than in a cheque with only the customary "general" or "special crossing," and made payable to "bearer"? Has the banker any liability beyond observing the crossing?

If you wish to draw cheques payable to a person "or order," crossed "not negotiable," also "a/c payee," there is no reason why you should not do so. The present ordinary contract between banker and customer includes a right to draw in such a manner. Practice and custom have permitted the crossing of a cheque "a/c payee," although it has no statutory significance; but legal decisions have given weight to it. A cheque drawn in such a manner would possess about the maximum of safeguard.

The paying banker has to pay in good faith and in the ordinary course of business, observing the crossing—if general, by payment only to a bank, and, if special, by payment only to the particular bank mentioned, and to be satisfied that the endorsement purports to be correct.

THE YOKOHAMA SPECIE BANK.

The Sydney agent of the above institution is in receipt of a cablegram from their head office at Yokohama, advising them that the 72nd half-yearly ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the bank had been held at the head office at Yokohama on the 10th inst., when the usual statement of the liabilities and assets of the bank, and the profit and loss account for the half-year ended on December 31, 1915, has been submitted to the shareholders. The net profit for the past half-year, including the amount brought forward from the last account, amounted to 3,536,000 yen (about £353,600), of which 1,800,000 yen (about £180,000) was appropriated towards the dividend at the rate of 12 per cent. p.a., and 400,000 yen (about £40,000) added to the reserve fund, which will now be 20,400,000 yen (about £2,040,000), and the balance 1,336,000 yen (about £133,600) has been carried forward to the next account.

DUNLOP RUBBER COMPANY.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The proposal to reconstruct the Dunlop Rubber Company of Australasia by forming a new company to take over the undertakings of the existing company, was mentioned in the Practice Court to-day, when an application was made for authority to hold the necessary meetings of shareholders to consider the scheme.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

The market for Eastern goods was quiet yesterday. Some lines were quite off the market, stocks being practically exhausted. Tapioca was quoted at 26/ for medium pearl and 25/ for seed, but the quotation was purely nominal. It is doubtful whether five tons of tapioca could be purchased in Sydney today. Peppers were steady at late rates. Whole cinnamon was scarce, and higher at 2/2. Ground cinnamon was without alteration. Caraways were dearer at 1/2, mace was quoted at 2/8. In meals, cornflour was easier, selling at from /5 to /5¼. Blue boiling peas were worth 17/6 a bushel if they could be obtained. Seeds were without alteration except rape, which sold at 22/, an advance of 2/. Haricot beans were quoted at 19/, but here, again, stocks were extremely low.

The market for No. 8 black wire was bought up, everything available being secured at £21. For distributing lots £21/10/ firm was quoted. No. 10 black remained unprocurable. Galvanised wire was steady at the late high rates. Galvanised iron was without alteration. A small business was done in rabbit-proof netting at unchanged rates. Lead at the advanced prices which came into force on Friday had some business. Other lines were steady at late rates.

Jute continued quiet. Bran bags ex Sangola were offered at 8/ net to rails, but ex store 8/1½ was wanted. Woolpacks in all positions commanded 4/, and cornsacks from 9/9 to 10/.

AUSTRO-GERMAN GOODS.

PRE-WAR PURCHASES.

Subscriber writes:—

Sir,—Having in stock a quantity of musical goods, comprising accordeons, concertinas, and mouth organs, etc., made by German makers, mentioned in Government Gazette, No. 27, issued February 23, 1916, we would ask if there is any restriction, if so, what are the conditions under which we can sell these goods? These musical instruments (list of which we attach) were landed and paid for before the war, and being a luxury in these depressed times, are not quick sellers, therefore, we think it quite impossible to shift our stock within three months, the time, we believe, allowed. Can you advise us if it is possible to get a permit to keep on selling them until our stocks are finished, or, can we keep on selling if we have the trade marks so defaced and destroyed that they cannot be recognised? We offer our sincere thanks for any information you can give us, as these goods are one of the mainstays of our business, being much admired and used by the class of people that shop our end of the city, and would mention that even in normal times we often have to keep accordeons and concertinas in stock for 12 and 18 months before selling them, and, unfortunately, 75 per cent. of all these musical goods have been produced in enemy countries.

We can only give in answer a statement by Mr. Hughes, the Attorney-General, on January 12:—

Referring to the suspension of enemy trade marks, Mr. Hughes said that section 4 of the Act provides, inter alia, that where the registration and all or any of the rights conferred by the registration of a trade mark have been suspended in favour of any person, any person, other than the person in whose favour the registration has been so suspended, who, during the suspension, uses in respect of the goods in respect of which it is registered the trade mark or a mark substantially identical with the trade mark or so nearly resembling it as to be likely to deceive, is guilty of an offence, and liable to a penalty not exceeding £500. Prosecutions under this section may only be brought by the Attorney-General or a person authorised by him. Continuing, Mr. Hughes said that, in view of the general suspension of enemy trade marks, it was desirable that the position which the Attorney-General proposed to take up in relation to the use of enemy trade marks upon the existing stocks should be clearly defined. As a general rule, three months, from the date of the suspension of trade marks, would be allowed traders holding goods bearing enemy trade marks to dispose of these goods. In other words, where he was satisfied that the goods sold during the three months after the suspension of the trade marks were the manufacture or product of any person other than a person in whose favour the trade mark had been suspended, and had been held by the trader in stock at the time when the trade mark was suspended in favour of the Minister for Trade and Customs, the Attorney-General would not, as a general rule, institute proceedings for an offence against the section above referred to. After the expiry of three months from to-day, prosecutions will be instituted in every such case. In the case of the trade marks "Lysol" and "Aspirin," which have already been suspended by the Attorney-General in favour of particular persons, the Attorney-General will require to be satisfied that goods sold within the next three months were in the possession of the trader at the date of the notification of the first suspension of those marks. The first suspension of "Lysol" was notified on March 13, and the first suspension of "Aspirin" on October 7, 1915.

Merchants find it impossible to remove trade marks from goods because they are stamped on the goods. It is possible to remove the outside package and re-wrap, and this is what is being done in many cases. It is impossible to dispose of stock in the time allowed, even if great sacrifices were made. In the circumstances it is probable that sales will continue to be made.

The amount of wool manifested to arrive at Darling Harbour yesterday was 354 bales.

BREADSTUFFS.

THE MILLERS' PROTEST.

At a meeting of flour millers held yesterday consideration was given to the position that has arisen through the proposal of the Acting Prime Minister to fix arbitrarily the price of wheat and flour without consideration to the prices of bran and pollard in the various States, which differ materially, according to local and climatic conditions. It was patent to all present that unless prices fixed afforded a reasonable profit mill-owners would be compelled to reduce outputs, which would naturally mean the discharge of a number of employees, a course which it was hoped would be avoided by fair consideration to the position by the responsible authorities. Keen disappointment was expressed at the small amount of flour taken from New South Wales to fill Imperial Government orders, notwithstanding the fact that millers were urged by the Minister for Agriculture to run their mills full time.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 1749 tons of wheat and 262 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

Wheat shows no change. The steamer Talawa will arrive at Port Pirie about the end of March, and will load about 5000 tons. Flour keeps at £14 for old season's makes, and at £12 net cash at the mills, with £12/5/ to £12/10/ delivered. Bran /11½ at the mills, and 1/ delivered; pollard, 1/1½ and 1/2½. Butter to-day, for best sorts, advanced a penny per lb, in sympathy with the rise in the Victorian market.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Wheat for gristing into flour for the East has been reduced to 5/1½, to enable Hongkong connections to be maintained. Bran, £4/10/. Pollard, weak, £5. Barley quiet, but steady; English, 4/ to 4/3; Cape, 3/ to 3/3. Oats, quieter tone; milling Algerians, 2/9½ to 2/9; feed, 2/ to 2/1½; seed, 2/6 to 3/. Chaff quiet, £2/17/6 to £3/2/6. Straw steady, £1/10/ to £1/15/. Potatoes advanced 10/, good general demand, £10 to £10/10/. Onions inactive; Brown Spanish, £3/10/ to £4. Butter firm, 122/ per cwt. Operations in tea were limited. Cornsacks are steady at 10/; branbags flat, country lots 8/1½. Wire netting is in strong demand.

MELBOURNE FRUIT MARKET.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Following are the wholesale prices for fruit at the Western Market:—Apples, eating 1/ to 4/ per case, cooking 1/ to 1/6; figs, 7/ to 7/6; grapes, 5/ to 8/; lemons (Victorian), 14/ to 16/; peaches, dessert, 3/ to 6/6; pears, 1/ to 4/; plums, 2/6 to 4/6; quinces, 2/6 to 3/6; pineapples, Queensland, 6/ to 7/6 per double case.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

There was a strong demand for all lines of dairy produce yesterday, at firm rates. The market was almost bare of honey, and the few tins which were forwarded from Dungog commanded /5½ per lb. Had there been any Western district honey available, it would have readily realised /6. There was no cheap honey to be had.

Eggs attracted strong support at Friday's levels. New-laid samples brought from 1/11 to 2/, and case eggs from 1/8 to 1/9, according to sample. A shipment of about 5000 dozen Adelaide eggs was on the market. The eggs cost 1/3½ f.o.b., or a landed cost of approximately 1/4½. The present f.o.b. price is in the neighbourhood of 1/6. Indeed, a parcel is due next Monday, which was bought at that figure.

The price of butter in Melbourne has been advanced to 132/ per cwt. It is thought that the Victorian operators obtained permission from Mr. Tudor before they altered the price. In Brisbane the quotation is unchanged. The Federal Government has granted leave for 16,000 boxes of Queensland butter to be shipped by the Orontes. On spot there is no movement in values, but the advance in Melbourne is an indication as to "which way the wind is blowing." Advices from Montreal state that Canada will have barely enough butter to last through the scarce season. The West Coast, which formerly secured most of its supplies from New Zealand, is now taking very small quantities from that source, and is supplying the balance from California.

The position of bacon was unchanged. Early in the morning a few sides were to be seen on the racks, but by 11 o'clock every ounce had been cleared up. Mr. Hall has issued instructions that no bacon pigs are to be allowed to go over the border into the adjoining States. For some time pigs have been going from Leeton over the Murray, but this trade has now been stopped.

Quotations were:—

RAILWAY MARKET.

LUCERNE EASIER.

A full yarding of 104 trucks of all descriptions, comprising 87 of forage, 8 of grain, and 9 of potatoes and pumpkins, was available at the railway yards yesterday. Very heavy supplies of chaff, principally wheaten and of medium quality were on hand, and this, with a weak demand, created a very dull market. Even at low rates it was very difficult to effect sales of medium quality chaff. A few nice green samples of wheaten chaff realised 4/3 to 4/5 per cwt, but the balance changed hands at from 3/2 to 4/1 per cwt. Oaten chaff was a little steadier, and prices from 3/5 to 4/6 were obtained, the latter being paid for a rather good truck of this fodder from Koorawatha. Lucerne also suffered from a weak demand, and, although not of choicest quality, offerings failed to secure late high rates, hay being disposed of at 5/ to 6/, and chaff at 4/11 and 5/4 per cwt.

Potatoes secured firm and steady rates, and this section of the sale was well attended. Brisk bidding and good competition helped to effect successful sales.

Trucks to arrive, as per manifest, were:—Hay, straw, and chaff 122, and grain 12 truckloads.

The following business was reported:—

HOMEBUSH STOCK MARKET.

SHEEP.

BARELY SO STRONG GENERALLY.

A very fair supply for a Monday was in view for yesterday's sales, upwards of 24,284 sheep, including lambs, being listed from 88 consignors, but only 19,557 head were penned, as compared with 16,087 head forward yesterday week. Yesterday's consignments advised included one draft of 2500, but was not forward. The list also showed three drafts, ranging from 1000 to 1200, with the usual large proportion of small lots, chiefly 100 to 300 head. All the sheep that were penned were classed up early prior to the opening of the market. The weather was fine and cool, and the sheep appeared to advantage. There was a very fair showing of crossbreds. The bulk of the pennings, however, were merino. The merinos were mainly short-wools, a fair proportion carrying skins of good length of staple. There was a large proportion of good useful quality wethers and ewes, with a very fair showing of prime, odd pens of extra prime wethers, and a sprinkling of medium sorts. The crossbreds ranged from medium to extra prime, mainly comprising good to prime, including occasional pens of extra prime, the bulk carrying early-shorn skins and more or less touched with burr. It was a good average penning of crossbreds, while the merinos were of better quality than usual.

There was a full attendance of buyers, especially during the middle and later sales, including graziers and one or two operators from Victoria, as well as the usual metropolitan, suburban, and country trade. The market during the morning ruled to free competition, but the improved tone of Thursday last was not fully maintained. At times the demand was animated, and late extreme rates forthcoming, especially on lines competed for by graziers for returning to the country. When this competition was lacking the best rates of Thursday last were generally not reached. Occasional pens suitable for shipping were in keen request. These various factors in the market led to some irregularity on practically all descriptions, being quotably lower in places and values very firm in others.

Included in the principal sales of short-wool merinos was a draft of 439 wethers from Canonbar station (Nyngan) to 33/2, avg 30/7; R. L. Smith (Cathundral), 535 to 36/1, avg 32/6; M. E. Walsh (Cowra), 124 to 37/7, avg 31/1; estate late T. H. Cooper (Collarenebri), 29/1 to 30/6, avg 27/1; Colly Creek estate (Willow Tree), 179 to 33/, avg 30/; P. O'Brien, jun. (Woodstock), 111 to 32/8, avg 30/2; W. J. M'Neill (Barraba), 183 to 30/, avg 28/; J. W. Dent (Walgett), to 31/. Among the crossbreds were 168 wethers from A. E. Bowman (Gunnedah) to 37/3, avg 35/3; H. Hartley, 240 to 40/, avg 35/2; P. O'Brien, jun., 72 to 36/2, avg 31/7; M'Gill and Co., (Mollee), 22/9 to 36/6, avg 34/4, and 142 ewes, avg 33/; T. Sullivan (Tumut), wethers to 34/9; H. Glasson (Woodstock), to 32/2; Lamb and Phillips (Bribaree), to 31/9; J. A. Whiteman (Narrabri), to 35/8; J. L. Brown (Gular), to 32/6; G. Allen (Manilla), to 38/9; J. W. Brumley (Trangie), to 32/; W. Montgomery (Nyngan), to 31/6; and hoggets, H. Whitton (Quirindi), to 31/. A line of crossbred ewes from R. C. Tucker (Narrabri) to 32/3; W. Buchanan (Narrabri), to 32/9.

Quotations: Prime shorn and short-wool merino w and h, 29/ to 32/; extra prime short-wool merino w 34/ to 37/6; good shorn and short-wool merino w and h 23/6 to 27/, medium merino shorn and short-wool w and h 19/ to 21/, inferior from 15/6; prime shorn and short-wool merino e 26/ to 28/, extra prime short-wool merino e 30/ to 32/, good merino shorn and short-wool merino e 22/ to 25/, medium merino shorn and short-wool e 17/ to 20/, inferior from 12/8; prime short-wool xbd w 32/ to 36/, extra prime short-wool xbd w 38/ to 40/; good short-wool xbd w and h 20/ to 23/, prime short wool xbd e 32/ to 34/, extra prime short-wool xbd e 35/ to 36/, good short-wool xbd e 23/ to 25/, medium short-wool xbd e 19/ to 22/.

LAMBS.

WITHOUT MATERIAL ALTERATION.

Only a small supply of lambs was penned. All descriptions were forward, the bulk being woolly lambs and suckers, with occasional pens of shorn and short-wool lambs. A few pens of merinos were in evidence, but crossbreds preponderated. The penning mainly comprised good to prime, and included odd pens of extra prime, also occasional pens of medium and light sorts. A sprinkling carried burry skins. There was an active demand, and values were without quotable change for all useful to prime descriptions. A line of crossbreds from W. Holcombe, jun. (Gunnedah) sold to 27/2; J. J. Kenniff (Gunnedah) to 25/; W. Kenna (Eurie Eurie) to 24/.

Quotations: Prime woolly lambs and suckers 23/ to 25/, extra prime lambs and suckers 27/ to 28/, good suckers and woolly lambs 19/ to 21/, medium and light sorts 13/ to 16/.

CATTLE.

GENERALLY A FIRM DEMAND.

A rather larger supply of cattle was forward than anticipated. Only 637 were listed for yesterday's sales from 41 consignors, but 909 were yarded, as compared with 1932 head forward yesterday week. The supply came principally from the northern and Hunter River districts, with a sprinkling from the west and south. The yardings comprised a moderate representation of good to prime light and handy-weight bullocks and steers, and included occasional yards of prime medium-weight bullocks, with a fair proportion of medium and plain light bullocks and steers. Extra prime heavy bullocks were not so well in evidence as during the past week or two. The cows and heifers were mainly useful trade quality, with a sprinkling of prime and odd extra prime, as well as a proportion of medium descriptions. The yardings also included odd yards of calves, yearlings, and bulls.

There was the usual attendance of buyers, and, although the supply was a light one, it seemed sufficient for requirements. The market opened to free competition, with values about on a par with Thursday last for plain descriptions, and very firm, with a firmer tendency for the better qualities, with occasional variation when the demand was not so strong. That tone generally prevailed to the close.

Included in the sales were a line of eight bullocks from Tullamore station (Tullamore) to £27/10/, avg. £23/12/6, 14 steers to £18/1/, avg £16/19/6; W. J. Marsh (Forbes), 36 bullocks to £24, avg £21/13/2; H. E. A. and V. White (Scone), 72 bullocks to £23/15/, avg £20/14/10; T. L. Higgins (Willow Tree), 45 bullocks to £20/3/, avg £18/15/; F. Mack (Narromine), 50 bullocks to £19/14/, avg £18/7/6.

Quotations:—Yards of prime medium-weight bullocks, £23/10/ to £25; yards of prime extra heavy bullocks, £26 to £27/10/; yards of prime handy-weight bullocks and steers, £21 to £22/10/; yards of prime light bullocks and steers, £17/10/ to £19; yards of good bullocks and steers, £15 to £16/10/; yards of good light steers, £12/10/ to £14; yards of inferior light steers, £9/10/ to £11; yards of prime cows and heifers, £15/10/ to £17; yards of extra prime cows and heifers, £18 to £19; yards of good cows and heifers, £11/10/ to £13; yards of medium cows and heifers, £8/10/ to £10; yards of inferior, £6 to £7/10/. WESTONIAS STRONG.

COPPER IN BETTER FAVOUR.

For the opening day of the week the Sydney Stock Exchange showed unwonted activity yesterday morning, with the result that an unusually large amount of business was transacted. But it was not all in favour of sellers.

Barriers failed to maintain the position reached by them the previous week. Attention was then concentrated on the Edna May group of gold mines, and such was the buying demand that values went up all round, Edna May Central moving from 92/ to £5/2/6; Edna May Deep from 38/ to 39/; Edna May Consolidated (paid) from 16/6 to 19/6, the contributing scrip from 15/3 to 18/6; Edna May Golden Point from 4/ to 6/2; and Edna May Battler (paid) from 6/3 to 6/9.

Copper stocks were in better favour than has been the case for some weeks past, with the result that several transactions were booked at solid rates in Hampdens, Mount Lyell Blocks, and Mount Lyells, with Mount Morgans selling at a fairly steady rate on terms.

During this time tin stocks were much neglected, but the quotations at the morning and noon calls showed they were still in steady favour. Kampong sold unchanged, whilst Tronos were unobtainable at late sale rates. Tongkah Harbour were wanted, but sellers were undeclared. The return for the past week was 28 tons of tin oxide as against 31 tons for the previous week. No. 2 dredge was stopped on March 6 for repairs, which are estimated to take 10 weeks. The directors have declared a dividend of 2/ per share, payable on April 22.

The market in the afternoon was much less vigorous. Especially was this the case with Westonias. Moreover, there was a tendency for values to ease. On the other hand, tin stocks maintained a steady and, in some cases, firm position right up to the close. Copper stocks were inactive.

MINING NOTES.

Our Kalgoorlie correspondent telegraphs:—"The February output of the Golden Horseshoe totalled 18,365 tons, which yielded £32,938. The expenditure was £26,111.

A telegram from the manager of the Pernatty copper mine (South Australia) states:—"Plant now working satisfactorily. Laboratory tests indicate good recoveries."

The lode being followed northward by the 95ft level of the main shaft of the Devon mine (W.A.) is 3ft wide, whilst in the drive south it is 18in, with the values unaltered. At 350ft north from the shaft a winze is down 18ft on stone carrying 1½oz of free gold.

The report of the general manager of the Briseis Company for February states:—Black tin (Briseis), 36 tons; Mutual Hill, 25cwt, gold 433oz, from Wallace properties.

RIMU FLATS OPTIONS.

Matters in connection with the option held by E. D. Miles and Co., Ltd., over the gold-dredging areas at Rimu Flats, Hokitika, New Zealand, have now reached the position of only waiting on the permission of the Commonwealth Government to register. The company will be in 120,000 of £1 each, and it is said that preliminary operations at Rimu—doubtless in connection with preparing the site for the reception of the dredge on its arrival and being put together—will be commenced directly the company is empowered by the Commonwealth to proceed with the registration. It is stated that Mr. Frank Powell's sampling of 19d worth of gold to the cubic yard has been considerably bettered by the sampling of another expert, though the figures of considerably over a shilling to the cubic yard are good enough for anything.

EDNA MAY REEF.

CUT BY CENTRAL'S CROSSCUT.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The following telegram was received to-day from the mine manager of the Edna May Central gold mines:—"New reef, south-west crosscut: Have cut reef in crosscut, No. 2 level, 35ft east of where cut in crosscut, 75ft level. Borehole into the reef 5ft. General average of five assays from bores, 124/. End of the borehole in kaolin. Think there is more stone ahead. Reef 1ft wider than the corresponding position in 75ft level, and assays increased by 52/. Will take two days to square up face of crosscut."

LAND FOR SOLDIERS.

FREETRADE AND LAND VALUES LEAGUE.

At a meeting of the executive of the Freetrade and Land Values League held on Wednesday the following resolutions were carried:—

"That in the opinion of this league most of the utterances on the land for soldiers question are of no practical value, and are calculated to divert attention from a true solution of the problem."

"That Australian soldiers requiring land for farming or residential purposes, after their return from the war, are entitled to areas of the best land in Australia not at present in effective occupation. Having fought for the Empire, they have a moral right to sufficient land for their requirements. It is a matter of right, not of charity."

"That in order to give effect to the foregoing resolution, the basis of taxation should be altered so as to compel all owners of land to use it fully or part with it."

"That efforts to put crippled men and widows on land of poor quality or distant from means of access to market when there is plenty of good land, readily accessible to railways and rivers not in effective use should be discountenanced, as the time and energy employed should be devoted to a proper solution of the problem."

THE LIQUOR ACT OF 1905.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—If Mr. Holman means, as he appears to do, that the Liquor Act of 1905 was barren of results, he is seriously mistaken. Matters would have been infinitely worse to-day but for its beneficent provisions.

That Act gave us effective Sunday closing of bars. The convictions in the courts for drunkenness are not for Sundays a sixth of those for other days. It shut bars on election days, and struck at bribery by beer and whisky. The clause gave decent order in times of especial excitement. It prevented any young person under 17 entering a bar, and notably stopped mothers sending little children to public-houses with their beer jugs. It prevented the increase of clubs, regulated genuine ones, and was the death of the many bogus ones scattered through the land. It almost wholly blocked the increase of public-houses. It put down the immoral private bars in back rooms of hotels, kept by dissolute women, who paid licensees sometimes as much as £10 a week rent. There are other points also of vast advantage. But the greatest matter of all is that it conceded full local option, the referendum, to the people. It placed a great power in their hands, by which reduction and no-license might be had if they so wished. I regretfully admit that within the old part of Sydney the voting has been unfavourable, and that an amendment is needed, but as a whole no fewer than 400 licenses have been blotted out by reduction, and if there had been majority rule, instead of the three-fifths requirement, one-fifth of the people of this State would live under the flag of no-license. The Act of 1905 needs time in the voting for its full development, but in view of that, and its other provisions, it has been a great success. What citizen would willingly go back to the old bad conditions? It was one of the most important Acts our Parliament ever passed. It was an enormous stride in advance.

I know that it will be said that the drink bill has increased. It is true, but why? The country, in 1905, was only just recovering from the long and severe depression that followed the financial crisis of 1893, when nearly all the banks failed. Since then there has been a great wave of prosperity, and the spending power of the people has wonderfully grown. Wages have been raised and incomes generally are far larger. The drink bill is usually affected by such matters, as men pay out more in luxuries. Mr. Holman should consider well these facts.

There has been one notable other reason for the higher drink bill. It is because there has been no early closing of bars, like shops; men have had more time, through shorter hours of work, more leisure, and the lure of the bar has been there to 11 o'clock at night. The idle hours are the danger, and in which the temptation of drink should be removed. It is an old saying that "an idle brain is the devil's worship." Let there be 6 o'clock closing, and there will be a most valuable addition to the splendid Act of 1905. It will particularly affect the congested and slum areas of this city in a marked way; it will check the waste of money in drink, as well as bring in many other most excellent results.

I am, etc.,
F. B. BOYCE,
President N.S.W. Alliance.

THE SUGGESTED COMPROMISE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The decision of the liquor traders that 9 o'clock is a fair hour to close all bars is a significant acknowledgment that they believe the majority are in favour of a much earlier hour of closing. The liquor trade is now making a virtue of necessity, and with their accustomed modesty they are asking for three hours longer than they believe the public will give them.

We need not discuss the 50,000 absent soldiers, since the vote only proposes to govern the period of their absence. It is therefore quite irrelevant to introduce them into the discussion. Since Mr. Donnison permits the Minister for Defence to know what is best for military efficiency, it is surprising that he does not suggest 8 as a closing hour. It is even more surprising that he should suggest that it is "logical" for the Minister for Defence to make it 9. It is hardly fair to quote 11 as the closing hour in South Australia, when 6 has been decided upon, and before the end of the month will be in practice.

When Mr. Donnison says that the liquor trade is prepared to make a sacrifice of two hours, he hardly states the case accurately. He should say "the liquor trade is not prepared to sacrifice a minute or a 'tray-bit' beyond what the public force them to give up." On the question of cost—the public spend £25,000 six days a week in this State in liquor. If the liquor traders are correct, and six o'clock closing will reduce the sale of liquor by 40 per cent., then at a cost of £25,000 for a referendum, the community are to increase their spending and saving power by £60,000 a week. This is good business, and the wisest and best investment of State money in the lifetime of any of us. Mr. Donnison contends that this expenditure of £25,000 on a referendum would be better spent on patriotic funds. We advocates of earlier closing go one better and say that the £150,000 spent each week on liquor would be better spent if £25,000 went to patriotic funds, and the balance to the necessaries of life and the campaign to bring the war as speedily as possible to a successful issue.

The Government acknowledges that the Parramatta election is a mandate from the people, and it might well enact 6 o'clock closing and save the referendum, but there is no reason in Mr. Donnison's appeal, and if the Government dare not offend the liquor trade by a direct Act, we ask nothing better than an unconfused ballot paper and the hour fixed by the majority to become law at once.

I am, etc.,
ROBERT B. S. HAMMOND,
Chairman Campaign Committee,
N.S.W. Alliance.

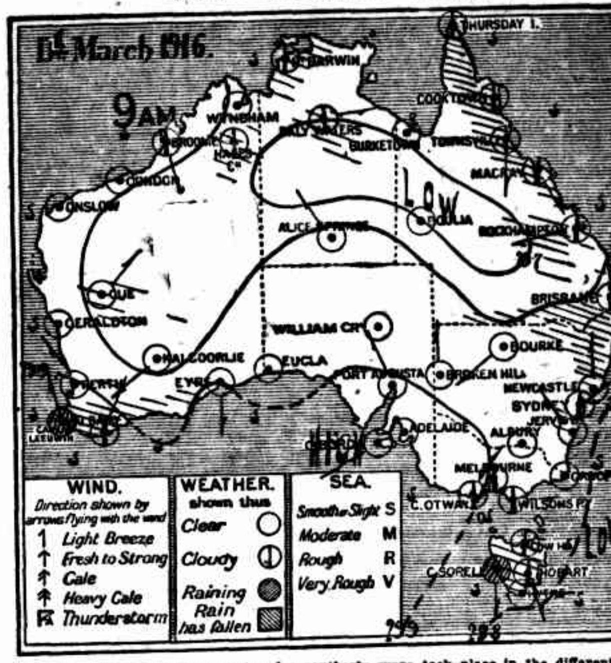
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



Both a retrogressive movement and a southerly surge took place in the different weather systems during the 48 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday. The high pressure, which covered the south-eastern quadrant, now only covers the Bight, and extends as far east as Melbourne.

The Antarctic disturbance which was over the Tasman Sea on Saturday shows a retrogressive movement of about 300 miles, and is responsible for the squally southerlies along our seaboard.

The monsoonal depression over the northern half of the continent shows increased energy, and has been responsible for some good rains in Central Queensland and in the north-eastern districts of New South Wales.

This depression has gained another isobar, which extends from Western Queensland to the head of the continent. Further thunderstorms may be expected in the north-eastern districts.

THE FUNCTION OF
says an expert Corsetiere, "should be to support the stockings, not to fix the position of the Corset. The downward pull of the Hose supporters vainly endeavouring to hold the wrongly-cut Corset in place is very injurious.

KABO,
THE LIVE MODEL
CORSETS,

assume the right position, whether the suspenders are fastened or not, because they are correctly designed.
Ninety-seven living models are employed, and on their figures the various Kabo Corsets are designed. Every known type of feminine physique is included in these ninety-seven models.
The Corsets are fitted in sitting, reclining, standing, bending, and other positions.
That is the chief reason why you will have no difficulty in procuring comfort, grace, and proper deportment if you buy a Kabo Corset.
Sold by leading Drapers. Ask for Kabo Corsets, and accept no substitute.

FARMER'S,
SYDNEY.
1840-1916.
Seventy-six Years.

IN OUR FRONT PAGE ADVERTISEMENT, NEXT TO THE "NEWS SUMMARY," WE GIVE PARTICULARS OF THE INEXPENSIVE MILLINERY, OF WHICH A SPECIAL DISPLAY IS BEING MADE. A PERUSAL OF THAT ADVERTISEMENT ALSO WILL PROVE INFORMATIVE.

IF ONE WERE ASKED WHAT MATERIAL WILL BE MOST POPULAR, THE ANSWER WOULD BE GARBICORDS, COVERT COATINGS. SERGES.

To more effectively prove this, is being made this week.

A SPECIAL DISPLAY OF NEW DRESS MATERIALS

Among the many approved materials, GARBICORDS stand out with particular prominence. This material is quite distinctive, and much superior to its many imitations. It is present in Cream, Fawn, Mole, and Navy, 56 inches wide, at 10/6, 11/6, 12/6, 13/6, and 15/11 per yard.

The range of our COVERT COATING is second to none in Australia. These eminently serviceable materials fulfil every possible cold-weather need, and their variety is most comprehensive, in Fawns, Blues, Greys, and Sand Shades, 54 to 58 inches wide, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 13/11, 14/11, 16/11.

In NAVY SERGES, the values will be found as satisfactory as ever submitted. The texture is soft to the touch, durable in wear, and of fast dye. There are fine Botany weaves, Estemenes, Coatings, and Cheviots. They are all old dyes, and are recommended with confidence, 42 to 56 inches wide, 4/11 to 9/11 per yard.

There are two other popular materials which require mention—GABARDINES AND ENGADINES. These cloths are in steady demand and make up into very smart walking dresses, and coats and skirts. There are Black, Navy, Amethyst, Greys, Blues, and Browns, in many shades, 50 inches wide, 7/11 per yard.

The ever-useful TWEEDS AND HEATHER MIXTURES are especially well represented, 40 to 52 inches wide, at 2/11 to 4/11 per yard.

CHECKS.—While Black and White Checks have had a popularity for years, this year sees the introduction of many different widths of checks and variations of the plain checks. Among the new ideas are Bird's-eye Checks, which have a smart neatness, all their own. We can supply in Grey and Black and White Check Suitings, 42 to 56 inches wide, at from 4/6 to 10/6 per yard.

LININGS.

THE NEW "ROYDESCA" LINING is composed of Art Sylk and Cotton, with brilliant diagonal finish. It wears better than silk, because it does not readily split, and, having a cotton mixture, is doubly durable. It is present in White, Grey, Sky, in plain grounds; also in smartish stripe diagonal effects, in Helio., Black, Navy, Fawn, and Turquoise Blue, each with even white stripes. 40 inches wide. Price, 3/11 per yard.
Another complement to the present Coat and Skirt styles are—

STRIPED LININGS, in Black, Browns, Greys, Fawns, etc., each with smart white and coloured stripes of various widths.

SMART TARTANS, striped effects, are also shown, 30 to 40 inches in width. Price, 1/9 to 2/3 per yard.
All the above and their fellows may be inspected in the Dress Department, First Floor.

THE ADVANTAGE OF AN EARLY SELECTION IN WINTER FURS IS OBVIOUS. FURS OF THE STYLE AND QUALITY THAT

Where the skins utilised are so carefully picked, where the workmanship is perfect as excellent, where the STYLES ARE SO EMPHATICALLY EXCLUSIVE, quantity is sacrificed to quality. While the present choice is wide and inclusive, the distinctive Style of each garment is beyond dispute.
And we would remind you that Economy is possible even in the most exclusive merchandise.

A DAYFUL OF FRESH NEW ATTRACTIONS AT SNOW'S.

The Prices of most commodities are rising, but we still have every evidence that "talk is cheap."
The top thought of this business is not to unduly exalt ourselves nor to disparage what other businesses do, but simply by true statement to put before the public in the simplest way what is going on at each day.

No statements are printed that cannot be substantiated—human errors and accidents excepted.
The assortments of the Autumn and Winter Goods grow daily.
The Merchandise is all carefully selected, and warranted to be your Money's Worth—or Money back.
And if old Benjamin Franklin could pop in and buy something he would not be able to say that he paid too much for his whistle.

MORE GOOD NEWS OF THE
NEW DRESS GOODS
AT SNOW'S.

Twice since the Season started Snow's has spoken AUTUMN DRESS GOODS.
In our first message we gave GABARDINES the post of honour as Autumn's Newest Feature.
We next quoted DRESS TWEEDS as the next popular Autumn Fabrics, for all-round warmth and hard wearing qualities.
But these are not the only "pebbles" in SNOW'S Specialty Dress Shop.
Every desirable Fabric in vogue to-day is here—plenty of it, too—in dependable quality, at a decided saving.
GABARDINES are still opening up—SERGES, too, any quantity of them.
Snow's are lucky—more fortunate than many "wait-a-whiles"—who were left in the lurch. Shipments come forward very slowly, but surely.
And TO-DAY you'll find in Snow's Dress Shop
GABARDINES, TWEEDS,
SERGES IN BLACK AND NAVY,
TAILORING SERGES, FOX'S SERGES,
COATING SERGES,
SERGES FOR CHILDREN'S OR HOUSE WEAR.
Every good kind asked for to-day, at prices you can well afford to pay.
BLOUSING FLANNELETTES for house or afternoon wear are here galore. To describe them in detail would take a page and a half of type, but depend on it anything in BLOUSING FLANNELETTE (if its worth having) is at Snow's.
There are Spotted, Striped, Fancy, Tartan, Paisley, and Floral effects, all in Twill, Cashmere finish, or warmer Flannelette.
And now for something for 'Tween Season's Wear. If your fancy runs to something—not too light, yet not too heavy—Snow's have still a big range of

OUR OWN POPLINS, 40 INCHES WIDE,
SNOW'S PRICE, 1/11½ YD.

You know the POPLINS we mean. All shades including Black, which, as you know, is not a colour, but it's the shade that's hardest to get—yet Snow's have plenty of it.
And only one mention of Price. Take it for granted Snow's never quote "War-how" prices. Every single line is marked at a Lower-than-Elsewhere Price—your surety of genuine saving.
